LINCOLN HIGH SCHOOL PROGRESS

LARGE CROWD AT JUNIOR - SENIOR MASQUERADE

Helen Granum; Maxine Dalton; Martin Jorde Won Prizes for Costumes

Was everybody happy? They certainly were at the Junior-Senior Masquerade last Friday. In fact, all were so reluctant to leave that the orchestra was not allowed to stop until it had repeated "Home, Sweet Home" three times.

The students began to arrive at about 8:30 and at 9:00, at which time the dancing began, a large and varied group had assembled. Most of the masqueraders were recognized upon arrival. However, a few students were able to keep their identity a secret until they unmasked. Among these were Mickey and Minnie Mouse, two Indian girls, a ghost, a girl in riding clothes, and a boy dressed in girl's clothes.

Gypsy girls, Dutch girls and boys, old-fashioned girls, bandits, clowns, Japanese girls, Little Bo-Peep, and a minister, all made their appearance. The cigaret girl's costume was the object of much admiration. The costume consisted of a white blouse, a short, flared skirt, high boots, a high hat, and a cane. The skirt, boots, and hat were cleverly designed from shiny black oilcloth.

The faculty also was well represented at the Masquerade. A loud burst of laughter and applause greeted the entrance of Mr. Lanning and Miss Springen. Their costumes portrayed what the well dressed young men and ladies of the nineties wore. Mr. Lanning was attired in a tight-fitting white suit, and a shallow-crowned black derby, and carried a flowered parasol which he sometimes substituted for a cane. Miss Springen's outfit, a short red skirt, tiny red hat, two pairs of anklets over cotton stockings, and a large red bow, was typical of the care free youths of about twenty years ago.

Miss Edberg's costume, a dainty pink dress with flowing skirt and a pink hat, was also inspired by the apparel of bygone days. The Japanese girl, with a pink gown and flowers in her hair, was recognized as Miss Tandberg. The little pickaninny with her tightly curled hair tied with red ribbons, had everybody guessing as to her identity. She proved to be Miss Greenland. Miss Fletcher represented the New Deal and all the alphabet organizations. Mr. Dooley was a sailor boy.

Prizes were awarded to Helen Granum, as an old-fashioned girl; Martin Jorde, as a pirate; and Maxine Dalton, as a peasant. Their costumes were clever and original as well as beautiful.

Noisemakers and balloons added to the merriment of the occasion. The "match card" dance in which the girls and boys matched cards for partners, varied the ordinary dance. In the "tag" dance, a person might be dancing with a clown and then suddenly find himself the partner of an Indian, soon to be changed for a Gypsy.

The party came to an end at approximately 12:30, with everybody wishing that it would never end.

Only Four Interclass Games Played Last Week

During the past week only four interclass basketball games were played. Monday, the Sophomore A's defeated the Seniors by a score of 23-11. The Junior B's were taken to camp to the tune of 16-39 by the Junior A's.

Wednesday the Junior B's downed the Seniors 25-17 while the Junior B's romped over the Freshmen B's 30-6.

Perhaps the most bitterly contested battle was that of the Junior A and B teams. The erstwhile basketeer Per Berg served as a not too efficient referee. If every foul had been called practically every player would have been out on personals. As it was, charging and tripping were prominent. If the players had worn helmets and shoulder pads the game could have been called football. Hardly a player emerged from the game without bruises or scratches.

PROWLERS TO OPPOSE TWIN VALLEY FEB. 12

Twin Valley With a Team of Lettermen Ranks With Grand Forks

Twin Valley will try its hand at stopping the Prowlers winning streak when they meet next Tuesday evening in the Municipal Auditorium at 8:00 P. M. The quintet from Twin Valley came out second best last year in their encounter with the Prowlers, but are coming here with an even chance of turning back the Prowlers.

With a full team of lettermen, Twin Valley will have to be considered before any decision is handed down on Region 8's destiny. Their star forward and captain, Robert Lee, is playing his fourth year for Twin Valley. Orwin Nysetvold, a guard, is in his third season of regular play. Allen Sahde and Edwin Bjerde, guards, are competing in their second year, and Clifford Boreen, lanky center, is also serving his second year. Other members are Harvey Brevik, Wallace Waller, Lowell Christenson, and Milton Lindbark.

With such seasoned players, the Prowlers will be up against their strongest opposition this year, with the possible exception of Grand Forks Central, their one conqueror.

This will be the last home game before the Bemidji tilt and one of the best on our remaining schedule. Don't fail to see this game, as it's a "toss-up" as to the outcome!

WARREN QUINTET BOWS TO STRONG PROWLER TEAM

Prowlers Whip Orange and Black by Score of 37-18 at Warren Feb. 1

In one of the fastest and most exciting of the games the Prowlers have had this year they defeated Warren 37 to 18 last Friday evening. Warren showed a team highly superior to the one they presented a few weeks earlier in the year when the Prowlers won 76 to 9.

Lee displaced Nicholson as the opening scorer Friday when he sank a free throw early in the game. Warren then came back fast and took the lead as Bossman sank a long shot and Perry made a free throw. This was the first time the Prowlers have trailed any team in the last seven games. Nicholson then tied the score and Nelson gave the Prowlers a one point lead. Willey then sank two side shots, but the Prowlers started a scoring spree with Mickelson getting three baskets, Berg two, and Lee and Nelson one each. Bossman then sank a long shot from back on the center of the small floor. Nelson and Bossman tangled for the ball and a double foul was called, each player making his gift shot.

Willey, Perry, and Bossman started a Warren spurt but Kielty Berg and Nicholson counterbalanced this with a shot each. After the ball had changed hands several times Willey came out of the scramble with the ball and sank a nice side shot. Berg, Nicholson, and Mickelson then scored for the Prowlers with field goals as the game ended with the Prowlers leading 37 to 18.

Warren proved in this game that they again had a scrappy team that was fighting all the time and presented another long shot artist in Bossman. Bossman was outstanding for Warren while Berg and Nelson stood out for the Prowlers. Berg was high point man with eleven points, and Mickleson second with ten.

Girls Practice Posture; Take Basketball Tests

Shoulders back, stomach in, chin up! That's better! It looks as though some of the girls are going to feel "embarrassed" when they see their marks from posture and basket ball tests posted on the bulletin board. Yes, it's by the "courtesy" of the Typewriting II classes.

Miss Pierson has definite plans for the future. One period of each week will be spent exercising and working for better posture; the other, for basket ball and its tests. If nice weather prevails each class will go skating one period of a coming week. The program will be followed for a number of weeks and then the posture and basket ball tests will be taken again. Practice standing and sitting correctly during school hours. Watch the difference in your posture and watch your grades go up!

PROWLERS TO VIE WITH CROOKSTON FRIDAY, FEB. 8

Close Contest Will be Expected in Game With Prowlers and Pirates

Tomorrow evening the Prowlers will meet the Crookston Pirates for the first time this season. The quintet from Crookston is the only one the Prowlers have yet to meet to prove their superiority in district competition. This test of ability between the two highest ranking teams in District 31 will begin at 7:15 P. M. in the Municipal Auditorium.

Crookston, with its veteran team, has an enviable record this year. This team has lost by close scores to Bemidji and East Grand Forks. These games, however, were played on Bemidji's and East Grand's floors.

If conclusions can be drawn at so early a date, the fate of District 31 will lie in the outcome of this classic. From the minute the teams go into action, there will be plenty of fight and suspense will be high until the last whistle blows.

The Prowlers showed their powers over Plummer and Warren last week, but they had plenty of trouble running up a sizable margin. The seasoned Crookston quintet has "what it takes" to turn the tables and emerge victorious.

As a preliminary, the B squads of the school will vie, but the Prowlers seconds are expected to be easy winners over the Crookston "second bests".

Since this is the last home game with district competition before the District Tournament, every one should attend and draw his own conclusions!

STUDENTS LAUD 4TH ASSEMBLY PROGRAM MON.

Brown's Metropolitan Jubilee Singers Given Ovation by L. H. S. Students

The fourth of the Lyceum Circuit Assembly programs in the form of the Metropolitan or Brown's Jubilee Singers appeared Monday. They were introduced by the alto, Mrs. William Oscar Brown who also gave some of the background of Jubilee singing. This type of singing was first introduced in Fisk University in 1871. They sang folk songs—noted for their pathos and harmony. These songs the negroes consider a priceless heritage from their ancestors who were slaves. Now more than ever people are becoming interested in them both for their educational value and because they represent a noted section of our country, the South. The Jubilee singers presented folk songs and spirituals as well as the humorous type of music.

The members of this quartet were:

The accompanist and pianist—Miss A Gertrude Williams.

The tenor—Ernest L. Williams.

The soprano—Miss Ray Lee Jones.

The alto—Mrs. William Oscar Brown.

The bass and leader—William Oscar Brown.

The songs rendered by this quartet in inimitable negro style were: "Battle of Jerico"; "Tramping"; "Trying to Make Heaven My Home", "Down By the Riverside", "O Rocks Don't Fall on Me", "King Jesus is Listenin' to Hear Some Sinner Pray"; "Swanee River", "Garden of My Heart". We were favored by two poems, "The Katydid and the Whippoorwill", and "Jump Back Honey", by the bass Mr. Brown. These poems were written by Paul Lawrence Dunbar, beloved negro who Mr. Brown said, "sympathized with high school students because he had been editor of the Dayton High School Times, the largest school paper in the United States". After these two readings, the quartet sang "Dickory, Dickory Dock", and another song composed of three nursery ryhmes. Their final song was "Carry Me Back To Old Virginia".

These singers were well received by the student body as was shown by the amount of encores and applause.

HERE AND THERE

An interesting new book has been added to the high school library, "Challenge to Liberty" by Herbert Hoover. In this book Mr. Hoover discusses present day problems of interest to the general public.

Miss Leavitt will begin teaching eighth grade library lessons next week.

Lincoln Teachers Hold Classes for Parents

The Parent-Teacher meeting which was held Monday evening, February 4 at the High School, was in charge of the teachers. At this meeting, the parents were given an opportunity to go to school just as their sons or daughters do. Before the parents proceeded to the classes, the schedule and system were fully explained to them. Ten minute classes were conducted in the same order and manner as the ones the students attend each day.

The teachers explained briefly the manner in which each class is conducted, trying to give the parents a better idea of how the work is carried on in the high school. We hope the parents, as well, as the students, will be benefited by this novel and interesting entertainment.

Because of the length of the schedule, there was no other program. A lunch was served at the conclusion of the evening by the grade school teachers.

THE PROGRESS POKES ITS NOSE AROUND

Your inquiring reporter recently strolled to the school library just to get an idea on what books the high school students were reading. Here's what was discovered:

Because of a recent English III assignment, more novels and biographies were being read than any other type. A few enterprising students had drawn out books in chemistry and geometry. A few histories were included in the group.

Booth Tarkington seemed to capture a prize by the number of his novels being read. In the biographies, Alice Freeman Palmer was outstanding.

The following authors were numbered as the most read: Winston Churchill, Willa Cather, Sarah Clemens, James Fenimore Cooper, Hamlin Garland, and Christopher Morely. To be noted from this is the fact that both contemporary, and early writers are favorites with the students.

Jane Addams, "Twenty Years at Hull House", Mary Antin's "Promised Land", and Hildegarde Hawthorne's "Romantic Rebel" were classified as being the most widely-read books on the shelves.

Was one of your favorite authors included in this group? If not, why don't you take a walk to the library and see what books you can discover that are suited to your type. Reading should be one of your favorite hobbies. Selecting good books should also be cultivated. Such books can be found in the school library.

SENIOR ONE-ACT PLAYS PRESENTED TUESDAY, FEB. 5

"Wienies on Wednesday" and "The Black Valise" Attract Large Attendance

The one-act plays, "Wienies on Wednesday" and "The Black Valise" which were presented by the Senior Class in the High School Assembly last Tuesday, were pronounced a huge success by all those who attended. A fair-sized crowd was present to see the Seniors "put over" the plays with a smoothness and a sparkling humor which frequently drew laughs.

In the first play, "Wienies on Wednesday," about the best acting was done by Louise LaBree, who, as an Italian singer, astonished a family of four by enjoying breakfast in a kitchen and simply adoring wienies! Also outstanding was Marvin Lindberg, who through witty repartee and frequent humorous interruptions kept the audience constantly in an uproar.

In the second play, "The Black Valise", outstanding performers were Kendall Gustafson as Henry Mason, a rather nervous and talkative young student of psychology and the art of conversation, Ted Quale as a mad doctor, and Walter Kinghorn as a stupid policeman who, on hearing the ticking of a bomb inside a valise, shouts, "You can't fool me! He's got a clock in that bag!"

When this was written it had not yet been decided how much the Seniors had taken in, but it has been decided that the proceeds will go towards putting out a bigger and better Prowler this year.

Members of the casts of the two plays were as follows:

"Wienies on Wednesday"

Mrs. Foster .... Corlan Dokken
Mr. Foster .... Donald Collins
Marion Foster .... Kathleen Monsebroten
Jack Foster .... Harvin Lindberg
Mme. Castanelli .... Louise LaBree

"The Black Valise"

Henry Mason .... Kendall Gustafson
Theodore .... Walter Kinghorn
Mrs. Clancy .... Doris Moe
Mr. Clancy .... Jerome Havel
Dr. Nikolor .... Theodore Quale

MUSIC NOTES

The members of the sextet include: Phyllis Norbeck, Edla Erickson, Helen Rice, Lois Nelson, Ardythe Mellby, and Viola Stennes. The group is working on "Nevin's Song Cycle", "A Day in Venice", "A Song for the Lute" by Parpke, and "Sonny Boy" by Curran.

The Cantata "The Erl King's Daughter" has arrived. This week the mixed chorus worked on it. This cantata will be sung at the Music Festival, which is the concluding affair of the District Music Festival, which is the concluding affair of the District Music Contest. This contest will be at Crookston April 27.

JOSIE'S NOTES

Here I am fit as a fiddle and hollow as a base drum. (Jack Benny). Being that I was a mouse today in Society class (4th) I find that Coach Dooley does not trust his honest and able bodied students as much as he should. He was retiring to the 3rd floor, with the social door open and can you imagine he said said he "Please don't annoy me." (Wonder if he heard what went on when he left.) It seems that one of the Lincoln high steeds has been having nightmares lately. She experienced a dream most provoking the other night and rushed right out to find Corlan D. It goes this way: This person died and naturally went somewhere beside up (Bear in mind, this is only a dream) a gentleman strongly resembling Mel Offerdahl met her at the gate (not pearly.) He gave her a piece of chalk about two feet long and showed her flight of stairs approximately a mile high. She was instructed to mount these stairs and write all the bad things she'd done on this earth, one on each step. She started up, and when she'd gotten about half way, what do you think she saw? Corlan Dokken wide-eyed and gasping with amazement, can no longer control her curiosity and asks what?"

George Buck—coming down for more chalk!"

Now that the masquerade and the one-act play are a part of the past, the senior class turns its attention to organizing a staff which will compose the 1935 Lincoln high school annual. The size of this year's Prowler will, of course, depend upon the size of the balance in the treasury and upon the number of students who will buy the Prowler when they are completed. There would be no object in producing a book unless there are sufficient prospective buyers.

We suggest that the seniors first determine the approximate number of students who would like to possess a 1935 Prowler and who are also certain that they will buy when the books are placed on sale. By doing this they will better be able to estimate how large a book they can afford to publish.

It seems to us that fifty per cent of the total number of Lincoln High students would purchase Prowlers if the cost was not more than two dollars. This would mean six hundred dollars. An additional two or three hundred dollars could be raised by contributions from the various class treasuries. If this wasn't approved, the senior class alone might raise the required additional sum. We are informed that the present balance in the coffers of the graduating class is approximately one hundred and fifty dollars. The one-act plays and the Senior Class Play should boost this figure to three hundred dollars. If necessary the largest part of that could go toward the publication of a Prowler. Between eight and nine hundred dollars should be enough to publish a very satisfactory book.

Not since 1929 has the graduating class published a Prowler. This book is one of the most treasured possession of an owner. It enables him to relive his high school days.

We're pulling "out of the red". Prosperity has definitely rounded the corner. Let's get "out of the rut", and get busy on a 1935 Prowler.

COMMUNITY CLUB TO STAGE ENTERTAINMENT

Plans have finally been completed for the Community entertainment which is to be held at the Plummer Hall on Friday, Feb. 22. The Silverton Farmers' Club is presenting a one-act play, entitled "Jumbo Jim". The Smiley Club is putting on a one-act play "Trying Them Out," and a group from Plummer is going to put on "The Awkward Squad". The Wyandotte Club is furnishing a quartette to provide vocal music. An orchestra has been engaged to provide dance music after the show, and everyone is guaranteed a good time. The proceeds of the play will be used to purchase chairs for the hall. Remember the date: February 22, at the Plummer village hall.

The Plummer P. T. A. will meet on Thursday, Feb. 14. A good program and speaker have been provided for the evening.

Plummer High Wins Two

The Plummer High School basketball team won two games over the week-end, defeating Oklee [illegible] on Friday night and St. Hilaire on Saturday night 33-10.

In the game at Oklee Friday night the boys started slowly and gathered speed and points as the game progressed. The Plummer defense kept the Oklee team from getting into the basket. Karlstad and Langlie were the main point getters for Plummer with LaVoy being the mainstay in the defense besides garnering his share of baskets.

The St. Hilaire game was postponed from Thursday to Saturday because the lights failed to work on Thursday nite. The local team started with a spurt and led 19-2 at the half. St. Hilaire came back for the second half with added fight and held the locals to 14 points while getting 8 for themselves. The St. Hilaire team is developing rapidly and shows promise of having a good team before the season is over.

In a preliminary game Saturday night the St. Hilaire reserves beat the Plummer junior high team 13-4. The first half was hard fought with the score 4-4. The second half St. Hilaire had a decided edge and went ahead to win easily.

The local high school team has been without the services of Lloyd Hanson for the last two games, because he is suffering from an attack of quinsy. He has been a stellar performer and an important cog in the offense, besides getting a large share of the team's points during the year.

The next game for the locals will be with Warren on Friday night at Plummer. This game has an added interest because Plummer will undoubtedly meet Warren in the opening game of the district tournament. Warren defeated Plummer earlier in the season 18-15, at Warren. The home team will be out for revenge but they will be severely handicapped without Hanson. A good game is expected.

FINE PAGEANT IS FEATURE OF WINTER SHOWS

Capacity Audience Witnesses Presentation Thursday in Crookston

LOCAL YOUNG LADIES ATTEND VALLEY QUEEN

Pennington County Group Depicts Church History in Valley

A pageant that drew capacity crowds to the armory in Crookston Thursday afternoon and evening and related historical events in the 13 northwestern Minnesota counties proved one of the crowning features of the Red River Valley Winter shows.

Some 250 residents of the district actually took part in the pageant and a hundred others assisted in staging the 13 individual offerings which told the story of development of the valley from the days of the fur traders.

As the evening performance neared the finish Agatha Olson of Beltrami, Polk county, was crowned Red river valley queen and took part in the final scene.

The queen was selected by secret balloting by students of the Northwest School of Agriculture. Her attendants during the evening were Helen Carlson of Halstad, Esther Hauge of Mahnomen, Evelyn Vilven and Lois Sargent of Crookston, Joyce Stamnes of Halma, Laura Hanson and Irene Holst of Thief River Falls and Olive Steen of Halstad.

Each of the 13 counties presented a scene. Directors of the various casts were guests of the Winter Shows board of directors at luncheon Thursday and the 250 players were guests of the Crookston Association of Commerce at dinner.

Preceding the evening performance the Red Lake Falls band played a concert which was followed by a concert by the Crookston Municipal band.

The pageant opened with "The War Dance" by 12 Indians from Mahnomen county and directed by Mrs. H. P. Phillips.

Following was the "Legend of Gull Rock", the Roseau county offering which was directed by Carol Hagen and Charles Christianson.

A Wilkins county group directed by Myrtle Glasser staged a scene depicting the coming of the first white settlers to that county. The story of the "Old Crossing Treaty in 1863" was told by the Red Lake county delegation under the direction of Supt. J. A. Hughes of Red Lake Falls.

Signing of a treaty with the Sioux in 1862 was described by the Otter Tail county group directed by Neota Silvers and Edson Ellingson of Fergus Falls. Clearwater county reviewed the logging industry in the valley with a cast under the direction of Mrs. George Erickson of Bagley.

The Hudson Bay company of Winnipeg played a prominent part in Kittson county's offering which described an old trading post. The production was directed by Prof. E. B. Herseth. Clay county staged "Gayeties of 1880" with Floyd McDunn as director.

Fishers Landing and the coming of the Railroad" was Marshall county's offering which was directed by Mrs. J. H. Rosendahl of Warren. The part played by the early churches of the valley was told in the offering by Pennington county under the direction of Prof. Arnold E. Carlson of Thief River Falls and Paul Bogen of Twin Valley was in charge of Norman county's "Red River Valley Industries".

Becker county's scene was devoted to "Recreation in the Red River Valley" with Mrs. W. A. Nebeling of Detroit Lakes in charge. Polk county told of the valley's place in defense of the nation.

Rydeen-Den Boer Firm Submits Bid in Amount of $36,766

Following the opening of bids Monday in Washington, D. C., on the general contract for the construction of the new postoffice in Thief River Falls, announcement was made by federal officials Tuesday that the low bid of $36,766 had been submitted by Rydeen-Den Boer, Inc., of St. Paul. There were 18 bidders.

Inasmuch as the amount of the bid is well below the allotment of $47,000 for the local project, it is expected that the St. Paul firm's bid will be accepted.

Washington dispatches indicate that the figure of $36,766 provides for the use of face brick with stone trim in erecting the structure, inasmuch as an alternative bid of $35,616 was based on the use of common red brick.

[illegible]attland Rules Against Co[illegible]nty in Salary Action

Issues Order Fixing Salary of Co. Attorney Berve at $1,500 for Term

A decision by District Judge M. A. Brattland was filed late last week with Clerk of Court Adolf Eklund fixing the salary of H. O. Berve as county attorney at $1,500 a year for the four-year term to which he was elected in November.

The ruling followed a hearing held in district court here January 30 after Mr. Berve had appealed from the action of the county board at its first meeting of the year in reducing the salary of the office from $1,500 to $1,200 following his expressed unwillingness to handle rentals of tax delinquent lands in the county as had been done by his predecessor, Paul Lundgren.

In handing down his decision Judge Brattland cited a gradual increase in criminal work handled by the office, and said there is no indication of a decline in view of the return of the legalized sale of liquor and the increase in automobile casualties. The regular duties of the office, the court held, should not be made secondary to purely clerical and administrative duties sought to be placed in the county attorney's office.

Mr. Berve said this week that he was satisfied with the court's order. "That is all I expected or wanted" he said. "If the board had left the salary alone there would have been no difficulty".

Figures assembled by parties to the action reveal that in Red Lake county the county attorney is paid $1,500; Clearwater, $1,365; Marshall, $2,100; Roseau, $1,500; Kittson, $1,300; Polk, $2,000; and Lake of the Woods, $1,000.

FOWLER NAMED ON GROUP TO ACT ON RELIEF SITUATION

Appointed by Zimmerman to Plan Contributions by Counties

County Auditor Harry Fowler returned last Thursday from St. Paul where, with officials from other counties, he conferred with L. P. Zimmerman, acting relief administrator for Minnesota, regarding problems connected with the handling of relief in the state during the remainder of the year.

Pennington county, he said, has been tentatively placed in the second highest of five classifications as to financial standing.

Mr. Zimmerman informed the officials that present plans call for a contribution of $10,000,000 by the federal government for relief purposes in Minnesota, to which the state is asked to add $5,000,000 and the counties $5,000,000. Of the counties' share Hennepin, Ramsey and St. Louis counties are expected to contribute a total of $3,700,000. Mr. Fowler will attend a meeting of his committee in St. Paul Saturday.

FRANCES E. WILLARD MEMORIAL PLANNED

Minnesota W.C.T.U. groups will join with others throughout the country in observing February 17, the anniversary of the late Frances E. Willard, temperance leader and founder of the W.C.T.U. Public meetings will be arranged and contributions taken to be sent to the national W.C.T.U. for the purchase of literature and for work among Negroes and among children and young people.

February 17 will be observed in Sunday schools with study of the first temperance lesson of the year. Plans for alcohol education in the Sunday schools of the state have been sent out by Mrs. Annie M. Ewing of Princeton, state director of religious education for the W.C.T.U.

A resolution has been sent by the first district W.C.T.U. to Senator Morris Shepard commending his speech January 16 before the senate. The district has recommended to the state legislative board that the Minnesota W.C.T.U. work for a measure making the seller of liquor responsible for damages resulting from the sale of liquor. The W.C.T.U. will work for passage of the bill introduced in the United States senate by Senator Arthur Capper, banning liquor advertisements in any state where such advertising is unlawful.

ONE MAN IN 58 BILLION HOLDS PERFECT HAND

Detroit Lakes—The thrill of a lifetime for bridge players came to A. B. Chrane, Detroit Lakes, when he held a 13-spade hand during the holidays recently. Although Crane's eyes "popped" when he saw his perfect hand, he restrained himself and instead of becoming flustered or fainting, he opened the bidding with 2 spades. His partner came back with another forcing raise of 4 clubs, but Chrane took no chances and jumped to 7 spades. His wife, on his left, doubled, and Chrane, after due deliberation, non-chalantly redoubled, piling up a nice total. It has been recently estimated that there is about 1 chance in 58,000,000,000 of holding the perfect hand, so Chrane may consider himself quite distinguished.

Growing With Your Child

ANSWERING QUESTIONS

Why are the questions that little children ask of such significance? They are by way of being signposts, that give us very worth while information. First of all, they indicate that the child is coming to have some command of language, that he is acquiring a vocabulary of words with which to make his thoughts and wishes known to those around him. This in itself is no mean achievement, although it comes about so naturally and simply that we think little of it. We take as a matter of course what is really one of the great marvels of the child's early years.

A second thing this free asking of questions indicates is that the child is making a satisfactory adjustment to the people with whom he comes in contact. It means that he is not afraid of them, that he feels confidence in their ability and willingness to explain to him things he wants to know, that he is not afraid of being laughed at or derided, or of being put off impatiently.

And most interesting of all, it shows that he has intelligence. The asking of questions involves thinking, and indicates that the child's brain is developing. So it would be a great calamity, would it not, to have a child whose intelligence was not pushing him into the seeking out of knowledge?

We can be of a good deal of assistance in the flowering of that native intelligence with which the child is endowed. The bright child will ask more questions than the dull one, but we can by our tactics encourage either one to utilize to the best advantage what equipment he has. It would be inadvisable to answer all a child's questions for him. There are all kinds of ways of satisfying him, and of leading him on to further mental effort and exhilaration. Many times a child can be induced to think out the answer to his own question by being asked one in return, or being given just enough information so that he is spurred on to hunt further.

Very often, children can be encouraged to seek answers by direct observation. A child asks, "How can a sheep lie down in the snow without freezing?", and is told about how the curly fleece encloses the warm air around the sheep's body. If it is suggested to him that this same device is worked out in many other instances, we may find him later exclaiming gleefully, "That's why the snow is such a nice, warm blanket, and keeps the roots from being killed by freezing—for it has lots of air holes, too."

Many children who don't care much for reading, because they have not progressed beyond the stage of feeling that it is hard work, grow to enjoy it because of being artfully sent to suitable books to find out about things they very much want to know. One boy who had left school early, because he "couldn't see any use in it", began when he was in his late teens to be a voracious reader, because he found that only in this way could he learn the whole story about the animal life in which he had become so much interested while living in the remote country.

The Agassiz Schoolmasters club will meet Saturday evening at the Lincoln hotel in Red Lake Falls, Supt. Morris Dye, president of the group, announced today. HITS BROAD SIDE OF BARN—AND HIRED MAN

Redwood Falls—Bert Wiggins has proved that he can not only hit the broad side of a barn, but that he can also include his hired man, stationed on the other side of the broad side. Recently Bert took his trusty .16 gauge from its resting place in the hope of shooting a pesky squirrel which had been stealing his seed corn. As he approached the barn, his glove caught in the trigger of the gun, which discharged. As a result of the explosion, there are now a large hole in the barn and several smaller holes in the right thigh of Art Stevens, who was hanging up a harness inside the building.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our son and brother, Orvin, who died two years ago, Feb. 17, 1933.

If time could only erase longings,
And cause our heartaches to cease;
Then would the shadow of mourning
Be quickly turned into glorious peace.

But thanks be to God for guidance and strength
Through life's uncertain tide,
Which ended in the dark vale of death
That ushered our loved one home—ever to abide.

Tho' memories fade away with years,
The one of you, dear, will always be new;
For, Orvin, you are in our hearts,
You are there because we love you.

We think of you up there with Jesus,
And pray to God for mercy and for grace
To be led as our dear Lord wishes
Until He takes us also, to His Heavenly place.

We'll see you some day, Orvin darling,
For we know upon God's Word we can rely
So, we'll again shake hands in greeting,
And until then, Orvin dear,—Goodbye.

—Sadly Missed by Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Trontvet, Norris, Janet, Inga, Gilbert, Pearl and Orville. 7p

SHOVEL MOVES SNOW REMAINS

Two Harbors—A generous hearted citizen of Two Harbors was shoveling the snow from his sidewalk one morning recently when he was accosted by one of the city's unemployed, who offered to complete the job for half a dollar. He turned over the job to his less fortunate brother, who made about two swings and broke the shovel handle. The owner went to the hardware store and spent $1.75 for a new shovel, which he turned over to his erstwhile employee and settled down to read the morning paper. A little later he found both shoveler and shovel gone, and he found the object of his charitable inclinations up the street trying to effect a sale of his shovel.

HELD IN 20 JAILS IN LAST 25 YEARS

Red Wing.— When it comes down to a criminal record, Carl Wilson, alias Walter Johnson, alias William Scott, has a pedigree that would make Al Capone and some of the others green with envy. Wilson (or Johnson or Scott,) who is serving out a 90 day sentence at the county jail in Red Wing for theft of a suitcase from an automobile at Cannon Falls has served time in more than 20 penal institutions during the past 25 years. He has been arrested 30 different times on charges ranging from vagrancy to burglary, and knows just about what every jail in the country looks like. He is a member of the transient camp at Cannon Falls.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Oel Knutson of Houston county, Minnesota; and three brothers, Halvor in Norway, John in Saskatchewan, Canada, and Ole of Grygla. His parents and one brother preceded him in death. He was a member of the local Sons of Norway lodge.

RATE REVISION NECESSARY

A few years ago there may have been justification for the boast that Thief River Falls had reasonable light and power rates. But that was several years ago. At the present time rates for electric service in this city are unreasonably high and far out of line with the cost of such service in other cities of this size.

In recent years private companies serving Minnesota cities have voluntarily reduced their rates. Such reductions having been voluntary, it is reasonable to assume that the companies as well as the consumers benefited by such reductions. Lower rates have encouraged the use of electrical appliances. Ranges, refrigerators, toasters, heaters and a large number of motor driven household accessories have meant not only increased use of electricity but to a large extent the increased use of such appliances has meant an increased demand for power during those hours of the day and night when the companies had large surpluses of power to dispose of. Most of this increased demand has built up the off-the-peak load. And while we have no figures to substantiate our statement, it is reasonable to assume that the reductions in rates actually resulted in increased revenue to the companies.

In order to give some idea of how far Thief River Falls has lagged behind the procession in the matter of rates we present the schedule of rates of the Otter Tail Power Company, one of the large private companies doing business in this state. This schedule applies to all cities of 2,100 or over served by the company, and therefore includes cities even smaller than Thief River Falls.

5 H. P. to 20 H. P. inclusive	50c net per mo. per H. P.
Excess H. P. connected	25c net per mo. per H. P.

A comparison of the above rates with the local schedule leaves little room for argument as to the necessity for immediate revision of our rates. Nor will there be much argument against the desirability of adopting a one-meter system and abolition of the ridiculous meter rent charge. Such necessary changes could probably be made in a comparatively short time and with little difference of opinion as to the details.

Unfortunately, however, rates cannot be revised downward unless at the same time arrangements are made for a more adequate supply of power. Present peak-load demand is dangerously near the maximum available supply. Reduced rates will undoubtedly result in increased demand. It therefore necessarily follows that if we are to have rate reduction we must also have more power equipment. There is the rub. And that is a question the voters will have to decide. But disagreeable as the facts may be it nevertheless is a matter that should be brought to a head speedily in order that if additional equipment is to be purchased the installation can be made in time to take care of next winter's peak. If the purchase of necessary equipment is authorized then a new schedule of reduced rates could probably be put into effect immediately.

Hats off and a round of cheers to Arnold Carlson who found time outside of his regular work as a high school teacher to do a good job of organizing and directing the Pennington County episode of the pageant presented at the Winter Shows last week.

Governor Laffoon of Kentucky has bestowed the honorary title of Colonel on more than three thousand people during his administration. If this thing continues Kentucky will soon definitely establish the mint julep as the national beverage.

Many a large fortune has been built up on a petty larceny idea. A contribution of ten cents each from ten million people makes a millionaire. Which is one good reason for thinking twice before quarters and half dollars are given to organizers for any nation-wide movement. Professional organizers are always willing to capitalize of any idea that has popular appeal. That's how professional organizers make their living.

According to Bess Wilson, one-third of the girls enrolled in the Minneapolis high schools take cooking. The other two-thirds probably figure on getting married.

Before the city buys more power equipment it might be well to investigate carefully the advantages of steam. A steam engine is generally considered more dependable than a combustion engine. And in this country there should be a good market for exhaust steam. Comparative costs of installation and operation would be easily available. It would cost only a little effort to get the facts.

THE COST OF CRIME
(Grand Rapids Herald-Review)

We read, the other day, of a young man who committed a crime. He stole a hundred dollars from his employer. For it he was arrested and went to prison for a term of three years.

Such instances might be multiplied a thousand times over from the records of courts and prisons. A youth does what is wrong and pays for it. For the sake of a few dollars he spends years behind the bars. For every dollar that some have stolen a month of life is spent behind the prison walls. A dollar a month is not good pay.

Some time back we read about the wages of crime. The inmates of a great prison were investigated as to the returns of the life of law violation. Most of them had really gotten nothing from the crimes which they had committed. Those who had earned the most would have had more if they had labored at the lowest wages at the humblest of honest employment.

During the past few years many men have been engaged in the illicit liquor business. They are reputed to have made some money. Maybe they did. But perhaps you have observed what has become of many of those who were once leaders in the underworld. Some of them are in prison. Quite a number have been taken to the morgue with a breast full of slugs.

The wages of sin are very poor.

The burden of the cost of crime falls upon society. The public maintains great forces of men for the protection of society. It builds and maintains prisons. Society may spend thousands of dollars to apprehend, prosecute, imprison and punish that person who steals a hundred dollars.

Those who have made a thoughtful study of the cost of crime in the United States place the amount at 13 billion dollars annually. That is over a hundred dollars for every man, woman and child of the nation.

Think about that cost for a minute. Try to grasp its staggering proportions. Thirteen billion dollars is more than the cost of a year of the World War to the people of the nation. It is double what the depression is costing the government in its efforts to recreate prosperity. Thirteen billion dollars would pay every person in the United States of advanced age an amount which would permit them to spend their declining years in utmost comfort. The cost of crime alone, if applied to proper purposes, would create untold happiness among the people of the United States.

When the government of the United States looks about for things to do, its first attention may be directed to crime, its cost and its prevention. Nothing will add more to the happiness and eventual prosperity of the nation than the elimination of much of the cost of crime that the nation may enjoy the fruits of honorable effort and a liberal government.

CATCHING UP
(Montevideo News)

It takes time for public opinion to catch up with an idea. Congressman Harold Knutson recalls that eight years ago a call was issued to members of congress for a meeting to discuss old age pensions. Only nine members attended.

Congressmen keep closely in touch with the people they represent. If their constituents had been interested in old age pensions eight years ago there would have been four hundred congressmen at that meeting instead of a mere nine. It is different now.

Another slow-moving reform is the one for putting a check on the issuance of tax exempt securities. It now has support among progressives and conservatives alike. Something is likely to come after a long campaign of education. The United States Chamber of Commerce favors a constitutional amendment permitting state and federal governments to share taxation on incomes derived from future issues of securities "made by public authority."

The most popular argument against tax-exempt securities is based on the fact that they are a hiding place for people who have money and want to dodge taxes. There are other reasons that were not so popular in years past; one of them, exemption made it easier for the public to borrow money and get improvements. Having this last reason in mind congress was not in a hurry to change the system; the people who elect congressmen and senators were not demanding the change.

Fourteen years ago the secretary of the treasury, a man named Mellon whose first name was Andrew, recommended to congress that the issuance of tax-exempt securities be discontinued. He called them a grave economic evil for three reasons. They encourage the growth of public indebtedness by making it easier for governments to borrow; they tend to divert capital from productive enterprise; they enable a very large class of capital investments to escape their just share of taxation.

Those were the reasons fourteen years ago; they are just as valid today. In fact they have greater merit. The total of tax-evading money now snugly tucked away in this type of investment in the United States is about fifty billion dollars. It is there because the people have asked for it. No wonder taxes increase for the person whose property and income are out in the open.

In the name of reason, can anyone blame the Legislature for hesitating in the vote on the $10,000,000 relief bill long enough to inquire a bit as to how the money is being spent, when, according to the SERA's own report, over 20 per cent of the money in one county was used for administration, and in other counties, from one-fourth to one-third was so used. A desire to see that relief money is spent for relief is certainly to be commended rather than criticized.—Morris Tribune.

Tariff Group Chairman Urges Resuming Foreign Trade in "U" Address

A great many pigs have been thrown out of work by the policy of Great Britain, which twelve years ago took 30 per cent of America's pork products but today takes only eight or ten per cent, a University of Minnesota audience was told recently by the chairman of the United States Tariff Commission, Robert Lincoln O'Brien.

The gist of his talk was that if we expect other nations to buy from us we must be more liberal in the amounts we purchase from them.

"If the world would permanently buy of us a great deal more than it could sell us, and would ship gold in payment, we might have little occasion to worry," he said, "but the world is trying to play the same game itself. It is shutting off our exports just as rapidly as it finds that it can get along without them.

"Spain has a tariff running as high as 193 per cent on our automobiles. Cotton, usually our greatest single export, running in fifty years to 55 or 60 per cent of our crop, is now seriously in danger. Other countries have gone to producing it and such purchasers as are left in the world, of which Japan is the largest, can make more favorable terms to exchange their products against cotton with other countries, notably India, than they can make with us."

Editor Times:

When a person is drowning he will grab at a straw and so they thought the Pelican Rapids creamery might keep them afloat by jugling figures.

The Pelican Rapids creamery average price paid for butterfat in 1933 was 22.47c, at the end of the year they found they had overpaid .34c per lb. leaving net price 22.13c.

The Thief River Falls creamery average price paid for butterfat in 1933 was 19.28c. Pelican Rapids paid 2.85c over Thief River Falls creamery.

The Fergus Falls creamery average net price paid for butterfat was in 1933 24.05c—T. R. Falls 19.28c, difference 4.77c per lb.

The Sebeca creamery average net price paid for butterfat in 1933 was 23.49c—T. R. Falls, 19.28c, difference 4.21c per lb.

We thank you for questioning our figures. It was just what we aimed at.

The farmers around Sebeca, Fergus Falls and Pelican Rapids have taught us a lesson. They realize that it is their creamery efficiently managed that brings the best return for butterfat.

A cream station can't get a toehold in either of these towns, their creameries pay a price that the cream station can't meet. The manager of one of these independent creameries told us how he came very near loosing his job. The creamery board at one time had a notion to join the Land O' Lakes. He stood pat and told them if you join the Land O'Lakes, I am through. He won out.

In Thief River Falls we have a fine commodious creamery building, built and paid for by a few of the willful under the most adverse conditions, the town full of cream stations and a couple smaller creameries catering to the local trade.

Plenty of competition for butterfat in T. R. Falls; competition they say brings a good price. It is not so. If it was not for that big cooperative creamery down by the Soo track we would have to take whatever they choose to give us. We now want to give you an example. The writer of this drove through Sebeca August 11, 1934, having heard about this creamery I was sufficiently interested to stop and ask a few questions. The cash price that date was 31c. The cash price in T. R. Falls was 26c. January 10, 1935 a group of four was in that same town again. The cash price in that town that date was 35c while the cash price in T. R. Falls was 33c. The Sebeca creamery pays cash for every can of cream that comes in. Cash to all, no monthly. This ought to be enough to open anybodys eyes. Why not a 2,000,000 lb. creamery in Thief River Falls?

We farmers make a mistake in building and supporting too many small creameries. If we centered about a bigger one we would all be better off.

This part of the state is especially well fitted for dairying and mixed farming. Clover and alfalfa grow here better than in most other parts of the state. Our creamery won't be any too big by and by. A little common sense used now should alter the whole situation.

Our creamery board consists of five members, three of whom constitute a majority and can do things against the will of the other two.

What a fine world this would be if the majority were always right. Politically and in other matters. The majority is too often wrong, that is why we are in the mess we are.

We hereby want to place the responsibility with the majority and absolve Mr. Helawenger and Mr. Kaushagen, for they at least showed their willingness to turn down the notorious trade deal.

Yours very truly,

Red River Valley History
By Wm V. Werking

A significant fact associated with the relations of the Chippewa and Sioux is that the latter, although slowly forced from the northern part of the state, managed to cling to the best wild rice beds and were able to exact a tribute from the Chippewa for rice harvested. This arrangement naturally irked the Chippewa and the warfare between the tribes over a long period may be traced largely to this rivalry for control of the wild rice crops. At that time wild rice was a staple food for Indians in the state.

While the story may be familiar to many readers, the manner in which Thief River obtained its name is related here as an essential part of the historical record. The account by R. I. Holcombe is generally accepted as authoritative. This account follows:

"Practically ever after their advent into the country the Chippewa continued to hold northwestern Minnesota against the Sioux. But for a number of years after the Chippewa occupation a camp of ten tepees of Sioux remained on the upper Thief river and succeeded in evading and escaping the guns and tomahawks of their hereditary enemies. The surrounding hunting grounds were so rich and wild rice was so plentiful, that life was easily lived, and they were loth to leave the locality. They built a high embankment of earth around their camp and took every means in their power to conceal themselves from their merciless foes. In hunting they would not discharge guns, because of the loud noise, but used their bows and arrows in killing game.

"At last they were discovered by their relentless enemies. The Crees and Assiniboines of the Pembina and Devil's Lake regions made a treaty with the Yankton and Sisseton Sioux and a short term of peace resulted. During the deliberations at this treaty, the Crees learned of the existence of the isolated Sioux band and the locality of its camp. When the peace period closed, some Crees gave the information to their Chippewa relatives, and the latter, from about Red Lake, soon raised a war party and marched upon the hidden Sioux. A total surprise was made, and after a brave but unavailing defense, the ten lodges, and all their inmates, were totally destroyed. The embankment or breastwork of earth which once surrounded the little Sioux village was plain to be seen in 1852. Warren received his information of this affair from Wa-non-je-quon, then chief of Red Lake, whose father helped destroy the Sioux.

"From the hiding place and secret occupation of the Sioux on the little river, the Chippewa afterward called it Ke-moja-ke Se-be, or Secret Place River; but the French traders and coureurs pronounced Ke-moj a-ke as Ke-mol a-ke, which means stealing. Then the stream began to be called Stealing River and Thief River, and by the latter name it is laid down on Nicollet's map of 1842, and is still so called."

Information concerning the early battles between the tribes is fragmentary. One conflict on Long Prairie river in Todd county is believed to have taken place in 1808. The Sioux involved were Sissetons and Wahpetons from western Minnesota and eastern South Dakota. They had ventured back onto their former rich game preserve. The Chippewa were on their way to attack the Sioux on Rice river. Holcombe says of this battle:

"The fight lasted all day and was very fierce and bloody. At the close only seven unhurt Sioux were left, but they were enough to drive back the Chippewa, because they had guns, furnished them by the Hudson's Bay Company's traders on the Red river. The Chippewa also had some guns, but each party used bows and arrows in addition to their firearms. The Chippewa captured 36 horses (or ponies), but could not learn to manage them, and, after many of them had been crippled by kicks and falls, they finally slaughtered every pony and devoured them. Old Hole-in-the-Day, then a young man, and his elder brother Strong Ground, were among the leaders of the Chippewa in this battle."

The same day a large party of Sioux attacked the Chippewa villages near Pembina. Capt. Alexander Henry, Jr., the explorer, who was at Pembina then, fixes the date of this attack as July 28, 1808. According to Henry, the Chippewa had been carousing and most of the braves were intoxicated. All retreated within the stockade which had been built by Henry. Henry's journal reveals that the Sioux were driven off by two shots from the cohorn, a small cannon. None of the Chippewa was killed and, so far as could be ascertained, none of the Sioux, Henry says. But the historian Warren asserts that the Sioux were defeated with considerable loss."

1,000 DAMS PLANNED FOR WATER RESERVOIRS

To alleviate drouth conditions in numerous sections of Minnesota an elaborate plan for water conservation is proposed for this season with the program to be carried out by the Civilian Conservation Corps. Approximately 1,000 dams will be constructed at strategical points which, when completed, will conserve 35,000,000,000 cubic feet of water.

Surveys are being conducted this winter by the Division of Drainage and Waters of the Minnesota Department of Conservation. Work will be started as early in the spring as weather conditions permit.

Tips for Prospective Buyers of Farms Given

"Suggestions to Purchasers of Farms", is the title of a new University Farm publication, Minnesota Bulletin 290, which tells prospective buyers what to consider and how to proceed in sizing-up a farm and evaluating it for purchase. Authors of the bulletin are W. L. Cavert, former extension economist, now with the Federal Land Bank, St. Paul and G. A. Pond, farm management specialist of the experiment station.

Buying a farm is a momentous transaction in the life of the average farmer, says the bulletin, which emphasizes the human failing of over-valuing poor land. There is no one infallible guide to the value of any particular tract of land. [illegible] are the following: soil maps, condition of ground, crops, kind of crops, financial record of previous operators, amount of livestock carried, opinions of other people such as county agents and neighbors, buildings, location, and amount of [illegible] land.

All of these points are discussed in detail and examples given of methods of evaluating a particular [illegible] may be had free from county [illegible] the Bulletin Office, University Farm, St. Paul.

MINK TRAPPING SEASON CLOSES FEBRUARY 15

Trappers engaged in mink operations have until Friday, February 15, to complete their work as the season closes in Minnesota on that date. Skunks may be legally taken until May 1, the only furbearer given protection for which there is an open season after the closing of the mink season.

Survey of the state relative to the question of an open or closed season on muskrat this spring has not been completed although reports are coming in daily from state game wardens, Charles McFarlane, deputy director of the Division of Game and Fish, said.

Minnesota Farmers Refinance $4,600,000 Debts in Past Month

With $1,655,000 advanced to farmers of Minnesota during the month of January for refinancing debts, in addition to nearly $1,000,000 for other purposes, the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul this week stressed the need for borrowers to pay their installments promptly as they fall due and cited the statement of Commissioner A. S. Goss that "the liberal terms of the loans made under the refinancing program make it much easier for borrowers to meet their obligations than it would be otherwise.

"It is now up to the borrowers to safeguard their credit with the Federal Land Bank and the Land Bank Commissioner by meeting their obligations as promptly as possible", said President Roy A. Nelson. "We have an extensive cooperative land banking system to preserve, the permanence of which undeniably rests on the way the borrowers meet their obligations. It should be realized that the Commissioner's loans are similar to land bank loans in this—that they are not gifts, doles or subsidies, but business loans, made with every expectation that they will be repaid."

Central Co-op. Assn. Holds 14th Annual Meeting in St. Paul

On Tuesday and Wednesday, February 12 and 13, livestock producers of the Northwest met at the Lowry Hotel in St. Paul to attend the 14th annual convention of the Central Cooperative Association, farmer-owned livestock selling agency, which has been in business in So. St. Paul since 1921. Fully one thousand stockholders delegates attended this two-day meeting where the 1934 business activities of the Central Cooperative Association were reviewed and the program and policies of the coming year discussed.

Under the leadership of C. H. Crandall, president, stockholders of the Central Cooperative Association have been convinced of the merits of a sound cooperative marketing program, which has saved them nearly one and one-half million dollars in actual cash dividends and refunds since the Central started at So. St. Paul.

In his opening address, Mr. Crandall pointed out that "cooperatives are frequently confronted with obstacles and discouragements, but no obstacle is too great to overcome if farmers continue to put forth their undivided cooperative effort."

"Corporation does not fail," Mr. Crandall declared. "It is the lack of cooperation that fails. If the farmers of the Northwest want to make the farming business a big, unified, permanent and dependably profitable business, cooperation will do it if applied in the right way."

LAND ACQUISITION PLAN TAKES CONZET TO CAPITOL

Federal and state programs for land acquisition were discussed in Washington last week with Grover Conzet, Director of the Division of Forestry and Fire Prevention, conferring with federal forestry officials. While in Washington, Mr. Conzet delivered a paper before the annual meeting of the Society of American Foresters relative to Minnesota's program of land acquisition. Members of the Minnesota Conservation Commission are keenly interested in both the state and federal programs designed to increase potential forest areas. Federal land purchases are being made to enlarge Minnesota's two national forests, the Superior and the Chippewa, and the state program calls for purchases of land within present state forests.

AND THEY WATCHED THE TRAIN GO BY!

Browns Valley—Big Stone county almost lost its new county attorney, and Browns Valley a citizen, when Cliff Benson, Ortonville, and Harry Kieserling found themselves stalled in the snow on a railroad track with the Empire Builder bearing down on them at [illegible] per. Snow blocked Benson's car just as he approached the railroad tracks, but he made a try for it anyway. The car made the first bank of snow, but landed squarely in the second one, leaving the car squarely on the tracks. Down the tracks came the Empire Builder, making up for lost time, and Benson and Kieserling shut their eyes and waited for the crash. Luckily, the flyer came down the track a few feet away, missing the stalled car by inches, but it was a long moment before the two men realized that nothing had happened to themselves and their car.

RECORD CROWDS ATTEND WINTER SHOW LAST WEEK

Favorable Weather Attracts Total of 12,000 Persons to Crookston

Reflecting the advance toward prosperity made by many counties of the Red River Valley during the past year, the 1935 Northwest School Farmers' Week and Red River Valley Winter Shows held in Crookston last week were the most successful ever held from the standpoint of valley-wide cooperation, attendance and general interest combined.

Favored mild weather and clear roads, nearly twelve thousand people attended the shows and meetings during the course of the week. The management and exhibitors alike were unusually well pleased with the outcome. Many of the exhibitors have spoken ahead for space at the 1936 shows, which will be held February 3 to 7 next year, according to an announcement by the Winter Shows Board of Managers.

New and outstanding among the events of the week were the recognition of the 27 constructive dairy and general livestock breeders from thirteen Red River Valley counties who have contributed greatly to the development of the livestock industry of this region. A second event of unusual importance was the presentation of a spectacular and highly educational pageant depicting the history and development of the Red River Valley. This pageant was made possible through the cooperation of commercial clubs, county commissioners, and other organizations in the various Red River Valley counties, who financed the county production. The success of the pageant was also due in large measure to the cooperation of about 250 people who constituted the county casts.

As a result of the interest aroused by the pageant, a committee representing county historical societies of the Red River Valley was set up at the Winter Shows to organize a valley-wide historical society. Members of this committee are A. A. Dowell, superintendent of the Northwest School at Crookston; H. C. Nordlie of Moorhead, president of the Clay county historical society, and E. E. Billberg of Roseau, president of the Roseau county historical society. As an initial step, this committee will work with local groups in the interest of organizing county historical societies.

Among the talks of the week which valley people will long remember were those of Dr. George Mecklenburg of Minneapolis, on his impressions of the people of Oriental countries during a recent journey around the world; a talk on Crime prevention and correction by Edwin L. Lindell of St. Paul, secretary of the Minnesota Law and Order League, and Dr. A. A. Dowell's report of the recent investigation of direct livestock marketing which he assisted the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in conducting last year. This report has attracted nation-wide attention.

In the annual livestock and crops judging contests for students of sub-collegiate schools of agriculture held in connection with the Northwest School Farmers' Week and Red River Valley Winter Shows, teams representing the Northwest School at Crookston won championship. This double victory is only the second won by any one school in one year since these contests were organized ten years ago.

COW PLAYS MOTHER TO ONE OF SISTER'S TWINS

Marshall.—If cows could bring alienation of affection suits against sister kin, the chances are that one belonging to Gust Reiter, who lives near Garvin, would surely go to court. The situation as it now stands is this: Cow No. 1 had a calf in the beginning of January, and it died. Cow No. 2 gave birth to twin calves January 26, a heifer and a bull. So what is No. 1 cow trying to do but steal the affections of one of the twins belonging to No. 2 cow, her sister. At any rate, she feeds it and licks it and has a general good time mothering it. The real mother doesn't seem to be jealous, having plenty of trouble taking care of the other twin.

Tax Saving on Reduced License Fee Nine Cents a Week, Elsberg States

If the reduced automobile license fees of the past two years are continued by the legislature, the average motorist will save nine and six tenths cents a week according to a statement by N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner.

"If this saving is more important to the people as a whole than providing a $14,000,000 highway employment program at a cost to the state of only $7,000,00, then the reduced fees should be continued", Mr. Elsberg said.

"If an employment program offering jobs for between 14,00 and 15,000 men in all the counties, financed half of federal funds, is more important than the $5 a year saving to the motorist, then the normal license fees of 1932 should be restored.

This is the whole problem before the legislature, which way the decision goes is not vitally important to the highway department. The department will have plenty to do in maintaining the enlarged system if we do not match the federal aid of $7,000,000 offered us. The only difference will be that men who would have jobs if we match the money will be on the relief if we don't".

NEW EDUCATION BILL INTRODUCED BY HOUSE GROUP

Seeks Increase of $11,400,000 in Present Total of State Aid

Much needed relief for the schools and the taxpayers of the state is promised in the bill introduced in the State Legislature by the House committee on education. Its supporters declare the bill would tend to equalize educational opportunities for all children in the state.

This bill, known as H. F. 382, would increase the amount of state aid by $11,400,000, or an average increase of 12 cents a day per pupil. It would be distributed on a basis of aggregate attendance. Sponsors of the bill declare that this amount would raise the state's contribution to local districts for the support of the schools to about one-half their cost, the other half approximating $25,000,000 to be raised by local taxes.

MANY TAX BILLS TO WORRY SOLONS IN LEGISLATURE

Face Problem of Providing Ample Funds for Needed Expenditures

Many bills relating to taxation, over 100, likely will be thrown into the legislative hopper. It is quite confusing to the average citizen, and is leaving the legislator in a daze. Stated briefly, the legislature is confronted with the problem of giving some tax reductions; of providing relief for unemployed; of meeting a deficit of some ten million dollars; of adopting a scientific method of keeping future levies under control; and of finding some new sources of revenue to replace whatever reductions are made in the burden on general property, and all this while carrying on the functions of the state, according to a statement from the Minnesota Taxpayers Association.

Two years ago, the state income tax was put into effect, and this yields about two million dollars a year, which is allocated to schools. A chain store tax was then established which has brought in about $600,000 in the two-year period.

At the special session a year ago, new liquor taxes were adopted. These yield better than three million a year, which is used for public relief, with indications that it will continue to go for that purpose.

The state is still very much short of revenue, and there are many other new taxes proposed at this session.

A bill offered by Senator George H. Sullivan would prevent the state from levying against general property. This would force the state to get its entire revenue from other sources, and would take about 11 mills off real property.

This change, however, would necessitate the state inaugurating strict economies, and perhaps supplementing its revenues. But it would institute one tax reform, since it would leave local property valuations strictly to local tax-levying boards.

"It would, in effect, give local people more opportunity to regulate their own taxes. Although local government should be given exclusive of its own taxable valuations, which is fundamentally sound, these units should also be subject to certain checks and balances that would promote more local scrutiny on the part of local citizens. The closer government is to the home, the safer it is. And the more it becomes the citizen's business, the more it will serve the citizen, and at lower cost," J. P. McDonnell, president of the Association, stated.

VILLAGE TANK FREEZES SKATERS GET BREAK

Wabasso.—It's an ill wind, they say that blows no good. Wabasso youngsters and others who enjoy skating found a practical application of the old proverb recently. Due to the poor condition of the city pump, ice has formed in the water tower and it must be drained. The water will be used for a skating rink on ground just south of the school building.

LEGISLATIVE LETTER

By R. W. Hitchcock

Even this sixth week of the Legislative session is too early to appraise the probable extent of the investigations launched by the Legislature of 1935.

The administration is jumpy about all investigations. Governor Olson devoted an entire column to an argument that all investigations are political. He distinguished between investigations and inquiries. An investigation, he apparently thinks, is something that the other fellow starts, and is necessarily biased; an inquiry is a probe that you run yourself and that, of course, is absolutely simon pure and impartial. A week or more after he had inveighed against all "investigations", however, the Governor announced that he welcomed an investigation into the doings of the Department of Education.

Last week Lieutenant Governor Peterson got all hot and bothered about the Senate departmental investigation. He feared there might be some politics in it. "If we've got to have it," he grudgingly remarked, "let it be for the good of the citizens and taxpayers rather than for a political party."

Most investigations are animated by some political considerations and most investigations are opposed for political reasons. But through investigations the people get definite information in place of gossip and rumors.

Public officials ought not to object to being investigated, but they very often do.

The highway investigation of 1933 was strenuously objected to by Governor Olson and violently opposed by leaders of the Farmer-Labor party. It may have been inspired by political motives, but it uncovered the fact that a deliberate attempt was being made by public officials and contractors to mulct the people of the state of some $4,000,000. The plot was exposed, the attempt failed, and contractors who had profited from the plot were compelled by the courts to return $400,000 to the taxpayers of the state.

Relief Facts at Last

It is well known that the federal government poured millions of money into Minnesota in 1934 and that the state and the counties contributed other millions—all for relief. Although rumors flew thick and fast, little or nothing could be learned about the relief administration headed by Governor Olson.

Investigation of relief has been resisted from Farmer-Labor sources, one argument being that it was impossible for the state to investigate the federal activities. "It's just a waste of money; they won't tell you a thing," the opposition said.

Senate and House committees, sitting jointly, went at it, however, and found L. P. Zimmerman, acting state administrator of relief, a frank and willing witness, responding so freely to all questions that Senator Carley, chairman of the committee, complimented him upon his co-operation.

Some facts from Mr. Zimmerman's first testimony about which the people of Minnesota have long been curious: The SERA has 1800 employees in St. Paul and 1200 field workers throughout the state; there are 8800 transients being cared for, 4300 permanently in twenty transient camps; the federal government has criticised the state relief administration for being too liberal; Governor Olson and his SERA set-up ousted the Board of Control from all active management of relief on July 1st, 1934; at that time there were 1200 administration and field workers in SERA, now there are 2500; Steele is the only county in the state not in the SERA set-up, it administers its own relief; some southern Minnesota counties have been compelled to come into the state-federal set-up against their will. Many additional facts, which have heretofore been a closed book to the people of the state, have been disclosed by the investigation, and relayed to the public by the press.

Broke Up the Party

Hot air is a notable by-product of law-making. Wearisome and aimless debate marks many sessions of the House and Senate.

Usually new members content themselves to feel their way slowly to a point of experience where they feel sure of their ground. In the Legislature of 1935, however, there are an exceptional number of new members of outstanding ability and more oratory is being heard from new members than for many years.

The nomination of favorite sons for the eight vacancies on the Board of Regents of the state university last week proved a field day for fulsome praises. Veteran members unlimbered their heavy oratorical artillery, but it very soon became evident that they were being pressed for honors by the new comers. McKinnon of Hennepin, Rustaloeja of Meeker, Cashman of Steele, and Oliver of Big Stone, all new members, early put on a parade of eloquence, only to be hotly pressed by other new members, Havemeier of Brown, Almen of Lyon and Tungseth, of Pennington, both silvery of tongue, White, J. J. of Kanabec, he of the booming voice, Hayford and Tigue of Hennepin. These boys can talk and are not afraid to speak up.

The oratorical barrage continued for hours until the galleries began to fear that every one of the 198 Solons had something in him struggling for utterance.

Patrick Farnand, Senator from St. Louis, then got to his feet. "I rise to say," he boomed, "that I am not going to make a speech and I hope the rest of you do the same." That broke up the talkfest and the joint convention got busy at the long and involved task of recording the votes of 198 members for their varying choices from a field of sixteen candidates.

A Boss Who Refuses to Boss

An outstanding figure in the House and in the entire Legislature is Representative Roy Dunn of Otter Tail. To him, more than any other member, is due the triumph of the Independent-Progressive organization. He began two years ago, traveling all over the state, brought out candidates, helped them to win and organized them into a fighting block. He's boss of the House, but he refuses to do any bossing.

Dunn lives on the old farmstead near Pelican Rapids, Otter Tail county, and still farms it. It is located on the shores of one of Minnesota's most beautiful lakes, Lake Lizzie. There Mr. and Mrs. Dunn have built a California villa of Spanish design and established one of the most popular and substantial resorts of the state.

Roy Dunn is not a political porch climber. He might have been Speaker of the House this year, but he refused to be a candidate or to accept the place. All that he has done, and is doing, is solely from his desire to promote the cause of good government. Because he has displayed rare abilities as an organizer he has been and he often will be denounced as a "reactionary". But he is just a good citizen with no interest whatever but the promotion of the general welfare. Even his opponents know him for exactly that, no matter what political names they may call him for political purposes.

It is fifteen years since Minnesota voted a bonus for Minnesota veterans of the World War, but bonus bills pour into the present Legislature in almost unprecedented numbers. A total of 117 bonus bills have been introduced up to February 1st—pretty good for a legislative month that was two weeks short on the front end. Thus far Minnesota has paid its soldier boys of the World War $23,474,111.51, and of the Spanish American War $987,940.00, a total of almost $25,000,000.00.

George Erickson, Two Harbors city gas department employee, found a leak in the mains with the aid of a lighted match recently, picking himself up from a snowbank 50 feet away, uninjured.

Criminology Research

Cesare Lombroso, famous criminologist of the late Nineteenth century, founded criminology as an independent subject of research. The study of crime is conditioned by the difficulty in gathering significant statistics, the changing concepts of crime and the fact that each country decides for itself of what crime consists. Social, environmental and individual influences are very complex, and criminologists do not consider their results conclusive.

PLUMMER

WARREN DEFEATED IN OVERTIME BATTLE

Plummer high school defeated the Warren team Friday night in an overtime game, 25-24. The game was close with Plummer holding the lead for the larger part of the game. With the game drawing to a close, Warren spurted and gained a one-point lead. With less than thirty seconds to go Langlie scored a long shot for Plummer and apparently sewed up the game for the locals. Just as the final whistle blew, a double foul was called and Bossman of Warren netted his chance from the foul line and Karlstad of Plummer missed his to leave the score tied at the end of the regular playing time. Karlstad made up for his missed opportunity in the overtime period by scoring two field goals in rapid succession and putting the game on ice for the local lads. The local boys only made good on two of their eleven opportunities from the free throw line while Warren cashed in on six out of nine. A large and enthusiastic crowd witnessed the fastest and closest game ever seen on the local floor.

Next Saturday nite the high school will make its final appearance on the home floor for this season. It will mark the culmination of the high school careers of two of Plummer's basketball greats. Leland LaVoi, captain for the last three years has made four letters in basketball and made a name for himself as an outstanding guard and leader on the floor. He will lead the team on to the local floor for the last time. Arnie Karlstad is also playing his last year for Plummer High. Arnie has been an outstanding player for the last four years. For the last two years he has been rated as the outstanding defensive center in the district and always accounts for more than his share of the points.

St. Hilaire will return for another game on the local floor and will bring along their junior high team to battle the local junior high team, who are determined to average the defeat handed them two weeks ago. Following the St. Hilaire game on Saturday the high school will hold a dancing party in the hall.

Declamation Contest Held

The Plummer High School held its local declamation contest in the high school assembly on Tuesday evening. Juanita Ripple won in the dramatic division, Arnie Karlstad in the oratory, and Margaret Saum in the humorous. There were seven contestants for the three places and the competition was keen. The other entrants were June Norby in the humorous, Florence Kreuger and Irene Baum in the dramatic, and Willard Tervo in oratory.

Due to the fact that many events are crowded into the next two weeks, it was decided to postpone P. T. A. meeting for the month.

The sub-district Declamatory Contest will take place on February 19th at the Plummer Village Hall. The following schools will take part: St. Hilaire, Goodridge, Red Lake Falls, and Plummer. The contest is divided into three parts, Oratorical, humorous and dramatic. Each school will send three representatives, one for each section. The winners of the sub-district contest will take part in the District Contest which will be held later in the month at East Grand Forks.

M. W. A. LOSE TWO—WIN ONE

The local M. W. A. basketball team had a busy week-end. Monday night they entertained Fosston on the local floor and dropped a close game 32-20. Plummer held the lead during most of the game, only to drop behind in the last quarter and then to challenge again in the closing minutes. Wilson was the outstanding man for Fosston.

On Sunday afternoon the team journeyed to Oklee and dropped another league game to the Oklee team. Oklee played a stubborn defensive battle and the locals were unable to get through for their usual number of shots at the basket. The score was close throughout the game with Oklee holding a small margin during the major portion of the game. The final score was 28-26.

On Saturday night the locals entertained Strandquist and defeated them 28-22. The game was fast and hard fought. Plummer took the lead early in the game and held it until the last quarter. Strandquist tied the score and then Plummer spurted to finish with a six-point margin.

On Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 23 and 24, the local M. W. A. lodge will be hosts to the SERA basketball tournament. It has not been definitely decided as to which teams will compete but Oklee, Erskine, Fosston, and Plummer will be among those represented. Jimmy Sexton of Strandquist has been engaged to officiate. A dance is planned following the games on Saturday night and a large crowd is expected.

LOCAL QUINT TO PLAY AT EAST GRAND FORKS

Little Green Waves Will Play Prowlers on Former's Court, Feb. 15

Tomorrow evening the hard working Prowlers travel to East Grand Forks for a return game with the Little Green Wave. The Prowlers are favored to win this game but will be somewhat hindered by the fact that this will be their second game of the week. The first being with Twin Valley.

The East Siders have shown great improvement over the form they showed here three weeks ago when they lost by a score of 46 to 19. Last week they beat a great Grand Forks Central team 23-17. This team handed the Prowlers their only loss of the season earlier in the year. Last week the Wave turned in a strong performance to defeat a strong Bemidji team 30 to 19. They did this in the absence of one of the co-captian twins, Gerald Raymond. When he returns the team will be stronger than ever. Coach Reed is expected to start George and Gerald Raymond at forwards, Sundeen at center, and Peterson and Kimblin at guards. However, if Gerald Raymond is unable to start, Rude will be the other starting forward.

The Prowler's hopes will be somewhat bolstered by the fact that Don Hermanson, star forward, will be back in uniform for this game. He has been out for the last four games. Coach Dooley is expected to start his two star forwards Micklason and Nicholson, Van Pelt at center, with Kielty and Lee or Berg at guards.

—Don Olson

VOX MAGISTRI

Long, long ago when I was very young the story of the cruel woman who had a lovely step-daughter was particularly fascinating to me. I would be pleasurably horrified when the cruel stepmother sent the poor girl out in a blinding storm to pick strawberries in January. In those days of miracles "Its June in January," but in those days there were fairies—the girl got her strawberries. In due time the fairies provided her with a rare gift. Whenever she opened her lips to speak, glowing rubies, cloudy opals, iridescent diamonds, shimmering pearls, and golden rings tumbled out in a sparkling cascade. The envious step-mother then sent her own daughter to seek a gift from the fairies. The gift was appalling. Out of her mouth leaped toads, slipped snakes and slided lizards! I used to think it was a fairy story. Now it occurs to me that the unfortunate girl has many counterparts in the students of Lincoln High School. O, no, not ugly creeping things drop from their youthful lips, but ugly speech. Can it be that some bad fairy is responsible for such atrocities as: so much"? Or can't it be that Mr. Boy and Miss Girl are too complacent to realize that there is room for personal improvement?

Children learn to speak in simple sentences, such as—I see a cow. Isn't she pretty? She can run. By high school age they have progressed. No, retrogrades so that they speak thus— Lamp the brute. Ain't she a peach? And, baby, can she step? To me that indicates a woeful neglect of opportunity. Maybe a student works exercise 42, page 80, and sighs with relief to think that he has completed all of his English assignment. But there is a fallacy in his reasoning. The English assignment is never finished; it is not for Monday or Friday—it is for life. No one is going to know whether a boy studied his "rule o'3" faithfully, but the minute he opens his mouth and the insidious "snakes" of the language world, "AINT, THIS HERE, and SURE, tumble out no one will doubt if he didn't study his English.

Students who fail to make the best use of their education act as stumbling blocks to others. No one will gainsay that measles is extremely catching, but not more so than slovently habits of speech. Witness the sad case of Obadiah Pike, a tutor. A cultured wealthy man, continually being annoyed and disappointed by the vulgar English his son used, hired a tutor, and sent the boy and tutor to a mountain cottage.

"Now, see that he talks to no one but you. Perhaps at the end of six months of constant association with one whose speech is as fine as yours he may improve."

"Thank you, sir, I shall do my best."

At the end of six months, the eager father met the tutor.

"Well, did you have a pleasant time?"

Says the tutor, "Ya darn tootin' we did!"

To make fluent and good speech a habit takes time and effort and unrelenting watchfulness. To every student who takes pride in achievement it is a challenge. There's no better time to accept that challenge than in school. A busy world won't stop to bring anyone up to standard; it will pass him by. But no teacher, be he as great as Aristotle, can ever improve your speech, Mr. Boy and Miss Girl, unless you want it improved. The gauntlet is down. Will you take it up? Then the war against poor English is well begun.

—Victoria Edberg.

SENIORS TO HAVE ANNUAL BOOK

Preparations Being Made for Publishing Prowler

At a meeting held by the Senior class on Tuesday, the 12th, to decide what they were going to do about a Prowler this year, nothing definite was accomplished. However, it was suggested that this year full-sized pictures of the Seniors be published instead of the ping-pong pictures previously used. However, since this is impossible without the cooperation of the entire Senior class, a meeting was to be held on Wednesday to determine how many Seniors are willing to have full-sized pictures taken. It was also established that for financial reasons, the Prowler will not be so complete as in pre-depression years, but it will be superior to the Senior year book published last year.

Girls Enjoy Skating; Athletic Ass'n. Announced

"Whee! Ooo, I'm afraid I'll fall!" Well that's just what happened, some of them fell. For the ice was rather glassy last Tuesday and Wednesday when girls' gym classes went skating. From reports of the girls, it was lots of fun although some of them didn't have skates and were confined to the watch.

Miss Peirson has also announced the Girls' Athletic Association for this year. It has no secretary as yet, but slips on which you record the number of hours out are available at the gym. Now just watch some of the ambitious and outdoor girls gain points for "L's" and numerals!

MY MESSENGER OF CHEER

It was a crispy-cold morning in early January. With a heavy heart, downcast eyes, and a scowl across my forehead, I sauntered aimlessly to the east window. Every morning for the past two months, I had looked out over that never-changing, blank expanse of snow. How dull and meaningless it all seemed! My gaze swept mechanically from one white mound to another. But what was this! My eyes opened wide, the wrinkles on my brow vanished, and a wave of joy surged over my heart.

Something had happened to the old elm tree that stood outside my window. On every branch there lay a thick coat of downy frost, which sparkled with a dazzling brightness as the beams of sunlight danced gayly from one crystal to another. In my mind's eye, the old elm had been magically transformed into a beautiful lady wrapped in sable robes, which were set with sparkling gems. She stood as if she were spell-bound by the enchanting gaze of the sun. As he smiled down on her upturned face, her whole being was deluged with delight—a delight so intense that it cast a veil of shimmering gauze over her already lustrous cloak. Jewels from her garments fell in heaps at her feet; yet her robes lost none of their splendor. With one snow-white arm she waved a glad good-morning to her sun-god! with the other she beckoned to me. I found her joy reflected in my soul. She had taught me that beauty and happiness can be found wherever they are sought.

Genevieve Mangnell.

ETIQUETTE CORNER

We're expected, as high school students, to know how to treat our teachers and fellow-students and also what to expect in return. While in school it cannot be expected that the teachers think of us as such prodigies as we appear in the eyes of our parents.

When we were younger, many of us regarded our teachers as our natural enemies and lessons as cruel inflictions which were to be dodged as much as possible. We should by this time have outgrown that silly idea. Teachers are really human beings (and can be a bit of fun at times), and if we neglect our studies the loss will be ours, not theirs.

When in the assembly, if the teacher in charge seems cross, why if we were in her place, I bet we couldn't maintain half the discipline necessary, so in all fairness, we should submit good humoredly to the rules which we know are necessary.

BOYS CONTINUE INTERCLASS PLAY

Week Is Marked by Several Interesting Games

Interclass basketball got off to a flying start last week when the Junior A team played the Sophomore B's on Monday. Even though the Juniors played only four men through the entire game, they defeated the Sophomores by a score of 56-19. Both teams played a rough game although the Sophomores fouled quite a bit more than the Juniors. Three men were put out of the game on the Soph team for fouling while none were taken out on the Junior team. Lorentson and Gunderson were high men for the Juniors and Carlson, for the Sophs.

The other game on Monday between the Juniors C's and the Frosh B's was more evenly matched. The final score was 13-11, with the Juniors victorious. The Freshmen had the lead through most of the game and they had a three point lead in the final two minutes of play. Then Prota made a foul shot and about twenty seconds before the final whistle, put in a field goal, thus tying the score. The game then went into a two-minute overtime, in which Jaranson made a field goal, ending the game. Prota was high man for the Juniors, and Dicken for the Frosh.

On Thursday, the Soph C's played the Frosh C's. The Frosh were victorious by a score of 21-19. Michalsky was high man for the Freshmen and Christofferson for the Sophomores.

The other game on Thursday between the Junior B's and the Soph B's ended with the Sophomores winning by a score of 20-14. Kelly and Prichard were high for the Sophs and Larson for the Juniors.

On Friday, the Freshman "A" team played the Junior C team. At the end of the first quarter the score was a tie, 4-4. At the end of the first half the Freshmen led by a score of 18-6. The end of the third quarter found the Frosh ahead with a score of 24-8. The final score of the game was 27-16, with the Freshmen victors. Lorentson was high man for the Freshmen, and Sandland for the Juniors.

MORS DUCIS MAGNI

Nation quivered on the brink of self-annihilation,
Battlefields were red with human blood
Where men had fought and slain their brethren,
Crude crosses marked the graves of the Blue and the Gray.

The savior of a race dwelt in the White House
When the sword bowed low to the olive branch.
A nation looked to the pilot at its helm,
But Death swept wide his mythical scythe
And America mourned its greatest American.

PROWLERS WHIP TWIN VALLEY BY 37-15 SCORE TUES.

Audience Witnesses Fast Game Tuesday Night as Prowlers Win

Last Tuesday evening, in the cleanest of all home games, the Prowlers defeated the Twin Valley quintet 37 to 15. The Prowlers took the lead on the tip-off and held it through the whole game. Despite the defeat, Twin Valley has a team that will come back strong in the tournaments and will probably meet the Prowlers again in the Regional meet should each be successful in the district contests.

Mickelson took the ball on the tip-off and gave the Prowlers the first field goal. Van Pelt fouled Robert Lee (Twin Valley) and the gift shot was made. Lindback fouled Van Pelt and the shot was also made. Nicholson sunk a long side shot and the Prowlers called time out.

With the game resumed, Hermanson fouled Sande, who made one of his free throws. Nicholson and Hermanson each made a field goal and the quarter ended 9 to 2, Twin Valley scoring only on gift shots.

Van Pelt again fouled Robert Lee and again the shot was good. Hermanson and Sande each made a field goal and Carl Lee (Thief River Falls) dropped in two free throws. Robert Lee made a beautiful shot from the corner. Berg converted from the foul line, and Carl Lee sunk a field goal as the half ended with the Prowlers leading 18 to 9.

Lee, of Twin Valley, bagged a field goal and Berg followed suit. Helberg and Lee each made a field goal for Twin Valley, but Nicholson, Van Pelt and Mickelson each scored from the floor for the Prowlers. By making three free throws without a miss, Nicholson has now shown that he can't miss free throws forever. Van Pelt and Nicholson each bagged a field goal. Hermanson and Jung duplicated these acts and the game ended with the Prowlers again conquerors by a 37-15 score.

Nicholson was the chief scorer for the Prowlers with his four field goals and three free shots. Hermanson, in his first game in several weeks, was a close second with four field goals to his credit. Robert Lee was the main scoring threat for the Twin Valley quintet, scoring three shots from the floor and two from the foul line. Sande was next with two field goals and a gift shot.

HERE AND THERE

The students of the Teacher Training Department have been practice teaching in the Central school for the past week.

Miss Elizabeth Jorde visited the department last Friday and Miss Ivanette Thyren visited last Tuesday.

To help down the stocking bills of high school girls and furnish a mending kit, the Home Economics I students have each donated 1c for a box and all the accessories needed. This box contains scissors, pins, needles, thread, mending silk and fingernail polish (to stop runs not for manicures). Anyone is welcome to use this box.

The girls in Miss Fletcher's cooking class are planning a week's menu for summer camping, applying methods they have already learned.

A practical test on main hot dishes was given last week.

The sewing class are completing their seam samplers which will prepare them for beginning their cotton garments.

PROWLERS DEFEAT CROOKSTON QUINT BY SCORE OF 31-24

Lee and Mickelson Are Outstanding for Locals; Pantzer for Pirates

A large crowd Friday saw the mighty Prowlers turn back the Pirates of Crookston High 31 to 24. The game was a thriller from start to finish and was a good example of what is likely to be seen at the district tournament early in March.

Crookston started fast and worked the ball down under the basket where Pantzer started the scoring with a field goal. Wentzel was then fouled by Kielty and later by Van Pelt but he missed both of his shots. Nicholson then put the Prowlers in the scoring with a free throw. Jenkins balanced this after being fouled by Nicholson. Lee then tied the score at three all with a beautiful long shot. Jenkins and Pantzer gave the Pirates a 6 to 3 lead as the quarter ended. After Barnes had made a free throw Lee, Mickleson, and Berg with field goals and Van Pelt with a free throw gave the Prowlers a lead for the first time in the game. Lee and Mickleson counted again as the half ended with the Prowlers leading 14-7.

Jackson started the second half scoring, but Nicholson came back with two free throws and Kielty with one. Nicholson, Kielty, and Lee ran the score up to 22 to 9 before Jackson added a free throw for the Pirates. Kielty and Mickleson ran the score up to 28-16 after Barnes, Vordale, and Pantzer had counted for Crookston. Berg fouled Jenkins who made his shot good. A double foul was then called on Pantzer and Nelson, but both missed their shots after which Pantzer went out on fouls. Vordale then started a Pirate rally and with the help of Wentzel, Jenkins, and Barnes ran the score up to 21-27 but Nicholson and Mickleson came back for the Prowlers with field goals as the game ended with the Prowlers leading 31-24.

Although the game was marred by several fouls on both teams it was highly exciting and thrilling all the time and a royal battle is expected when the two teams meet on the new Crookston floor next Tuesday.

Lee and Mickleson were outstanding for the Prowlers and Pantzer stood out for Crookston.

JOSIE'S NOTES

Here I am, fit as a fiddle and as sick as Bud Kelly's unique formula in chemistry which goes somewhat like this: Wha-da-ya-call-it + Wha-da-ya-call-it = Wha-da-ya-call-it. Mr. Mayer Oakes disagrees. He says if it must be that way, it should be: What-do-you-call-it + What-do-you-call-it = What-do-you-call-it? The only difference is Mr. Mayer-Oakes minds his T'n T's on the end.)

A horse can be led to water but he can't be made to drink and you can show a Freshman studies but he can't be made to think—There seems to be a lot of fright remarks directed at the freshmen inmates but Mr. P. Lundgren sorta' threw a bouquet at them by starting his Pep talk off with a: Ladies and Gentlemen, Boys and girls of the freshman class (buck up freshmen and don't you cry, you'll be a senior by and by.) Here is a wee bit of a ditty by some more time than money student:

When Pa was a little boy like me,
He used to go in swimmen,
Where there was no fear of wimmen
When Pa was a boy like me.

One day some people chanced that way
And they stole by Pa's apparel (his clothes)
Pa stayed in the water all that day
And went home in a barrel.

In General Science class the other day the students were discussing telephone principles. Miss Fletcher asked, "How would I know the difference between Carol's voice and mine over the telephone?"

"Well, you're educated, and I aint," answered the student.

What do you imagine a preacher would have said if he saw that same crowd pushing at his church doors as was trying to get in the theatre.

THE PROGRESS POKES ITS NOSE AROUND

All was astir in the Land of Lincoln High School Flowers. Today was visitor's day and all the flowers were bedecked in their most bewitching costumes. An inquiring witness was introduced to each group separately by the Senior class president, Art Douville. Let's go behind the scenes and pick up the gossip.

A sunflower, glittering in the sun, first came to the visitor's attention. "Who does that represent?" inquired the witness.

"Oh, that's supposed to be Tom Fuller", was the reply.

"Those poor little flowers! Who are they?"

"Don't bother about them. You see, they are only the Freshmen."

The walk was resumed until a gay group of Scarlet Runners was discovered. Art explained that the predominating one represented Kendall Gustafson who specialized in journalism as well as athletics.

Red poppies then occupied the the point of view. When the visitor touched them, they crumbled to pieces. "Oh, the poor dears! Who are they?"

The surprise answer was, "They are just the conceited members of our school, not worth discussing. From a distance they appear striking, but the thought soon vanishes when you see them at a close-up."

Two daisies were so engrossed in each other that they did not even notice the visitors. Needless to say, they were Lois E. and Art N.

Groups of Bleeding Hearts were scattered in the flower garden. "Who can they be?" was the next question asked.

"You can really pity them," was the answer. "You see—they are the lonesome girls of our school who spend all of their time at home."

"My goodness! Who can that Creeping Charlie be? He seems to occupy much space."

"If you'll keep it a secret, here's the low-down: That's only Arnt Wold, one of our handsome he-men."

The journey was almost completed. Alas, the visitor very nearly stepped on a small flower, hidden in the grass. "Who can the poor dear be?"

"Be calm. That's only the author of this story hiding so that she won't be discovered."

The Junior English classes are studying the early American writers. At the present time, they have just completed the study of the Four Interpreters; namely, David Henry Thoreau, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Ralph Waldo Emerson, and Herman Melville. This study has proved unusually integresting because of the works of these authors. They have completed reading an extract from the book "Typee" by Herman Melville. The boys found this exceptionally adventurous because of the unusual traits of the characters. The plot centers around a group of sanguinary savages, the Typees, and two American boys, Toby and the author. Tiring of the sea life, these two boys escaped into the land of the Marquesas. Tradition had it that two tribes, the Happars and Typees, inhabited this island. The former tribe was partly civilized and friendly, while the latter was hostile and cannabalistic.

After they had unwisely fled to the Typees, Toby mysteriously disappears. Melville, although treated well, suspected that the tribe really practiced some primitive customs. To his horror, he found that this was really true. Unwisely uncovering the bones of a human skeleton, he learned that the tribe really were maneaters. Here the extract ends. The reader is left to ponder over whether Melville suffers the same fate or escapes.

Equally interesting are the works of the other authors. As an example, such works as "Walden," "Feathertop," "David Swan," etc.

Beginning this week, the Junior English classes will begin the study of Poetry and Culture in New England.

PAUL LUNDGREN SPEAKS AT PEP ASSEMBLY, FRI.

Court Scene, Freshmen Boys' Sextet Entertain on Crookston Pep Program

At the pep fest held on Friday, February eighth, the students were honored by a talk given by Mr. Paul Lundgren. He talked about the high schools when he was young and had his "girlish figure." He urged us, with all the persuasiveness of a lawyer, to support the team, with all the pep we have, to make our basket ball team realize that we expect and will help them win the state tournament. Mr. Lundgren also remarked that our school song which we had just sung, directed by Jack Booren and played by Helen Granum befitted the laying of a corner-stone, but had not the pep for a school song sung by five or six hundred students. So the song was sung again and with a creditable difference.

Following the talk, the students saw the stage transformed into a court room with Jerome Havel as judge, and Dorothy Rau, Helen Wilson, Margery Ward, Kenneth Brown, Oscar Bickley and Lloyd Bradly, the culprits. The offenses being respectively: putting wax on the shoes of the "Prowlers" so Crookston would win the game, assault and battery, speeding, stealing a basket ball rule book, breach of promise, embezzlement, not paying the required alimony because of the basket ball games, habitual thirst.

The sentences varied from acquittal to a term in "Sing-Sing" where we hope the noted Soprano Mary Garden will sing for the inmates again, as she did last week.

After the court trial, Theodore Quale, our announcer, told us a group of Freshmen boys were about to lift up their voices in song; but the eyes of the Sophomores detected that there was one Sophomore, Vernon Wedul, among the Freshmen who were Gordon Caldis, Robert Smith, Jerome Salveson, Stanley Newlen, Robert Quale and Wendell Olson.

As the finale Kathleen Monsbroten and Phyllis Norbeck led the school in the "Echo Yell".

Crookston and Oklee on Debate Schedule

Tuesday evening the Lincoln High School debate team composed of Kendall Gustafson, Dorothy Rau, and Corlan Dokken met the Red Lake Falls team at Red Lake Falls in a practice debate. Our team upheld the negative side of the question which is—Resolved: "That the Federal Government should adopt a policy of equalizing educational opportunities throughout the nation, by means of annual grants to the several states for public, elementary, and secondary schools". Red Lake Falls was defeated by our team in the first debate of the season. Thursday the local team will meet the debaters of Warren at Warren in the second debate of this season.

It has been definitely announced that Crookston and Oklee are to be included in this district. They will be met by the Lincoln debaters sometime within the next two weeks.

The winner chosen from the five schools, Red Lake Falls, Oklee, Crookston, Warren, and Thief River Falls will debate with the winner of the northern district for the regional championship.

EDITORIAL

One hundred and twenty-six years ago in a log cabin in the wilderness of Kentucky a son was born to illiterate parents. That fact in itself is not amazing, but the fact that this son, born in the most humble of surroundings, eventually became one of the greatest statesmen, one of the greatest philanthropists, one of the greatest leaders that this country has ever seen, is of acute interest to every aspiring high school student in the United States.

To read the life of this individual is to marvel at the intelligence, the sincerity, the ever-present perseverence, which characterized the severence, which characterized the man who so capably executed the duties of the highest officer of the land at a time when the very existence of the republic was threatened. To read of him as a railsplitter is to admire his simplicity, to read of his rise to the presidency is to praise his determination, and to read of his efforts to abolish the thing he considered unbecoming to a free country and to keep North and South together as a progressive nation where all men would be equal is to lau* the courage of a man who symbolizes courage.

Ralph Waldo Emerson, great American philosopher, essayist and poet who lived in Lincoln's time, has accurately portrayed our sixteenth President, "By his courage, his justice, his even temper, his fertile counsel, his humanity, Lincoln stood a heroic figure in the center of a heroic epoch. He is the true history of the American people of his time; the pulse of twenty millions throbbing in his heart, and the thought of their minds articulated by his tongue".

Last Tuesday we commemorated the birthday of the man after whom our high school is named. Let us use his life as an inspiration in achieving the goal that we have set for ourselves in this material world; let us look to the example that he has set in advancing the cause of humanity and making the world a better place in which to live.

PROWLERS FINISH DISTRICT RACE IN FIRST POSITION

Win From Crookston Tuesday, Lose to East Grand Forks Last Friday

The Lincoln high school Prowlers Tuesday evening ended their district basketball schedule in first place in the standings by winning an up-hill battle from Crookston 22 to 21, the latter team having had a four-point lead up to the last few minutes of play.

Friday evening at the Auditorium the Prowlers will meet Bemidji at 8:15 in what is expected to be one of the hardest fought battles of the season. As a curtain raiser the Prowler B team will meet Newfolden at 7:15.

In a final period rally last Friday evening on the small East Grand Forks floor the latter team defeated the Prowlers for the first time this season by a score of 32 to 30. The score at the end of the third period was 27 to 18 in favor of the locals. If East Grand Forks wins from Crookston Friday evening in the final district contest it will tie Thief River Falls for first place in the league standings. League standings follow:

Men's Brotherhood Will Sponsor Fathers, Sons Banquet Monday Evening

The Men's Brotherhood of Trinity Lutheran church next Monday evening at 6:30 will sponsor the Fathers and Sons banquet held annually by the organization, Chester Myrom, president, announced today. The principal address of the evening will be given by Rev. Fred A. Schiotz of Moorhead, while W. N. Morell, Jr., will speak in behalf of the fathers and Theodore Quale, Jr., will represent the sons. Musical selections, including quartet numbers, will complete the program.

Commissioner of Education is Guest in City Saturday

Dr. John Gunderson Rockwell of St. Paul, recently appointed by Governor Olson to the post of state commissioner of education, was guest of honor at a luncheon in the Evelyn hotel Saturday noon attended by members of the public school faculty and the board of education. In the evening he addressed a meeting of the Agassiz Schoolmasters club in Red Lake Falls.

In his talk at the luncheon Dr. Rockwell advocated larger school district units based on practicability of transportation facilities. He favored leaving children in the first six grades in the rural schools, transporting pupils from the seventh grade and up as a means of simplifying the duties of rural teachers.

In addition he favored the adjustment of the present tax structure so that rural school districts would not be penalized for joining consolidated districts.

Speaking at Red Lake Falls Dr. Rockwell supported the theory that state school aid should be distributed on the basis of the needs of the various communities. He outlined bills prepared by his department for submission to the legislature, one of which would permit school districts in a county to unite in a county-wide district.

Another proposed bill would make changes in supplemental school aid to increase aids outside the larger cities, and an increase in school library aid is also advocated provided that funds are matched by the local districts. Another proposal is for the reimbursement of school districts for transportation of non-resident pupils.

IT PAYS WELL TO TREAT SEED GRAIN, SPEAKER ASSERTS

County Farmers Told of Methods of Meeting Here Tuesday

Treating seed grain always pays and will pay especially well this year, farmers were told at a seed treating meeting held at the Court House Tuesday. C. C. Allison representing the state agricultural extension service, was the speaker.

Higher yields and better quality of grain crops practically always follows proper seed treatment, Mr. Allison said. Discussing the diseases which can be controlled by chemical treatment and the methods of treating, he emphasized that treating small grain seed is less complicated and takes less equipment than was the case a few years ago. These treatments used to involve different methods, different chemicals, and different equipment. Now a single organic mercury dust, applied the same to all grains, gives excellent results for about 2 to 2½ cents a bushel.

This mercury dust will give effective control of both loose and covered smuts in oats, stinking smut of wheat, and such seed-borne barley diseases as covered smut, black loose smut, stripe and seedling blight resulting from scab. For brown loose smut of barley, the only effective known treatment is hot water, a method not practical on most farms, the successfully used at community treating stations, such as creameries, where live steam and suitable equipment are available.

For farmers who prefer them, some of the other treating materials and methods give good results, he said. Among them are liquid formaldehyde for oats smut, and for covered smut, black loose smut, and seedling blight of barley; and copper carbonate dust for wheat smut.

CREAMERY HERE VOTES TO STAY WITH L. O'LAKES

Vote Down Steneeth Motion to Sever Relations 59 to 27

THEIGE AND C. NELSON ELECTED DIRECTORS

Operator G. S. Bergland Gives Report on Past Year Operations

Stockholders and others interested in the affairs of the Thief River Falls co-operative creamery crowded the Sons of Norway hall Saturday at the annual meeting which was featured by spirited discussion.

As a climax to the meeting L. O. Steneeth, leader of the group opposing the sale of the present creamery to Land O'Lakes Creameries, moved that the local institution sever its relations with Land O'Lakes Creameries. The motion was voted down by the decisive majority of 59 to 27.

Following statements by President Hans Anton, in charge of the meeting, and Secretary J. M. Theige relative to the activities of opponents of the sale of the building, the board of directors was given a vote of thanks for the work it has accomplished.

Manager G. S. Bergland read the annual report of the creamery covering the past year's operations, which has been reviewed in an earlier issue of the Times. The figures showed that 75 new patrons had been added during the year, and that the volume of butter manufactured had been increased by more than 100,000 pounds compared to the preceding year.

Mr. Bergland stated that a still bigger volume is necessary to insure efficient operation of the plant, and cited excessive taxes and fuel costs as holding up the cost of operation. Ben Ostmodt, Land O'Lakes field man, deplored the controversy that has been under way among stockholders of the institution, and said that the centralizers are the only ones that will benefit thereby.

A vote on the matter of two directors to succeed J. M. Theige and Carl Beiswenger, whose terms expired, resulted as follows for the four nominees: J. M. Theige, 57; Carl Beiswenger, 46; Christ Nelson, 46; and Gordon Olson, 35. Mr. Beiswenger withdrew in favor of Mr. Nelson, and the latter, with Mr. Theige, was thereupon declared elected for the ensuing term.

HIT-RUN DRIVER ABANDONS BOY ON WARREN HIGHWAY

Radium Boy, 11, is Taken to Warren Hospital for Treatment

A hit-run driver, who struck down Clinton Grose, 11 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Grose, Radium community couple, on Trunk Highway No. 1 eight miles east of Warren Saturday afternoon, leaving him seriously wounded lying by the roadside, is being hunted by Marshall county and state police authorities this week, says the Warren Sheaf.

The little boy was on his way to a little friend's birthday party, and Saturday being a balmy day, started to walk to his destination. He was walking on the side of the road on Highway No. 1. An automobile came up from the rear and struck the boy, hurling him into the ditch, resulting in serious injuries, and sped on.

Sometime later Herman Trolin and Gust Eklund of Hallock returning from the east, noticed the form lying in the ditch, thinking it possibly a dog, went on, but on second thought backed up to see what it was. When the Hallock man came to the boy's side, Clinton was just regaining consciousness and was able to tell who he was. The men rushed him to his home from where he was rushed to the Warren Hospital where he is rapidly recovering.

An examination by physicians at the hospital found one leg to be broken and a large deep cut in the back of his head.

Clinton was too dazed to recall clearly what had happened, although he was able to tell authorities that the car that hit him was a large black sedan. No broken glass was found at the scene of the mishap by Sheriff O. C. Toftner and Deputy Marshall Kays who investigated the tragedy as quickly as they were notified.

HOUSE COMMITTEE VOTES APPROVAL OF MARIUS WALDAL

Recommends Seating of Plummer Man at Hearing Tuesday Night

After another lengthy hearing Tuesday evening during which testimony was taken, the house elections committee early Wednesday voted that Representative Marius Waldal was entitled to his seat in the house from the sixty-fifth district. The matter now goes to the house, which is expected to sustain its committee.

The committee ruled our 27 ballots as invalid, making a margin of nine votes in favor of Representative Waldal. The total vote in the 65th district, comprised of Clearwater, Pennington and Red Lake counties, as determined by the committee, was 5,216 for Waldal and 5,207 for Day.

Waldal got the certificate of election, then, in a recount, the District Court declared Walter E. Day the winner by 11 votes. The elections committee checked over disputed ballots and found such conflict that it decided almost any verdict could be reached regarding them. So it called in witnesses and they testified Tuesday night.

Day took the stand first. One of the points brought out was that Day is president of a company which publishes a newspaper. Then recount referees testified regarding the checking of the ballots. They testified that during the recount Day himself carried many of the ballots back and forth from the county auditor's office at Bagley to the courtroom where the recount was being made.

The ballots from Copley township were the subject of particular inquiry. Of many disputed ballots in that township nine showed no initials of election judges, as required by law. The envelope containing the ballots was glued, but not sealed, they said.

The creamery obtained a net income of $969.25 from sidelines, including the handling of cheese, flour and feed, ice cream, eggs, poultry and seeds; and also including $160 rebates on supplies bought thru Land O'Lakes Creameries and $137.64 interest income.

EMERGENCY FEED LOANS AVAILABLE IN PENNINGTON CO.

Farm Credit Administration Today Adds This County to List

Farmers and stockmen in nine additional Minnesota counties may obtain emergency feed loans from a part of the emergency drought fund appropriated last year, according to a statement received today from the Farm Credit Administration. The counties are: Kittson, Mahnomen, LeSueur, Pennington, Rock, Rice, Polk, Brown, Dakota.

The emergency feed loans are advanced in monthly allowances, limited to a maximum for each head of stock to be fed. Except in cases where feed is entirely exhausted and weather conditions severe, the maximum loan allowance is $3 per head per month for farm cattle, $1.50 for range cattle, $4 for farm workstock, $3 for saddle and pack-horses, 50 cents for sheep and 35 cents for goats.

Such loans are being disbursed from a part of the emergency fund appropriated in the Act of Congress approved June 19, 1934, and are obtained only through the emergency crop and feed loan offices—not from any of the permanent lending institutions under the Farm Credit Administration. Applications for the loans may be made to the local crop and feed loan committee in the applicant's county.

In Memory of Arthur L. Muzzy
Died Feb. 25, 1934

I seem to see in the soft, dim light
A face I loved the best,
And think of him when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far west.
I miss you no less as the time passes on
Than I did on the day of your going,
For absence can never close the door of my heart
And the lamp of my love is still glowing.
Your heart was the truest in all the wide world,
Your love the best to recall;
For no one on earth
Could take your place,
You are still dearest of all.

Mrs. Arthur L. Muzzy,
James and Dorothy Muzzy. 8p

W. C. T. U. News Notes

Senator Sheppard, on January 24, introduced two Prohibition resolutions in the Senate—one embodying the original Eighteenth Amendment, and the other, providing for an amendment to the Constitution which would give power to the Congress to pass Federal Prohibition laws. In defense of this action he made the following statement:

"On June 13, 1934, during the second session of the Seventy-third Congress, I introduced a resolution known as Senate Joint Resolution 144, amending the Constitution in reference to national Prohibition. That resolution differed from the Eighteenth Amendment in that it conferred upon Congress the power to prohibit, and did not by its own terms provide specifically and immediately for Prohibition for the nation. It also provided for regulation by Congress in territory where local Prohibition did not prevail, pending complete Federal Prohibition.

"I stated in introducing that measure that in my judgment the Eighteenth Amendment provided the best method of handling the liquor traffic, but that in view of the fact that the early restoration of that amendment would be difficult, I felt that the enabling and regulatory provisions embodied in the Senate Joint Resolution 144 comprised the best present steps toward the ultimate return of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Today, seven months after the introduction of the enabling amendment, events have moved so rapidly, and the ravages of the liquor traffic have increased so tremendously that I feel that the time is already here for the consideration of the Eighteenth Amendment, along with the enabling amendment. I have made considerable revision of the enabling amendment itself, omitting all reference to regulation, confining its scope to prohibition, and providing for its submission, to legislatures in place of conventions. In again presenting the Eighteenth Amendment, I have substituted the words 'alcoholic liquors' for 'intoxicating' liquors.

"In order that both methods of procedure may be fully and fairly considered, I am introducing a resolution embodying the original Eighteenth Amendment and a resolution for a revised enabling amendment."

In Memory of Arthur L. Muzzy
Died Feb. 25, 1934

I seem to see in the soft, dim light
A face I loved the best,
And think of him when the sun's last ray
Goes down in the far west.
I miss you no less as the time passes on
Than I did on the day of your going,
For absence can never close the door of my heart
And the lamp of my love is still glowing.
Your heart was the truest in all the wide world.
Your love the best to recall;
For no one on earth
Could take your place,
You are still dearest of all.

Mrs. Arthur L. Muzzy,
James and Dorothy Muzzy. 8p

W. C. T. U. News Notes

Senator Sheppard, on January 24, introduced two Prohibition resolutions in the Senate—one embodying the original Eighteenth Amendment, and the other, providing for an amendment to the Constitution which would give power to the Congress to pass Federal Prohibition laws. In defense of this action he made the following statement:

"On June 15, 1934, during the second session of the Seventy-third Congress, I introduced a resolution known as Senate Joint Resolution 144, amending the Constitution in reference to national Prohibition. That resolution differed from the Eighteenth Amendment in that it conferred upon Congress the power to prohibit, and did not by its own terms provide specifically and immediately for Prohibition for the nation. It also provided for regulation by Congress in territory where local Prohibition did not prevail, pending complete Federal Prohibition.

"I stated in introducing that measure that in my judgment the Eighteenth Amendment provided the best method of handling the liquor traffic, but that in view of the fact that the early restoration of that amendment would be difficult, I felt that the enabling and regulatory provisions embodied in the Senate Joint Resolution 144 comprised the best present steps toward the ultimate return of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"Today, seven months after the introduction of the enabling amendment, events have moved so rapidly, and the ravages of the liquor traffic have increased so tremendously that I feel that the time is already here for the consideration of the Eighteenth Amendment, along with the enabling amendment. I have made considerable revision of the enabling amendment itself, omitting all reference to regulation, confining its scope to prohibition, and providing for its submission, to legislatures in place of conventions. In again presenting the Eighteenth Amendment, I have substituted the words 'alcoholic liquors' for 'intoxicating' liquors.

"In order that both methods of procedure may be fully and fairly considered, I am introducing a resolution embodying the original Eighteenth Amendment and a resolution for a revised enabling amendment."

1934 WORST YEAR IN HISTORY AS TO AUTO ACCIDENTS

36,000 Killed in U. S. and Nearly Million Were Injured

The worst automobile accident casualty toll ever experienced in the United States was recorded last year when 36,000 persons were killed and nearly a million injured as a result of 882,000 personal injury collisions on streets and highways.

Although practically two-thirds of the accidents involved driving errors, pedestrians paid the highest price in the loss of life as shown by the death of nearly 16,000, or 44 per cent of the total fatalities.

Detailed statistics giving the circumstances of the accidents as tabulated by The Travelers Insurance Company in its annual analysis show that the country's adverse experience was not due solely to an increase in the use of motor vehicles. Deaths gained 16 per cent as against an increase of between 5 and 6 per cent in registrations and 6 per cent in gasoline consumption. In this connection the analysis points out that in 1931, the previous high record in death, registrations were 3 per cent greater and gasoline consumption nearly one per cent more than in 1934, while fatalities in 1931 were almost 8 per cent less than last year.

Too much speed for time and place is cited as the dominant factor in the greater seriousness of automobile accidents last year. As an example of the extreme hazard produced by driving too fast, the rate of death per accident because of exceeding the speed limit was 60 per cent worse last year than the average of all accidents involving driving errors.

Available records for the year show that 3.16 per cent of the drivers in accidents were declared to have been under the influence of intoxicants as against 2.43 per cent in 1933, an increase of one-third. The available records also show that 4.47 per cent of the pedestrians in accidents were declared to have been under the influence of intoxicants as against 2.99 per cent in 1933, an increase of 49.5 per cent.

Five out of every eight pedestrians killed, according to the statistics were involved in accidents while crossing streets in the middle of the block, crossing intersections against signals or diagonally, darting out into streets from behind parked cars, or while walking along rural highways. The rate of death per pedestrian accident was 45 per cent worse crossing in the middle of the block than at intersections. The rate of death crossing against signals was 74 per cent worse than crossing with signals.

Nearly 1,500 children under the age of four were killed and 30,000 were injured in automobile accidents during the year, while 3,800 between the ages of five and fourteen met death and 143,000 were injured.

Garden Clubs Afford Many Fine Advantages, State Leader Asserts

Fruit, flowers and vegetable growers of Minnesota who want information on the best practices and who want to keep in touch with the newer introductions, should interest their neighbors and organize a local garden club, says Alfred Swanson, Red Wing, president of the Minnesota State Horticultural Society.

When such local garden clubs affiliate with the state horticultural society its members derive many services and advantages to the ordinary home grower, including the opportunity to secure new fruits and plants of recent introduction. Members also receive the Minnesota Horticulturist, a periodical of authentic information dealing with the best methods and giving much useful information adapted to growing fruits, flowers, plants and vegetables in this region.

Local garden clubs can stimulate community interest in planting, decorating and improvements of home and community surroundings, suggests Mr. Swanson. They should promote yard and garden contests, flower shows, fruit demonstrations and many other wholesome activities.

Mr. Swanson urges anyone interested in organizing such a local garden club to talk the matter over with a few friends and to write to R. S. Mackintosh, secretary, Minnesota State Horticultural Society, University Farm, St. Paul, for full information about local garden clubs and how to organize one.

1c INVESTMENT BRINGS COUNTERFEITERS PROFIT

Breckenridge—There are smart counterfeiters, and there are the dumb type, the latter type apparently having started operations in Breckenridge. D. E. (Moon) Mullins, the smiling employee of the 305 garage has a coin that is the work of somebody trying to beat the depression. Mullins received the coin in some Breckenridge establishment, but does not know where, or when. Looking over some change he came across the odd coin. On one side is a penny and on the other a dime. The coin is the thickness of a dime. It appears that a penny and a dime were sawed in half and then stuck together. To make money at this racket is a slow process. First there is an 1c investment. The time of sawing the coins in two is worth something. If two coins were successfully passed, the profit would only be 9c. Mullins claims that in the future he will examine all money he receives in change, as somebody might get the bright idea of splitting a one dollar and a ten dollar bill.

H. S. MUSIC TILTS BEING ARRANGED FOR STATE EVENT

District Contest Will be Held in Crookston on April 27

District contests are now being arranged for the Minnesota state high school music contest, finals of which will be held on the campus of the University of Minnesota May 9 and 10. The contest is staged under auspices of the Minnesota Public School Music League and the general extension division of the University of Minnesota.

Directors of the contest no longer give definite rankings, such as first, second, or third, to competing individuals or choruses, but place the contestants in classes, numbered A, B, C, and D. This retains the competitive element without making it necessary to pass a very difficult final judgment.

District contests that have been definitely fixed will be held at St. Cloud, April 27, for district 4; Dawson (junior high schools) April 27 for district 6; Anoka, April 27, for district 5; Granite Falls, May 6, for district 4 other than junior high schools; Lake City, April 27 or May 4 for district 8; Crookston, April 27 for district 10; Waseca, April 27, for district 11; Alexandria, April 26 and 27 for district 12; Worthington, April 27 for district 14; Cokato, May 4 for district 16; Baudette, April 27 for district 17, and Wells, April 27, for district 18.

Arrangements are still under way in other districts. The contest for district 1 will be in Bemidji at a date to be decided.

Color Blindness Can't be Cured, Says State Medical Association

Color blindness constitutes a serious traffic problem.

"Four men and two women out of every hundred are so blind to colors, according to recent figures, that they are unable to distinguish between red and green traffic lights," says a bulletin issued by the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association today.

These six persons are drivers of cars or potential drivers of cars. For the most part they are merely guessing at the colors of the traffic lights or watching what fellow drivers do. They endanger all others on the highways as well as themselves.

It is impossible, according to the physicians, to cure color-blindness which is an inherited trait, or to correct it by spectacles. But a successful device has recently been evolved by which the color blind driver can be enabled to distinguish red.

This device consists of a red-free filter glass or celluloid transparency which can be fitted into spectacles or against the upper half of a lens worn for correction of visual errors. It takes the red out of the color of the red light and leaves it black to the color-blind driver. Since the filter performs its service only for red, the green remains as it was before. Thus black, instead of red becomes the stop signal, and black, being actually an absence of all color, is perceived by the color-blind no matter what their limitations as to color perception.

"For some reason" says the bulletin, "color blindness is often regarded as a joke and the person who suffers from it is likely to try to conceal the defect. For the sake of their own safety and safety of others, color blind drivers should acknowledge their trouble and make use of whatever aids they can to distinguish traffic signals."

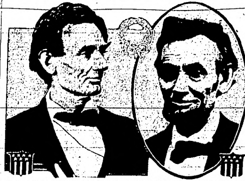
"Story of Civil War" Told in Two Lincoln Photographs



"The story of the Civil War in pictures" is the way the accompanying photographs of Abraham Lincoln are described by Dr. Louis A. Warren, director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation of Fort Wayne, Ind., one of the foremost Lincolnian scholars.

The first picture, one of the most celebrated of the beardless Lincoln portraits, was used as a campaign photograph in the presidential campaign of 1860. It was taken during the week of June 10, 1860, by the photographer, Hesler, of Chicago, and is known to Lincoln students as "The Candidate Lincoln." It depicts the martyred president as he was in the prime of life just before he entered the White House.

The other picture, known as "The Triumphant Lincoln," was taken just five years later and is believed to be the last photograph which President Lincoln ever had taken. It was made by the Washington photographer, Gardner, and the date is believed to be April 9, 1865, on the very day that news of General Lee's surrender at Appomattox reached the President—just five days before Lincoln's assassination by John Wilkes Booth.

Doctor Warren, whose studies of Lincoln's life attracted such attention that he was appointed director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation when that organization was endowed by the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company, possesses in his library at Fort Wayne original prints of these two photographs. Referring to "The Candidate Lincoln," Doctor Warren says:

Best of Beardless Pictures.

"This photograph, made at Springfield, Ill., by the Chicago artist, Hesler, is by all odds the most popular of the numerous beardless pictures of the Emancipator. After it was made and exhibited to Mr. Lincoln, he told the photographer:

"'Well, that looks better, and expresses me better than any I have ever seen; if it pleases the people I am satisfied.'

"The original negative from which this picture was made came very close to being destroyed by a fire that swept Mr. Hesler's Chicago studio in 1868. Mr. Hesler had sold his studio less than a year previous to the fire and had removed the negative with his personal belongings."

Of the other photograph, "The Triumphant Lincoln," Doctor Warren comments as follows:

"The expression on Lincoln's face in this picture, as in so many of the others, seems to interpret the very atmosphere in which the photograph was taken.

"At 9 a. m., March 24, 1865, he arrived at City Point to observe at first hand some action by the troops. He became so intensely interested in the maneuvers that he remained there until April 7. Just two days later, after he had arrived in Washington, the news of Lee's surrender reached him. It seems to have been accepted generally that this photograph was made on that day, April 9. There was usually some specific occasion or urgent demand that brought him to the photographer, and the winning of the war would be a sufficient incentive to suggest the taking of his photograph.

Lost 25 Pounds in Weight.

"The expression on Lincoln's face in this picture, while it seems to convey the news of a great victory, is tempered by the compassion which he had for the vanquished.

"If one will observe the photograph made by Hesler when Lincoln became the presidential nominee and compare it with this one taken just five days before his death, he will be unwilling to believe that only five years had intervened between the two sittings. Lincoln is said to have lost 25 pounds in weight during his first administration; certainly he was aged by far more than five years between these two pictures.

"Indeed, these two photographs constitute the story of the Civil War in pictures."

Recommends Varieties of Malting Barley for Seeding Next Spring

Malting barley, that extra fancy grain that maltsters pay premium prices for, cannot be produced just by accident. This fact was emphasized to farmers of southern Minnesota in a recent series of meetings at which Ralph F. Crim, extension agronomist, University Farm, pointed out that the first essential is to sow a variety of barley that the malting trade likes. For Minnesota, such varieties are Velvet, Manchuria, and Wisconsin 38.

Varieties such as Glabron and Trebi, though good feed barleys, absolutely will not do for malting. Another essential is to have the seed free from mixtures of other grains or of non-malting varieties of barley.

In addition to requiring good, clean barley of the right variety, malting demands high, even germination. Thus to bring malting prices, barley must be practically free of smut and other diseases and the kernels must not be broken or otherwise injured so as to impair appearance and germination. This makes it very important to thresh malting barley with special care—in fact, to handle the crop very carefully and intelligently all the way through.

To the man who succeeds in turning out the high quality demanded, the malt-ters will pay a handsome margin of price over the regular market for feed barley. This makes the malting barley proposition an attractive one to the alert grower.

COLDEST CITY RAISES PARSNIPS IN FEBRUARY

International Falls.—The coldest city in the United States, International Falls, can still rival those on the Gulf when it comes to raising vegetables the year around. Early in February, in the presence of witnesses, Dr. R. F. Osburn dug from his garden plot parsnips which would be a credit to any banquet in the land. They were as fresh as if harvested in July, and their tops were adorned with sprigs of bright green leaves, in spite of the fact that the garden is outside and exposed to the elements. Here's the catch: Beneath the Osburn garden runs a steam line from the Insulite plant. Heat from the pipe keeps frost from the ground, melts snow on the surface, and keeps the parsnips as fresh and delectable in February as at midsummer.

Growing With Your Child

ADOLESCENT REBELLION

"Where are you going?" impulsively questions the mother, meeting her young daughter in the hall.

"I'm going out! responds the girl, tossing her head.

"Out is a large place, young lady!" laughs her mother, sensibly refraining from any further questions.

"In "Imitation of Life", from which this episode to taken, Fannie Hurst's gift for capturing reality lets us in on the lives of two adolescent girls and their relationships to their mothers.

Many a mother would have bristled with indignation over what seemed to her the child's—for she was no more than a child—impertinence! But Jessie's mother recognized, or remembered from her own girlhood, the great need for privacy about one's own affairs, the harmless desire to have a few thoughts and plans that are not shared with ever-watchful and anxious adults.

It is so easy to get to thinking of our children as possessions. Having to take care of them as we do in their helpless infancy, it's small wonder we get into the habit of thinking of them as always needing our care and guidance. Instead of consciously planning for the time when we will no longer need to hold the reins, we very reluctantly, if ever, turn them over to the child completely. (How many women of thirty or forty, once they happen back under the parental roof, are bossed about in the most meticulous detail by parents who still think of them as comparatively helpless!)

Not without bitter conflict, expressed or repressed, as the case may be, do such interferences continue. Early in adolescence a natural urge toward breaking the parental bonds surges up and finds some outlet in the boy's or girl's behavior. If it doesn't come in one way, it is sure to be in another. Why do boys run away? Why do girls act restless and uncertain, discontented with the home life that up to this time has seemed a natural and happy setting?

Because they are reaching the time when, in a primitive society, they would be leaving their homes, setting up on their own, becoming independent of the care that has up to now been necessary and desired. Today we must go to some far-off place, like the islands of the south seas, to examine a society still simple enough to be little affected by civilization and its ever-mounting complexities. In Samoa, for instance, the adolescent boy and girl need not strive for admittance into the adult world—it opens up to them naturally when they have become mature. Our adolescents must still go to school, must depend on their fathers even for spending money, must refuse to admit their absolutely natural desire to mate and set up homes for themselves—all this because of the "advance" of civilization. Their natures, their instinctive needs have not "advanced"—they are just the same as they used to be in the early days of man. But do we make allowance for that fact? No, we close our eyes to it, and when the adolescent's rebellion makes us uncomfortable, instead of trying to understand it, we snub him, punish him, or act reproachful.

Not all parents are forgetful of their own youth, or blind to the passage of time and the development of maturing instincts in their children. But most of us need to be brought up short now and then, in the busyness and absorption of our own lives, to consider our children as creatures apart, with ever-changing, ever-growing needs. If we stop to look at their behavior objectively, we'll find that many of the manifestations that would otherwise trouble us, like Jessie's seeming secretiveness, will appear as normal indications of our children's needs for more freedom. Even the happiest and best adjusted of children will give notice of growing-up by some behavior that represents his need of asserting himself and becoming on a par with adults in his ability to decide for himself and make his own judgments.

The Senior class of the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, Minnesota will present "Smilin' Through", a three act comedy by Allan Langdon Martin as the annual Senior presentation in the Northwest School auditorium, Tuesday evening, February 26, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Smith, head of the English department and dramatics coach at the school. Rehearsals for the production have been going on daily for the past two weeks in the school auditorium.

This sensational stage piece is a fantastic comedy-drama in which Jane Cowl, prominent American actress, scored such a big success on Broadway for several seasons. The play has proven a big box-office hit in the movies.

Noel Hanson of Detroit Lakes as John Carteret and David Anderson of Crookston as Kenneth Wayne, will play the leading male roles. President Orders New Shotgun Restrictions

President Roosevelt last week signed an order prohibiting hunters from having more than three shells in their shotguns at one time, according to Associated Press dispatches. The order was signed on the recommendation of the United States biological survey, and was in accordance with plans of J. N. "Ding" Darling, well known newspaper cartoonist, who is now chief of federal wild life work. If guns have larger magazines these must be filled with unremovable plugs or cut down, the dispatch stated.

DROP CORN BOMBS FROM PLANE TO FEED BIRDS

Tracy—Credit for an innovation in pheasant feeding belongs to Tracy sportsmen, who are believed to be the first to use an airplane in distributing feed into remote places along snow bound roads. Recently 200 peck-size packages of ear corn were taken up into the sky and dropped over the countryside within a radius of 10 miles of Tracy. The paper sacks in contacting the earth virtually exploded, spreading the contents 20 or 30 feet, resembling war time tactics. Pilot Jack Robinson manipulated the plane, while sportsmen dropped the corn bombs, much to the delight of pheasants. Approximately 100 bushels of corn and other feed has been set out by the sportsmen in their efforts to preserve pheasant and partridge life. Feeding stations have been maintained and thus far only a few pheasants have perished.

Hawks Aid Hunters

The hawk continues to be employed with the dog (known in Europe as the Persian Greyhound) in hunting the fleet gazelle, antelope, fox, hare and other desert animals, notes a writer in the Los Angeles Times. The hawk, when freed, rises in the air, sights its prey and swoops down upon it. Attacking, it confuses its victim to the easy prey of the greyhounds. Sight-hunters, as are all greyhounds, the dogs are assisted in their chase of the hare through tall brush by the directional line of flight of the hawk.

The Twenty-Second of February

Pale is the February sky,
And brief the midday's sunny hours;
The windswept forest seems to sigh
For the sweet time of leaves and flowers.

Yet has no month a prouder day,
Not even when the summer broods
O'er meadows in their fresh array,
Or autumn tints the glowing woods.

For this chill season now again
Brings, in its annual round, the morn
When, greatest of the sons of men,
Our glorious Washington was born.

Lo, where beneath an icy shield,
Calmly the mighty Hudson flows!
By snowclad fell and frozen field,
Broadening, the lordly river goes.

The wildest storm that sweeps through space
And rends the oak with sudden force,
Can raise no ripple on his face,
Or slacken his majestic course.

Thus, 'mid the wreck of thrones shall live
Unmarred, undimmed, our hero's fame,
And years succeeding years shall give
Increase of honors to his name.
—William Cullen Bryant.

Red River Valley History

By Wm V. Werking

To be able to visualize the situation here in the early part of the nineteenth century we must remember that there were a few white traders in the region at Red lake, on Thief river, Red Lake river and on the Red river from Lake Traverse down to Pembina. The law of the white man had not entered the region and the Indians were free to continue their practices. The whites found it necessary to recognize the Indian code and abide by it, to some extent at least.

This was the state of affairs along about the end of the first decade of the nineteenth century. The Sioux and Chippewa were still involved in their intermittent feudal conflict and each side was seeking means of worsting the other completely and finally.

The year after the battle on Long Prairie river (probably about 1809) the Sioux, tired of fighting, decided to sue for peace. But their intentions were not honorable. Instead, they sought to triumph over their enemy by treachery. The scheme was an attractive one and was worthy of a better goal. It began with a grandoise gesture. Chah-pah, chief of the Yankton Sioux at Lake Travers sent one of his wives all the way to Pembina with a peace pipe. The wife was a Chippewa and it was shrewdly reasoned that Little Clam's Chippewa at Pembina would be interested. They were, and plans were made for a great peace gathering.

The gathering took place at the mouth of the Platte river, or near where it joins the Mississippi 10 miles south of the city of Little Falls. The peace pipe was passed around and games were played and everything went fine for a while. Then a Sioux who was one of the seven unwounded survivors of the Long Prairie battle had not been able to forget or forgive. He quarrelled with a Chippewa and struck him on the head with a ball club. A general fight impended by Wah-nah-tah, son of Chah-pah, prevented it. Historians say that the Sioux were eager to allay any suspicions of the Chippewa and proceed with the peace moves until the time was ripe to strike.

But little was accomplished at the peace meeting, and, moreover, one of the principal leaders of the Chippewa, Flat Mouth, head of the Pillager band of Chippewa at Leech lake, had not been influenced by the peace gestures of the Sioux. He had remained away from the peace meeting and spent his time instead trapping beaver on Long Prairie river. The peace pipe had been sent to him but he had refused to smoke it.

Some time later when Flat Mouth with about 20 braves was at Otter Tail lake, the wary chief had the braves with him as a body guard and took precautions to prevent surprise. One morning the Chippewa discovered the trail of 400 Sioux who had been following them. The Chippewa headed for Leaf lakes and on the way two of Flat Mouth's cousins were slain by Sioux. But the Sioux learned that their scheme had been detected and abandoned it.

Flat Mouth returned to his camp and plotted a bit of treachery of his own. He sent word to Chah-pah that he was willing to wipe the slate clean and start over. He was brewing trouble for the Sioux, but Chah-pah did not suspect and sought again to dupe Flat Mouth. He induced Col. Robert Dickson, a Scotch trader at East Grand Forks, who was married to a sister of the Yankton chief, to send a courier to Flat Mouth denying that Chah-pah was involved in the Sioux plot or in the killing of the Chippewa chief's cousins and inviting Flat Mouth to a peace parley at the Dickson trading post.

Flat Mouth accepted the invitation and set out for the trading post with 30 warriors. Arriving, he found the place in the charge of four Frenchmen, Dickson being away, although his wife was at home. The next day Chah-pah appeared with only two braves as a body guard. He at once realized that he had been duped and that his fate was sealed. When Flat Mouth refused the peace pipe Chah-pah began to make ready for death. There was a great storm in the night and in lulls between the rolls of thunder and the rush of the wind and spatter of rain Chah-pah's voice could be heard raised in his death chant. He told his sister he would die like a brave Dakota.

Flat Mouth was too shrewd to shed blood on premises occupied by whites. The next morning he set out for home while Chah-pah and his two warriors started southward "escorted" by the Chippewa braves. About a mile south of East Grand Forks on the Minnesota side the three Sioux were pulled from their horses and slain. This was probably the first instance of persons being "taken for a ride" in this region. The facts set down here have been gleaned from various sources and are assumed to be authentic.— Northwestern Feature Service.

The Car Without Experiments

THERE'S never any doubt about value when you buy a Ford car. You know it's all right or Henry Ford wouldn't put it out. One thing that never changes is his policy of dependable transportation at low cost.

That's the biggest feature of the New Ford. The reliability and economy of its V-8 engine have been proved on the road by upwards of 1,400,000 motorists. Owner cost records show definitely that the Ford V-8 is the most economical Ford car ever built.

THE SUPREME COURT SPEAKS

Tension thruout the country was relieved Monday when the Supreme Court handed down its decision on the gold clause. Evidently it was an important decision. At any rate it involved in the neighborhood of a hundred billion dollars in debts, public and private, and even in New Deal financing a hundred billion dollars is a lot of dollars.

As we understand it, the majority of five justices decreed that gold clause notes are only worth a hundred cents on the dollar regardless of the number of grains of gold specified. This applies to private contracts, the majority held, because Congress has a constitutional right to regulate the currency and can take any action necessary to maintain currency values. To recognize the gold clause in the many billions of dollars worth of private contracts would demoralize the currency values established by Congress and therefore would actually take from Congress the control of the currency, it was pointed out.

Gold clause obligations of the federal government were considered more valid. Congress had authorized them—had agreed to redeem them with so many grains of gold. This obligation is still binding, the court ruled, but if Congress refuses to pay out the gold and insists on redeeming in dollars nothing can be done about it. Call it repudiation or whatever you will, but there is no way to force the government to pay more than Congress decides should be paid.

All of which, under the circumstances, is fair enough. As the court pointed out, none of the gold clause security holders will suffer a loss under this arrangement while, if they were allowed to collect the specified amount of gold, at its present value they would be receiving a great deal more than they had earned. The dollar, after all, is still a dollar, and any investor who gets back dollar for dollar on his investment at the present time should not complain.

It is interesting to note that the judgement of the court happened to be another one of those five to four decisions. A few years ago an unpopular five to four decision resulted in a great deal of soap box oratory denouncing a system that would permit the vote of one man to decide the law of an entire nation. In the nature of things it is inevitable that Supreme Court decisions must occasionally be close. And they cannot always be popular. It is not the function of the court to determine whether laws are good or bad. It is the court's duty to interpret the constitution and to determine whether or not the laws passed by Congress are constitutional. It so happens that the court's judgement on the gold clause case is popular. But whether its decisions are popular or unpopular, the court deserves the respect and confidence of the American people. As the highest tribunal of justice in the country it has a long and honorable record.

In holding its annual meeting in this city next week the state wool growers association is giving recognition to a territory from which comes a large portion of its business volume. Thief River Falls is quite a bit off-center geographically in Minnesota. But it is very much the center of that portion of the state in which wool is produced in quantity. This recognition by the state association is greatly appreciated.

G. A. Sustad of Viking is interesting himself in the proposed state park at the old mill site in Marshall County. In a contribution published in this issue he urges that citizens of this territory lend their support to the plan and help the project get the recognition it deserves. Such preliminary action as that now being taken by Mr. Sustad is necessary if anything further is to be accomplished. Unless the people of that community are interested in having this historical site developed it will be difficult to arouse enthusiasm for the project elsewhere. With the united demand for action from the people of Marshall county, backed by the support of neighboring counties, it should be possible to get results.

Now that the annual meeting is "out and over" it would seem that the most important problem of the directors and management of the local creamery is to create that spirit of harmony among patrons that is so essential to the success of any organization. It is unfortunate that disagreement over the building question became so heated. But it is not the first time sincere and well intentioned people disagreed. A hot fight is a good thing occasionally, providing of course, that when the fight is over the differences will be forgotten. With harmony among its patrons the creamery will be able to overcome a lot of mistakes. Without harmony success will be impossible no matter how wise and efficient the management.

It surely is not unreasonable to hope now that the winter is at least half over.

Thanks to the combined efforts of AAA and the drouth, the farmer's dollar is now approaching that long looked forward to parity. Which means, in other words, that the relation between what the farmer receives for his produce is very nearly in line with the prices he must pay for the things he buys, on the basis of pre-war averages. The recent spurt in livestock, dairy and poultry prices will prove especially beneficial to this territory. This week's batch of statistics indicates that the farmer's dollar is bigger today than at any time since 1929.

A PAROLE FAILURE

(St. Paul Daily News)

Last April Anthony Spiess, 32, Minneapolis, was paroled from St. Cloud reformatory on a maximum sentence of 10 years.

After working on a farm for three months he ran away and between July and the following January he committed 88 daylight burglaries in and about St. Paul and Minneapolis. This is his own admission to Judge Hugo O. Hanft, who sentenced him to a term of two to ten years in Stillwater prison.

This specific case will be taken as further condemnation of our system of paroling prisoners. And it will be hard to answer. On the other hand the authorities, no doubt, will be able to show from the records many cases where the parole has worked out as intended.

The trouble does not seem to lie with the parole system but with its administration. We have not yet applied enough scientific skill to the problem of determining which of our prisoners are most likely to make good under a parole. There is, also, the suspicion that other influences have played their parts in these releases—at least in other states.

The administration of such complex problems is too often left to persons utterly unqualified by training and experience. The most expert would make mistakes. Yet the failures should not be allowed to obscure the successes.

$45,000,000,000

(Congressman Theodore Christian in Dawson Sentinel)

A bill which recently passed the gauntlet of both houses of Congress paves the way for a federal debt of $45,000,000,000. The former legal limit was $28,000,000,000. The new measure raised the limitation $17,000,000,000. Lest in these days, when the public is disposed to count even chicken feed in astronomical figures, there should be a failure to understand how much money $45,000,000,000 really is, let it be understood that it represents $45 for every minute since the beginning of the Christian era, $350 for every man, woman and child in the United States, a mortgage on every piece of property in the country to the extent of almost one-fourth of its present value.

To pay the debt will require five times the amount of gold and silver in the federal treasury, or a five-mill tax on all the property of the people for 180 years, assuming that all wealth is assessed for taxation at one-fourth of its full and true value.

And the funds raised by such a tax would not discharge the indebtedness, for during the 180 years interest would accrue in an amount several times the principal. In other words, at the end of the period we would still owe several times the original indebtedness.

Who says we are not headed for inflation?

THOSE LEGISLATIVE CONTESTS

(Montevideo News)

In their newspaper letter of last week Senator Pederson and Representative Hagen made reference to the Day-Waldal contest. They said, "It would not surprise very many if Waldal is seated as these things are not always decided by what is right and just but by what the majority deems expedient."

That is an observation revealing political wisdom and knowledge of party history in Minnesota. Majorities have the right of way, and without great effort can convince themselves they are right. Two years ago the Farmer-Labor group in the House decided to put its majority right, and might, back of a St. Paul man who had been issued a certificate of election before the time for filing notice of contest expired. A recount showed that the opponent of this Farmer-Labor candidate had been elected by 62 votes. But the majority stood by its man, and kept him in the Legislature. They say there were circumstances in the case that justified the action.

The present contest is one in which a recount of the votes reversed the first result announced by a county canvassing board and on which the certificate of election was issued. After the recount it was found the Farmer-Labor candidate had eleven more votes than his opponent. But the opponent had the certificate of election and was seated. Now the matter is before the legislature.

If the Farmer-Laborite is entitled to the place he should have it. The fact that he votes with the minority in the House should not be the determining factor. The majority should lean over backward in trying to be square in this matter, and in all matters that come before it. That is one of the obligations of a majority.

We are inclined to favor an income tax on the small income as well as on the income of the wealthy. The latter, of course, should pay a much higher percentage than the small fry, but practically everybody should pay a little. There are so many people earning from one to two thousand dollars a year paying practically no taxes. At the same time the one who is unfortunate enough to own a farm, a small business or a home have to pay a tax that is almost confiscatory, regardless of whether his books show the balance in red at the end of the year.—Milan Standard.

The Legislature is struggling with over 100 bills on the subject of taxation, and in that respect is doing a better job than Congress, which apparently has given up the struggle and is content to let the government run into the red to the extent of uncounted billions. And, by the way, isn't it a mistake to try to urge tax reduction at this time and thus give Congress the excuse for more stupendous borrowings. In private life, the first step towards getting out of the hole is to stop going farther in, and the same course should be followed by the government. The debts will have to be paid some time, and the present Congress by its refusal to levy adequate taxes to meet its expenditures is just passing the buck to future congresses. Likewise, the Legislature is not going to help the state any by piling up debt. Economy is necessary and the tax on property should be lightened because it is becoming so heavy as to be unproductive, but otherwise, the Legislature should not hesitate to levy taxes to meet the expenditures which it decides it must make. Let's not leave it to tomorrow to pay today's taxes because tomorrow will have its own taxes to pay.—Morris Tribune

It begins to look like there may be a closed season on waterfowl next year. There is not a doubt that the duck population has decreased alarmingly. The "common variety" of hunter, who numbers over 80 per cent of the total is in favor of giving the ducks a year or two to multiply. The rich hunter with the most favored locations will be the last to know the duck shortage, and the ammunition maker, are inclined to oppose a closed season. We may argue forever, but after all the only way to save ducks is to refrain from shooting them. One year of closed season will save more ducks than five years of hap-hazard conservation measures such as were tried last fall.—Cottonwood County Citizen.

Counterfeiting and Forgery

Laws against counterfeiting and forgery have always been severe. When forgery was first made a statutory offense in England, for example, in 1562, it was made punishable "by standing in the pillory, forfeiture of lands and perpetual imprisonment." Later, in 1634, the offense was made capital without benefit of clergy. In the United States the penalty is from 1 to 15 years for conviction.

PUBLIC OPINION

Expressions of opinion on timely subjects are invited and welcomed to this department of The Times. Letters should be of reasonable length, and the name should be signed, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Letters duplicated to other local newspapers are not desired.

Editor The Times:

I will with the editors consent, make an appeal to the readers of your paper, to lend their support to a plan to make the Old Mill site a state park. The old Mill site is in Town of Foldahl, Marshall county and it is the only ground of ample size in Northern Minnesota where a big crowd can gather and find parking room or space for their cars, it is situated on Middle River 12 miles west from Newfolden and 11 miles east and one mile north from Argyle; and we have had picnic's there in the past when there have been crowds of around 10,000 persons and the grounds can easily accommodate 25,000 people and parking space for the cars. The ground slopes toward the river and keeps dry when other grounds would be nothing but mud. It is one of the beauty spots of Marshall county and in summer time there is hardly a nice day but there is some kind of picnic or gathering there.

The idea or plan to make the ground into a State Park was born out of the mind of Earl S. Barker of Bemidji, president of Northwestern Minnesota Historical Society who was the principal speaker at the first annual picnic of Marshall County Historical Society last summer, and Governor Floyd B. Olson who was our principal speaker at our Farmer Labor picnic last July was sold on the idea and The Thief River Falls Times and and the other newspapers have promised to lend their aid in putting this plan through.

When the writer was in St. Paul January 15-16 and 17th, I visited two nights with Senator Richard Rice from Alvarado, who represent the 67th district in the Senate, and he is keenly interested in the development of this project into a state park, and here is the plan he outlined: to have the State acquire the land and make a state park thereof; and he further stated that he thought it would be possible to get a CCC camp there next summer provided this plan could be put over in time, the CCC boys could fix up the grounds plant trees and flowering shrubs and flower beds. If this was done the place would be the play ground for Northwestern Minnesota, and I urge everyone lend their aid to put this plan over. Write and urge your friends to help, get up petitions to your senator or representative as they need help from home to put this through. Tell your local paper to get behind the plan, phone your neighbors, talk about the plan at public meetings, and let's all help to put this matter over and coming generations will bless us. Lets go.

Very truly yours,
G. A. Sustad.

Attention Farmers:

We have a very vital question that confronts us, a question too hard for a few of us farmers to solve, that is concerning our Shipping Association. Are we going to scrap our cooperative shipping association for good and be at the mercy of the big packers and truckers? Let us well consider. Will it pay us in the long run? I therefore urge all of you cooperative minded farmers to attend this meeting the 2nd of March. Remember every shipper is or becomes a member.

Respectfully,
CARL BEISWENGER.

Source of Given Names

Old Greek and Roman mythology was the source of many given names in use today. Others hark back to the lusty pursuits of the Teutons. The Kelts, on the other hand, made much of the varying shades of complexion among themselves, and these names derived from that language frequently refer to "the swarthy," "the ruddy," "the white," etc. In almost all tongues, words meaning bright, clear, famous, strong, kind, and so forth, were made the roots for various names, dozens of which still are in common use.

OBSTACLES HELD STILL IN WAY OF MUD LAKE PLANS

Financing Acquisition of Lands is Problem, Says I. E. Quist

Early acquisition of lands in the Mud Lake migratory waterfowl refuge area is still doubtful because of legal differences over finances, Irving E. Quist, engineer on the project, stated to the Warren Sheaf in an interview following his return from St. Paul where he attended a conference with federal and state attorneys and engineers.

"The proceedings were inaugurated last summer with the understanding that the State of Minnesota would secure title to the land and deed the entire tract over to the federal government for a price equal to the cost of the property to the state," said Mr. Quist. "The difficulty has now arisen," he said, "that the state needs to have the money available before the action is begun in the courts, and the federal government requires value received before they can pay the state."

"A lapse of time, estimated as about one year, would pass after action is begun before the conveyance of the land could be made to the United States. The legal lights of both state and nation are conspiring in an effort to get the horse ahead of the cart again, or the money ahead of the acquisition of the land, and in that way assure completion of the project this year," the engineer stated. "This could have been done if the federal government had acted directly without the intervention of the state."

In the meantime the government is taking bids on the work on March 5th. The letting will fall by the way if the first problem is not solved. The contracts must be signed and accepted before the end of March or the appropriation of the construction funds will terminate.

The average child acquires 80 per cent of his education through his eyes, says the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

GOVERNOR OLSON AWARDS SAFETY PLAQUES MONDAY

Officials Hear Program Designed to Reduce Auto Fatalities

A program designed to keep motor vehicle fatalities in Minnesota at the lowest possible minimum was placed before legislators, governmental officials and outstanding safety experts of the country Monday night when Governor Floyd B. Olson, at an impressive dinner in St. Paul, awarded plaques to the winners of the 1934 Minnesota Traffic Safety Contest.

Outlined following an intensive study and analysis of the causes of every motor vehicle accident in Minnesota in which a fatality occurred, the program was worked out and presented in a report by A. V. Rohweder of Duluth, Chairman of the Minnesota Public Safety Committee, the advisory body which directed the accident study.

High points of the recommendations made in Mr. Rohweder's report were:

Establishment of a complete reporting system of all traffic accidents involving injury or death.

Improvements in the physical characteristics of streets and highways.

Proper mechanical inspection and maintenance of motor vehicles.

Continuance of public safety education in homes, schools, factories and farms.

Continuance of the valuable support given the safety movement by newspapers.

Enforcement of traffic laws and cooperation by courts.

Adoption of a standard Drivers License Law as recommended by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety of the U. S. Department of Commerce and the National Safety Council.

Governor Olson awarded plaques to representatives of Minneapolis, St. Cloud and Eveleth, and Wright, Swift and Clearwater Counties. More than 600 persons, including members of the Minnesota legislature, state officials and Public Safety Committee members, attended the dinner in the Hotel Lowry. Col. F. W. Matson, President of the Minnesota Safety Council, presided. Mr. Rohweder was General Chairman in charge of arrangements.

CAT PLAYS SANTA BUT MEETS ITS WATERLOO

Milaca—Members of the feline family had an argument on the top of Carl Neslund's home in East Maywood recently, much to the destruction of the house and the discomfort of the family, for when cats fight, as Neslund can testify the fur-flies. Awakened by a fearful noise and commotion on their roof in the middle of the night, the Neslunds arose to investigate and found several stray cats on top of the chimney, fighting for supremacy. Sections of the chimney had been torn loose from the top, bricks and all. The house soon became filled with smoke, and the family had to take pipes down to investigate. From inside the chimney pipe a long tail extended, and when pulled was found to be an unconscious white cat's appendage. The cat, black with soot, had been rendered unconscious from the smoke and offered no resistance, but soon became very much alive and was on its way to further conquests or defeats.

BEER TRUCK STOLEN, 3.2 'DISAPPEARS'

Minnesota Lake—Thirst quenching 3.2 beer is popular in Minnesota Lake—so popular, in fact, that someone must have had a real blow-out. While taking an order at a restaurant one recent Saturday night, the driver of a beer truck found his chariot had "walked out" on him. Those who had appropriated the truck load of beer evidently became thirsty soon, for the truck was later found two miles outside of town—empty. An array of kegs and bottles meant for the public in general had apparently been the basis for a real party. Only one "fine bottle" with the seal unbroken remained along the case of empties. It may be that the party "just couldn't take it" by the time they had gone that far. In addition to the quantity of beer stolen, $65 and an overcoat belonging to the driver also disappeared.

CIVIC GROUP TOLD OF RAILROAD BILL IN LEGISLATURE

Association Favors Revision of More Drastic Provisions

Following a discussion of a bill affecting railroads, known as H. F. 124, now pending in the legislature, the Civic and Commerce association at its luncheon last Thursday went on record as favoring a revision of the more drastic provisions of the bill which, it was contended, would place undue burdens on the railroads at the present time.

Walter Jung, chairman of the association's transportation committee, told the meeting of efforts being made to effect an improvement in mail service from the south.

Mr. Jung also stated that towns north of Thief River Falls along the Great Northern railway are seeking the establishment of a star route from this city to Roseau. The matter was referred back to the transportation committee for further consideration.

Farm Costs on the Spot in 4-H Contest Offering $7,500 Harvester Prizes

Farm costs and leaks of the 1935-36 year will be put on the spot by 4-H club members of the nation and in addition to the fun of doing it they have a chance to earn some wonderful prizes.

The contest is a renewal of one widely participated in the past year in which winners of merchandise and purchase certificate prizes given by the International Harvester Company aggregating at least $7,500.00 are soon to be announced by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club, which conducts it.

Officially accepted by club leaders for this state, the contest is open to every enrolled boy or girl, and offers county, state, sectional and national prizes on the same basis as the previous contest except that winners of more than one prize must surrender the lower ones to an alternate.

The record books must be opened any time between Jan. 1 and March 1 and cover the 12 consecutive months following. Contestants may use any record book providing an opening and closing inventory, record of money expended and received, costs of principal crops, etc., and a balance sheet.

Contestants are encouraged to enlist and aid of leaders, parents and others in keeping the record but it must be in the contestants own hand. It is hoped thus to spread the value of cost accounting which is of increasing consequence in meeting federal production control requirements, obtaining credit, and making tax returns.

The records, which may be kept of the home farm or a neighbor's are to be confidential and returned after judging to the club member. Detailed rules may be obtained of the county Agricultural Agent. Ilxsep

LONG LOST KNIFE FOUND IN FLOUR 150 MILES AWAY

Hastings.— A pocket knife found in a sack of flour 150 miles away from the owner, was returned to him recently through a strange coincidence of old acquaintance-ship, and Peter Verth, Hastings, is now a firm believer that the "World is a small place, after all". The knife, of unique description with Werth's initials, P. W. scratched on the surface, was purchased in Manitoba, Canada, some years ago. Werth used it in his duties at the flour mill in Hastings, and in some manner the knife became lost and ended up in a sack of flour. At Waterloo, Iowa, 150 miles away, William Mountaner former Hastings resident, discovered the knife in a sieve containing the Hastings flour. At one time being an employee of the Hastings mill, Mountaner recognized the initials and returned the knife to its owner, two years after it had first been missed. As a remembrance, Werth presented the knife to Mountaner.

SUPREME COURT O. K'S NEW DEAL MONETARY POLICY

Approves Elimination of Gold Clause in Private Bonds

The United States supreme court Monday handed down decisions in the momentous gold cases approving and protecting new deal monetary policies.

The court divided 5 to 4 on all the decisions. Justices supporting the majority opinion were Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, Louis D. Brandeis, Harlan F. Stone, Owen J. Roberts and Benjamin N. Cardozo. The minority group headed by Justice James C. McReynolds who entered a violent dissent, included Willis Van De Vanter, George Sutherland and Pierce Butler.

The court gave outright approval to legislation which eliminated gold payment clauses from all private bonds. It threw out other suits which sought to test this legislation as applied to government bonds.

The court likewise threw out a suit in which payment at the rate of $1.69 in devalued currency was sought on gold certificates turned in under the treasury's gold seizure orders.

In the government bonds and gold certificates cases the court held the United States court of claims, in which the suits were filed, had no authority to entertain such suits.

In the liberty bond case, the court held that congress went too far in eliminating the gold payment clause from government bonds. But it said that any action to recover must be in law and that the court of claims had no jurisdiction.

One Cent Gas Tax Rise Would Not Match U. S. Road Aid, Says Elsberg

An increase of one cent a gallon in the state gasoline tax would increase state highway revenues by $2,200,000 a year, and would provide $1,100,000 a year for distribution to the counties for use on county aid roads, says a highway department bulletin.

On the other hand, restoration of the automobile license fees to the 1932 normal level would provide probably more than $3,500,000 for the trunk system.

An increase of about $3,800,000 in annual revenues of the highway department is needed if Minnesota's allotment of federal aid for this year and next is to be matched, the department estimates. A cent increase in the gas tax would therefore fall about $1,600,000 short of meeting federal aid requirements. The federal government has offered Minnesota nearly $7,000,000 for a highway employment program this year and next, provided Minnesota puts up an equal amount.

Pass 16 Resolutions at Central Livestock Meeting in St. Paul

Sixteen resolutions were proposed and passed at the 14th Annual Stockholders meeting of the Central Cooperative Association held in St. Paul February 12 and 13. These resolutions pertained largely to state and national legislation beneficial to the livestock industry.

Briefly summarized they request the following:

Request reduction of interest on Federal Land Bank loans from 4½ to 3½ per cent, and commend the action of the U. S. Senate which passed an amendment to the farm credit law providing for this reduction and request that the House of Representatives also pass this amendment.

Request passage of the weighing, Regulation and Inspection Bill, SF 232 and HF 264, now pending before the Minnesota State Legislature. This bill provides a uniform system of grading, fill allowances, and other factors of influence in determining the value of livestock when sold direct to packers.

Other resolutions requesting supervision and regulation of direct buying in Minnesota as well as in neighboring states and in a national scope were passed.

The report of the investigation on Direct Marketing of hogs by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U.S.D.A. was condemned because of its utter disregard of the opinions repeatedly expressed by farmers in demanding legislation dealing with the evils of direct buying.

Forestry Examination Announced for March 1

Grover Conzet, state forester, announced that a maximum of 25 new men may be temporarily employed throughout the state, following the examinations.

ANNUAL GUN SALE TO BE HELD MARCH 16

The annual public auction of confiscated guns and other sporting equipment seized during the past year by state game wardens because of infractions of game and fish laws will be held Saturday, March 16, starting at 10:00 o'clock A. M. The sale will be conducted at the Deutsches House, 444 Rice street, St. Paul, located back of the State Office building. Four hundred rifles and shotguns of various descriptions will be offered for sale to the highest bidder, according to Erling Swenson, Director of the Division of Game and Fish.

COUNTIES RECEIVE MORE FROM STATE THAN WAS PAID IN

Pennington Pays $82,904, Gets $141,574 From State Sources

Forty-five of Minnesota's 87 counties, in the interchange of funds with the state treasury during the fiscal year 1933-34, closed their books upon a gain in this reckoning, State Auditor Stafford King's compilations showed Friday.

Gathered from several sources, including liquor, gasoline, inheritance and regular state taxes, the income to the state treasury, however, exceeded its own outlay to the counties.

Funds given by the state from the general school apportionment, state aid to schools, roads, road and bridge fund, gasoline tax refund and other items, totaled $21,122,328.53, while the counties in return produced $27,823,331.

Cutting a large figure in the county contributions were $11,229,000 and $13,264,138.45 in gasoline taxes and the state tax collections for the fiscal year, which ended last June 30, King's report disclosed.

Against these totals were state treasury payments of $3,484,268.70 for the apportionment from the general school fund; $6,251,702.17 for state aid to schools; $1,437,438.68 from the state road and bridge fund; $3,600,000 gasoline tax refund and $994,327.50 from the income school tax.

Payments of northwestern counties from the state treasury, and returns to the treasury, listing principal items, include:

County	Total to Counties.	Total to State
Beltrami	$435,133.24	$102,591.22
Clearwater	139,371.91	34,847.93
Marshall	456,807.23	107,867.43
Pennington	141,573.08	82,904.33
Polk	350,744.55	257,662.99
Red Lake	100,917.42	37,910.70
Roseau	306,081.30	54,727.08

Wife Accidentally Kills Husband in N. W. Angle

Accidentally shot in the stomach by his wife, Howard Ramsberg of Northwest Angle died Sunday afternoon of last week from an internal hemorrhage, says the Baudette Region. Ramberg and his wife were in the woods hunting rabbits when a 22 rifle in the hands of the latter was discharged, and the bullet entered the man's stomach.

Mrs. Ramsberg had shot a rabbit and before going into the brush to get it she reloaded the rifle. As she returned to her husband, she had the rabbit in one hand and the rifle in the other, when she stumbled and the weapon was discharged. The bullet made only a small hole, and there was no blood on the man's clothing.

Mrs. Ramsberg assisted her husband toward their home, but he collapsed about forty feet before reaching it. The distracted wife dragged him the rest of the way, and then hastened to the cabin of a neighbor. When they got back Ramsberg was dead.

FLOWERS IN FULL BLOOM BENEATH 2 FEET OF SNOW

Mapleton— While the mecury was still low in the tube recently, David O'Conner, Mapleton, decided it was a wise idea to dig the snow banks away from his walk, so that the spring thaw might not make a river of the path. Digging down in the deep drifts, he found little lavender colored flowers, in full bloom. The flowers, which are perennial decorations along the front of the O'Conner home, were kept warm beneath the heavy blanket of snow in spite of the intense cold, and must have decided that spring was here.

CAPITOL NEWS

By A. I. Harris

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace should "establish basic prices for farm commodities under the licensing system," Governor Olson told the Minnesota Association of Local Creameries in St. Paul last week at a meeting which the cabinet member had addressed prior to the Governor's talk. "The farmer will not get parity, until he owns the market places where he sells his products. As long as he sells on markets influenced by speculation and gambling, he hasn't a chance," the Governor said. Secretary Wallace urged the dairy industry to co-operate with the AAA.

It is time that people speak out against the tactics of some of our super-patriots, who constitute a menace to our country and our free institutions. The following, from an editorial in THE WINONIAN, the monthly publication of the Winona State Teachers College, is refreshing and apropos: "Mr. Belgrano, wealthy industrialist of Los Angeles, and newly elected head of the American Legion, has taken it upon himself to suggest the qualifications of teachers. Of us he demands 'unquestioned patriotism' and a blind devotion to his interpretation of 'Americanism'. Every statement issued by him having any bearing on this subject implies that anyone who does not think the present situation (economic) is absolutely perfect, who might oppose the 'status quo', including unemployed teachers and those fortunate enough to toil for sixty dollars per month, is unqualified to enter the educational profession. The cry has gone up, 'Where are our Lincolns today?' If the Hearsts and the Belgranos had anything to say about it, such men would be in chains or exile. Perhaps the time is ripe for Dr. John G. Rockwell, Minneapolis director of education, to give us a truer interpretation of Americanism."

The city of Bemidji derived a net profit of more than $30,000 from municipally owned liquor stores in 1934. Many villages recently going wet are adopting the municipal dispensary system.

The State Conservation Commission has recommended to Secretary Wallace that a closed duck season for 1935 be ordered. The federal congress and administration make the laws and the regulations governing the hunting of migratory birds. The commission reported that it felt that the drought conditions of the past two years is dangering the life of our remaining waterfowl and that a closed season is necessary for propagation.

Representatives J. H. Sweitzer of St. Paul and S. A. Stockwell of Minneapolis have introduced a far-reaching bill that would provide for many badly needed reforms in the housing accomodations of our larger cities. It would create a State Housing Board with the power to investigate slums and to take steps toward constructing and maintaining low-cost dwellings for people in the lower income classes. The Housing Board would fix the rental prices and have the power to institute proceedings against those not complying with the regulations.

Huey P. Long's chief orator and propagandist, the Reverend Gerald L. K. Smith, addressed the House last week. He came at the invitation of his old friend, Speaker George Johnson. In a flow of wild oratory, Smith gave his audience an idea of the Share Your Wealth program advocated by the Louisiana Kingfish. He was very vague in his program, but his picturesque delivery and his tremendous voice had quite an effect on his listeners.

The House judiciary committee has introduced a bill that would set up a State Bar Association, which all practicing lawyers would be required to join. Annual dues, not to exceed $10, would be fixed by a board of governors, elected by the association. More than three months' delinquency in the payment of dues would bar members from the practice of law.

The Industrial Commission of Minnesota reports an increase in minimum wage adjustments in January, 1935, over December, 1934, $484.00 having been paid by 14 firms. It is significant that of the 16 minors who received wage adjustments in January only two were girls.

Because it is conclusive that minor girls are not on a basis of equality in wage protection with minor boys, one of the bills recommended by the Industrial Commission to the 1935 Legislature relates to an amendment to the minimum wage law whereby girls would come within the jurisdiction of the minimum wage law up to 21 years of age, as is provided in the law for male minors. Girls now receive protection in their wage rights up to 18 years only. The number of girls under 18 in industry is negligible. The State of Minnesota has thus done the unusual thing of placing more legal wage safeguards around boys than girls. Based on the experience of the Division of Women and Children, the Industrial Commission feels that this proposed amendment, which is definitely an equality measure, is a proper subject for remedial legislation.

A sweeping inquiry into telephone companies and their activities will be conducted by the railroad and warehouse commission if a bill introduced in the Legislature last week is approved. The commission, under the proposed measure, is authorized to join with the federal communications commission in study of the problem.

NEW REGULATIONS FOR HOUSE MOVERS

Due to the growing volume of requests for permits to move large buildings over trunk highways, more stringent regulations governing such movements are being drawn up by the state highway department. Movers interested in this type of work are invited to contact the highway department's central office in St. Paul.

DOLLARS WASTED ON UPKEEP
CAN'T BUY NEW ROADS

INFERIOR roads seem cheap and easy to build. They stretch a paving fund so that it covers a lot of territory. But after a year or two, the trouble begins! Maintenance costs go up and up.

That's why it's wise—and economical—to build concrete roads. Concrete lasts! It requires almost no upkeep.

Concrete's smooth, non-skid surface is safe and satisfactory to drive on. It speeds up traffic . . . reduces accidents . . . you save in gas, oil, tires and repairs.

Road building makes jobs for Minnesota men who need work. It is better to give men work building permanent roads than to spend the money for relief or doles.

PROWLERS WILL MEET BEMIDJI QUINT, FEB. 22

Prowler "B" Squad to Play Preliminary Game With Newfolden "Five"

Tomorrow evening the Prowlers will attempt to make it two wins over Bemidji when they meet in the Municipal Auditorium at 8 p. m. The Lumberjacks have an enviable record and one of the strongest teams in Region 8. They have defeated East Grand Forks and Crookston but, in their first encounter with the locals, came out second best.

From the minute the game starts until the final whistle blows, there will be a battle royal to determine the winner. The Lumberjacks will be doing their best to square the 22-14 defeat handed them by the Prowlers earlier in the season.

Most of the local quintet have recovered from their colds and will be back in the line-up in perfect condition for the tilt tomorrow. The Lincoln "five" has had a strenuous week, including games with East Grand Forks and Crookston. Both teams, however, are "in the pink" and it will be anybody's game until the referee's whistle stops the game.

Under the leadership of Galloway, the Bemidji quintet will be playing clever basket ball during each and every moment of play, but the Prowlers will also play intelligent ball and fight hard to send the Lumberjacks home on the short end of the score.

As the curtain raiser the Prowler B squad will meet the Newfolden quintet. The teams met last year and the locals were victorious. Their team consisted of freshmen and sophomores and, with last year's experience, should be able to hold the Lincoln "second bests" to a reasonable score. Be there, and see both of these colossal mixes!

JUNIOR CLASS TO BEGIN TRYOUTS

Miss Edberg Announces March as Date for Play

The members of the Junior class will be glad to learn that tryouts for the junior class play will be held in the near future. The play will be given late in March under the direction of Miss Edberg. To take part in a play, a student must be doing passing work in all his subjects. If you think you can't act, come around anyway for there will be a demand for reliable, ambitious people to help the show go on.

And when you are invited out to a formal dinner and you see one of the guests stealing the silver spoons (probable)—what do they do? Why, unless you're heggish you are always satisfied with the knives and forks. When a gentleman is seated between two ladies (over in Europe), he knows of no better way to start conversation than by saying, "Have you read [illegible]." Girls' Gym Classes Spend Week Dramatizing Story

The queen of hearts, made some tarts, all on a summer's day! Girls' gym classes dramatized this in last week's classes and found it was lots of fun, besides trying their ability at dramatizing.

The story, as the girls dramatized it, was of the knave of hearts who learns a lesson. He steals the tarts the queen has just made and is beaten by the king who suspects him of his wrong. After being beaten he vows, on bended knees, never to steal again.

It was hard to play all these parts to music, in such a short time, but it was done very well. Some good examples are:

Queen— Margaret Gustafson, Margaret Larson and Barbara Reep.

King—Elizabeth Dahlen, Caroline Lillevold, and Flora Schroeder.

Dramatizing in this manner was lots of fun and the girls are hoping that they may do something of this sort in the near future.

VOX MAGISTRI

Fear had settled over the little village of Rome. Its inhabitants had awakened one morning to the excited shouts of early risers, and upon investigation their voices had been added to the ever growing cry, "A great chasm has appeared in the market place!" After they, to a man, had worked diligently throwing rocks and dirt into the cavernous depths but all to no avail, the shouts gradually hushed to anxious whispers. The rumor spread that this was a punishment which had been inflicted by angry gods. Following earnest discussion it was decided to send some of their number to secure an oracle's advice. They brought back the message, "Sacrifice your Dearest Treasure." But, although every individual brought possessions which to him were precious,—soldiers, their weapons; knights, their shining armor; the wealthy, their gold and most costly and lovely gems,—the chasm remained unchanged. "What was it the gods demanded?" It was then that Mettus Curtius, a brave but modest soldier, who had been silently watching the frenzied activities of his fellowmen stepped forward. "If you please," he said to the elders, "I will sacrifice what I think is the 'Dearest Treasure'." While the wondering populace looked on, he strode over to where the steed he had ridden in so many battles stood. With an affectionate word he mounted, and spurring the animal forward plunged into the abyss. Before the awed eyes of the Romans the chasm closed.

Although our credulity makes us doubt the veracity of this incident we, nevertheless, can learn something from the vision the hero had. There is still only one thing that stands paramount in our world today. That is the individual—you! Because those who are the most interested in you know this, you spend six hours of your day in school. Why is it then that you, who will reap the benefits and consequently should be so eager for, are often so indifferent to your opportunities? Assignments are made, and you work them in your indifferent way—too often to make the required impression, and as you say, "get by." I wonder if it has ever occurred to you that you are asked to study not to pass tests, but to learn information that will make you a more useful and interesting personality. Every assignment made is the proverbial gift on the silver platter if you will but realize it.

Our school would be a sorry one indeed if all that were required of you were to read and write on material which others have thought out, even though it is a collection of the geniuses of the ages. This work is essential as a foundation and to give inspiration. But your creative work is more important to you, yourself. Have you ever stopped to think that in this connection you are not working for a mere B or C, but for alertness, resourcefulness, mental courage, and independence, attributes which are a part of you long after the papers you wrote have found their way to the waste basket.

Regardless of what your ambitions may be for after high school days, my word to you is, "Be a real school citizen now." When there is work to be done put your best effort into it. Shake off those slovenly habits of never having your work ready—or if ready, mislaid,—of day dreaming when assignments and explanations are being made, of depending too much on someone else to do what you can do with a little application for yourself. With the correct attitude toward work, could it be possible you will gradually find yourself thinking better thoughts, dreaming bigger dreams, and realizing better ambitions?

PROWLERS BOW TO EAST GRAND BY 30-32 SCORE

Locals Get First Minn. Defeat of the Season in Hard-Fought Battle

Last Friday evening the Prowlers dropped their first defeat to Minnesota competition as the East Grand Forks quintet staged a spectacular fourth period comeback to win 32-30. The Redmen took a 4-2 lead in the first quarter, but the Prowlers, with renewed vigor, secured a 1-12 advantage at the half and had a 27-18 margin after the third period. Then the Little Green Wave began to click on their long shots. In the first five minutes of the last quarter they had tied the score at twenty-nine all. With three minutes of play left Captain Raymond tossed in a field goal and Clingman a free throw, while Mickleson scored a low gift shot for the Prowlers. The East Siders held the Prowlers scoreless for the remaining seconds and won 32-30.

In the first quarter, East Grand Forks was represented on the scoreboard by Clingman and Sundeen, each bagging a field goal. Hermanson and Mickleson each missed gift shots, but Hermanson tipped in Mickleson's miss for the Prowlers' sole basket. The score at the end of the first period stood 4-2.

Kimblin began the second quarter with a long field goal, but Nicholson got himself a free throw and a pair of baskets to give the Lincoln "five" the lead for the first time in the game. Rude followed Hermanson's field goal and Nicholson's free throw with a field goal and a foul on Hermanson. Nicholson tipped in the free throw and Mickleson converted from the foul line. Clingman and Raymond got a gift shot and a field goal and Mickleson dropped in a basket. Kimblin and Lee secured a gift shot apiece and Nicholson scored a field goal to give the Prowlers an 1-12 advantage at the end of the first half.

After the intermission, Raymond scored a field goal and Mickleson retaliated with a field goal and a gift shot, followed by a field goal by Hermanson. Sundeen and Clingman scored a pair of baskets for the East Siders, but this was counter-balanced with field goals by Hermanson and Nicholson. The Prowlers were still leading 27-18.

Raymond opened the last quarter with a free throw, Lee made a long shot to bring the score to 29-19. Rude and Clingman got a pair of baskets and Raymond and Sundeen each followed suit. Rude then tied the score with a long shot. There were only three minutes of play left and Raymond scored from the floor to give the Redmen a 31-29 lead. Mickleson and Clingman ended the scoring with a gift shot apiece. Both sides missed several cinch shots and the Little Green Wave emerged from the struggle victorious.

This game only proves again that "anything can happen in a basket ball game." That last period comeback by East Grand Forks will not be forgotten soon. All the teams in this district are capable of the same thing, but can they do it in the tournament on our floor with our whole student body backing the Prowlers? No!

How they scored:

OUR GREATEST AMERICAN

On February 22 the birthday of the Greatest American, George Washington, will be observed. Washington's name is remembered and held in reverence by each and every American. His birthday will be observed in each home, school, church and office building. Citizens will display flags, school children will recite poems, pastors will preach sermons on his life, and the American laborer will silently think of the great deeds of The Father of Our Country.

George Washington's boyhood life was no different than that of a normal child. When his father died, George was only twelve years old. Nevertheless, he was put in charge of the family homestead on the Rappahannock. This precluded any secret ambition to have an education as his other brothers and sisters had before him. Using pure grit and determination, George Washington learned much from books which he read, facts on forest life, and above all from great observation. This one characteristic illustrates the fine traits that Washington possessed.

At the time of the American Revolution, Washington was chosen as the commander-in-chief of the armies of the United States. In the years which passed, his great gift for military administration and his fine spirit were the watchwords of the army. Though he and his army were invariably defeated they always won in the end. Great statesmen have said that the only factor which won this war was the guiding hand of George Washington.

Who else could be called on to lead his country when the strife of war was over? And so, with Washington's spirit at the helm, the Ship of State again emerged triumphant. Although he knew that this great question would not be solved immediately, Washington performed such traits of leadership that other countries looked to the United States as a leading power among the nations of the earth.

When Washington said farewell to the people he had served for eight years, tears of happiness rolled down his cheeks. He lived for three years in retirement at Mount Vernon. Washington died as he wished to live, "amid the mild concerns of ordinary life."

George Washington will always be remembered as "first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen."

LOCAL DECLAM CONTEST HELD FEBRUARY 14

Dorothy Fowler, Kathleen Monsebroten, and Francis Engle Receive Awards

A large number of declamation enthusiasts attended the final elimination contest last Thursday, February 14. Contestants from all three divisions, humorous, dramatic, and oratory, competed in the contest.

The following gave their selections in the order in which they are listed:

Dramatic—

Madame X—Frances Kavanaugh

Franz—Dorothy Fowler

Patsy—Flora Schroeder

Oratory—

Ropes—Francis Engle

Humorous—

The County Fair—Kathleen Monsbroten

It's a Wise Brother Who Knows His Own Sister—Lois Engen.

Winners of the dramatic division were Dorothy Fowler, first, and Frances Kavanaugh, second; of the humorous division, Kathleen Monsbroten, first, and Lois Engen, second. Judges were Miss Leavitt, Miss Sedlacek, and Mrs. Myrom.

A young violinist's struggle for fame and his friendship with a prima donna form the theme of "Franz". Franz's sorrow at the singer's death is lightened by his ability to make her happy with the music from his violin.

The selection "Madame X" concerns a woman who is turned out of her home by her husband because of another man's love for her. Later on, when she is accused of the murder of this lover, she is defended by her son, who does not recognize her. After she has been acquitted, her son discovers her identity a few moments before her death.

"The County Fair" portrays a variety of characters at the fair. Some of these are a "barker", a small child crying for a balloon, an old couple, a waitress, and a hysterical woman.

"It's a Wise Brother Who Knows His Own Sister" tells about the problems of a boy whose sister occupies the bathroom "for hours, and hours, and hours just for one little bath". However, after he learns that the intended dance has been postponed, he says that he didn't really want to wash his old neck and ears, anyway".

Kathleen Monsbroten, Dorothy Fowler, and Francis Engle, the only contestant in the oratorical division, represented Lincoln High in the district contest Wednesday, February 20.

Many Fouls Committed in Interclass Game

This was a week of outstanding fouls.

Two games were played on Monday. The first one was the Junior D against the Frosh C, with the Juniors on the top side of a 45-21 score. The high scorer for the Juniors was Norman Legvold, and for the Frosh were Bob Hanson and Wendel Olson. The second game between the Juniors A and Sophomore A was more of a football game. The Juniors committed fifteen fouls and their opponents twelve. The Juniors not only won in the foul spree, but in the so-called basket ball game. The score was 25-11. Heine Waag went out on fouls as did Bud Kelly, Don Olson and Milt Nesse. The latter three are Sophs. During the last few minutes of play, the Sophs had only two men playing. Outstanding were Phil Prichard, a Junior, and Don Olson, a Sophomore.

On Wednesday the Freshmen D won their first game of the season. They defeated the Sophomore C 16-15. These two teams are evenly matched as neither has beaten the other by a large score. Floyd Melby made the most points for the Freshmen and Lawrence Erickson performed this feat for the Sophs. The second game was another football-basket-ball game between the Seniors and Freshmen A. The score 31-30 found the upper classmen on the lower end. This offset a former defeat at the hands of the Seniors. No matter how hard a team tries, it cannot seem to keep Art Deuville out of the ranks of stars. Besides Art were Bud Sorenson, Arnt Wold and Walt Kinghorn for the Seniors and Lee for the Frosh. Bud Sorenson and Arnt Wold were sent out of the game because of having four fouls.

PROWLERS WIN OVER STRONG PIRATE QUINT

Game Ends With 22-21 Score; B's Win Over Crookston "Seconds"

In a fast and exciting game, the Prowlers defeated the Pirates of Crookston High School 22-21. The game was close all the way through with the Prowlers leading most of the time but having to come from behind with a thrilling rally to win.

Vordale gave Crookston a one-point lead after being fouled but Hermanson came back with two free throws. Hovde again shoved the Pirates into the lead with a beautiful long shot. Kielty started a rally in which he got a field goal and Hermanson two field goals and a free throw. Vordale scored for the Pirates as the half ended with the Prowlers in a 9-6 lead.

Kielty and Van Pelt opened the second half scoring with free throws but Jenkins came back with two field goals. Hermanson and Kielty added four points to the Prowlers total and Hovde and Pantzer added two for Crookston as the third quarter ended with the Prowlers leading 15-12.

Hovde and Jackson then tied the score but Lee sneaked in for a set up to give the Prowlers the lead. Pantzer then evened the score and Jenkins and Jackson gave Crookston a four point lead. Kielty retaliated for the Prowlers with a beautiful one-hand shot. This seemed to break Crookston's strength and they faltered from then on. Kielty added a free throw and Mickelson sank the winning goal as the game ended.

This game showed that the home team could keep cool under fire and cause the opponents to make errors which won for the Prowlers. In the Preliminary between the two "B" teams, the Prowler seconds won 21-17. This was also an exciting game with the Prowler "second bests" overcoming a four-point lead and going on to win in the closing minutes.

Progress Pokes Its Nose Around

Gather around, boys and girls! Let's move ahead to 1940 and see where some of the outstanding members of our high school are located.

The famous University of Something-or-Other was the scene of a stirring football game. Practically all of Lincoln's former stars were there. And, of course, Adele Holmstrom and Martha Storholm were the chief yell leaders at the University.

From the radio booth came the staccato voice of the announcer, Vic Jung. He is said to be a serious contender against the famous Ted Husing. It might be added that Kathleen Monsbroten and Annette Simonson broadcasted from the same network as Vic's. They were awarded the distinction of being the first women announcers in the United States.

In the press booth the famous editor of the Minneapolis "Crescent" was supervising events. Haven't you guessed yet? Why it's Kendall Gustafson, of course.

Here comes the famous opening parade! The procession is led by Miss Helen Granum who only yesterday was awarded the title of "Miss Minnesota." Behind her we have a full view of Robert Douville and his Minnesotans. Mr. Douville is said to be the successor of the once famous Eddie Duchin. Miss Lois Nelson is featured girl singer with the orchestra.

Now let's hurry back to T. R. F. and see what's happened. The first news to reach our ears is that Miss Roberta Daley has teamed up with Hal LeRoy and is now creating a sensation on her vaudeville tour.

Walking past Hamilton's News Stand, we observe a familiar face. You're right. Henry Arraas has realized his dreams and is now the sole owner of the store.

Farther down the street we encounter Miss Arnhild Fjelstad, under the name of Calli Curci. Miss Fjelstad has won much praise in the Metropolitan Opera House. With her is Marvin Lindberg, who only recently won the world's weinie eating championship in Steiner. As recognition of this fact, Mr. Lindberg will be asked to tour the country relating his experience.

Passing the Hartz store—now enlarged to cover a city block—we notice that "Red" Offerdahl is manager. He firmly believes in the saying, "To succeed, you must start at the bottom of the ladder and then climb the rest of the way."

Time is precious and we must hurry on. If luck holds with us, perhaps next week we'll see more of our old friends.

Chemistry Club Makes Antimony Experiments

The Charles Martin Hall Chemistry Club met on Monday evening at seven thirty o'clock. They studied about phosphorus, arsenic and antimony. They learned to prepare meta-phosphoric acid and to oxidize it with the help of nitric acid to phosphoric acid. They learned the test for phosphate radical by the use of ammonium molybdate.

To obtain the arsenic that they desired they reduced arsenious oxide with carbon.

They became acquainted with the blow pipe and got their first knowledge about the rapid formation of antimony trioxide from molten antimony.

EDITORIAL

Throughout the school year we have many opportunities to observe good and poor sportsmanship. We also have many opportunities to exercise good sportsmanship. Those who show the right attitude both in defeat and victory are those who give a school an admirable reputation. Those who denounce the decisions of referees and judges are those persons who brand the entire school as a poor loser.

There are individuals who seem to take special delight in disputing a referee's decisions at a basket ball game or condemning the judges of a debate or declamation contest because they have not awarded the honors to the "rightful winners." Whether these people are natural "crabs" or merely ignorant of the rules of the contest, they certainly lower themselves in public opinion by showing such very poor taste. The public admires a modest winner and a good loser, but it despises a boaster or a "crab".

The last part of this month, as well as next month, will see the declamation, debate, and basket ball seasons draw to a close. Whether we win or whether we lose, let's consider the outcome just and fair to all participants.

The twelfth annual Official Handbook of the Minnesota High School League contains a set of rules for "The True Sportsman" which we should all read and practice.

If a Player—
1. He is obedient to the rules of the game.
2. He plays fair, plays his best, and plays for the joy of playing.
3. He expects no special favors and offers no alibis.
4. He wins if he can do so honorably; if he cannot win honorably, then he loses graciously.
5. He is an honorable representative of his school.

If a coach—
1. He teaches his boys to win.
2. He teaches them to win fairly.
3. He teaches them that it is better to lose fairly than to win unfairly.
4. He teaches them to respect officials, and set the proper example himself.

If an official—
1. He knows the rules.
2. He is fair and firm in all decisions and calls them as he sees them.
3. He treats players and coaches courteously and demands the same treatment for himself.

If a spectator—
1. He regards the playing of the game as an art and appreciates and enjoys it as such.
2. He respects the officials, the players, the students, and himself.
3. He supports the home team, but is never discourteous to visitors.
4. He recognizes the need for more sportsmen and fewer "sports."

It was by far the hottest exhibition of shooting seen on the local floor in years. Every member of the first five contributed at least four points to the scoring. At the start of the second half the reserves went into action and were held scoreless while St. Hilaire scored a basket. The regulars returned to the game in the final quarter and brought the score up to 45-5. St. Hilaire played a fighting game but the Plummer lads could not miss the basket.

Diamonds for Machine Work

Diamonds have taken the doubt out of fine machine work, not only because they cut so accurately but also because control gauges with diamond points enable the machinist to cut to a precision of one ten thousandth of an inch—to the twentieth thickness of a human hair.

WALDAL IS WINNER IN ELECTION SUIT BEGUN BY W. E. DAY

Lower House of Legislature Decides in Favor of Plummer Man

Four hours of oratory in the Minnesota house of representatives was climaxed Tuesday when Rep. Marius Waldal of Plummer retained his seat in the legislature as the minority report of the elections committee which favored his contestant, Walter E. Day of Bagley, a former member, was defeated.

The minority report was lost by a vote of 73 to 49 and the majority report dismissing Day's contest and seating Waldal was passed by acclamation.

Slight mention of politics was made during the extended debate, but lines were drawn between the independent progressives and the liberals who supported Day, a Farmer-Labor candidate in the 65th district.

The report, gave Rep. Waldal a margin of nine votes in the special canvas made by the committee. The decision hinged on the validity of 14 ballots disputed on the grounds of error in that they showed initialing by an election judge, although when originally counted in Copley township, Clearwater county, and later in a recount, they bore no initials.

Charges that the ballots had been tampered with were heard by the committee, the debate disclosed, but no move was made to invoke the corrupt practices act. The committee proceeded with its investigation relative to the validity of the Copley township vote which swung the balance in favor of Rep. Waldal.

DUAL TAX PLAN INTRODUCED IN LEGISLATURE

WOULD RAISE INCOME, INHERITANCE TAXES

Tax Reform Group Sponsors Gross Income and Sales Taxes

Two widely divergent tax plans for financing the needs of the state government were introduced in the legislature this week, one sponsored by Governor Floyd B. Olson and the other by the Minnesota Federation of Associations for Tax Reform.

Governor Olson submitted a tax program of his own, which he said should produce $20,000,000 to relieve real estate levies. He re-affirmed his opposition to the proposed constitutional amendment limiting tax levies and favored a series of increases in present taxes, rather than the proposed gross income or sales taxes.

In a special message to the senate, he proposed the following replacement taxes:

Substantial increase in rates on higher brackets of the income tax; substantial increase for the upper bracket of the inheritance tax.

Substantial increase in the gross earnings taxes upon public utilities subject to legislative action, and submission to the people of an act increasing the railroads gross earnings tax. Substantial increase in the occupation and royalty taxes on iron ore.

Repassage of the corporate excess tax law, with provisions remedying legal objections as to the original law, and providing for imposition of a 20-mill tax.

Increase of the money and credits tax from 3 to 5 mills, with the right of deducting any amounts paid as money and credit tax from any amount due as a corporate excess tax.

Increase in the tax on chain enterprises.

Enactment of a tax limitation statute coupled with passage of an act for replacement taxes enumerated above, Governor Olson said, is advisable, because benefits from the proposed amendment will be too long in arriving.

A combination of gross income and sales tax, designed to raise $40,000,000 a year, the money to be used as a direct replacement of general property taxes, was offered the legislature as the program of the Minnesota Federation of Associations for Tax Reform.

The federation bill is a companion-piece to its plans for tax limitation, now pending before the legislature, which would write drastic limitations into the taxes that can be levied on real estate.

The revenue bill, which would be enacted along with the tax limitation bill, provides:

A tax of one-half of 1 per cent on the gross income of every person or firm engaged in manufacturing, mining, timber production, agriculture, wholesaling and jobbing.

A tax of 1 per cent on the gross income of all other lines incomes, except insurance companies, non-profit societies, banks, railroads, and all interstate business of any nature.

A retail sales tax of 2 per cent, on sales of tangible personal property, electricity, gas, water, transportation service other than railroads, telephone and telegraph service, amusements, professional services, and such business services as hotels, restaurants, garages, plumbers and similar establishments.

A study of this program was made by the Minnesota Institute of Governmental Research at the request of the federation. The institute takes no stand on the program, but reaches the conclusion this combination tax would produce $39,798,000 a year under present conditions.

Highlanding Creamery Handles Bigger Output of Butter During 1934

The Highlanding co-operative creamery in 1934 manufactured a total of 260,265 pounds of butter for which was received $59,915.65, it was revealed in reports submitted at the annual meeting held recently. The volume represents an increase of 11,000 pounds over the preceding year, and an average price of 25.70 cents was paid for butterfat. In addition to its other activities the creamery handled approximately 30,000 pounds of butter in 1934. Officers are A. Hammersten, president; William Vaughan, secretary; Einar Jensen, treasurer; John Swanson and Palmer Wold, directors; and Gunnuf Gunstenson, operator.

Financial Statement Reveals Improvement

An increase in payments by county residents of current and delinquent taxes and penalties from $302,491.08 in 1933 to $316,785.79 in 1934 is revealed in the annual Pennington county financial statement prepared by County Auditor Harry Fowler and published in detail elsewhere in this issue of the Times.

The gradual improvement in tax collections locally is further indicated by the fact that in 1932 payments amounted to $285,216.66. The 1934 payments included $245,611.97 in current taxes, $69,723.40 in delinquent taxes and $1,450.42 in penalties, interest and costs.

Only a slight change was made during the year in the total of outstanding warrants, the figure at the beginning of the year being $156,084.09 and at the end $158,277.10. However, cash was available at the end of the year to pay a considerable portion of the total. The county's net bonded debt is shown to be $538,500 at the end of the year, a decline of $10,500 from the figure as of January 1, 1934.

A total of $23,130.28 in poor fund warrants was issued during the year, a substantial decline from the $34,285.02 issued in 1933. The total included mothers' pensions aggregating $3,625. Warrants on the poor fund outstanding at the end of the year amounted to $14,738.60 compared to $15,706.71 on January 1, 1934.

During the past year $17,052.97 was spent on construction of county aid roads compared to $16,692.23 in 1933, while state aid road construction was curtailed from $10,175.16 in 1933 to $1,522.28 last year. Snow removal costs during the year aggregated $5,187.16. The overdraft in the road and bridge fund at the end of the year amounted to $81,136.57, virtually the same as at the beginning of the year.

LOCALS DEFEAT ROSEAU HOCKEY TEAM SUNDAY 4-3

Goalie Higinbotham Stops Last Minute Barrage of Scoring Attempts

Backed by the sterling play of Goalie Higinbotham the Thief River Falls senior hockey team Sunday afternoon held off a last-minute rally by the Roseau Cloverleafs to win a thrilling 4 to 3 victory on the local rink.

This is the first time in the past four years that a Thief River Falls team has been able to defeat a Roseau sextet. The locals played brilliant hockey thruout the game with the exception of the last seven minutes when Roseau laid down a barrage of pucks in front of the local goal which would have beaten any team but for the brilliant saves made possible by the eagle eye of goal tender Higinbotham.

The fast-skating pony line of the local team, composed of Ernie and Lennie Helquist and James Nesse, accounted for two of the four goals, the other two being made by the veteran players, Ole Berling and Kenneth Lindberg.

The contest was filled with plenty of spills which served to thrill the small crowd that braved the cold weather to witness the game.

He developed a theme of cooperation between the experience of age and the enthusiasm of youth, pointing out as an example the Continental Congress, in which the oldest member was 81 of age and the youngest was 27.

W. N. Morell, Jr., spoke in behalf of the fathers, while Theodore Quale, Jr., represented the sons. In addition to group singing, two selections were rendered by a quartet including Dr. A. E. Jacobson, Robert J. Lund, S. P. Orwoll and Justus Larson.

SPECIAL MEETING OF CREAMERY TO BE HELD MARCH 16

Parties Opposing Sale of Creamery Building Ask Meeting

A special meeting of the Thief River Falls Co-operative creamery will be held at the Sons of Norway hall Saturday, March 16, at 1 o'clock, for the purpose of voting again on the question of whether or not to sell or trade the present creamery building to the Land O'Lakes Creameries or any other party.

A majority of the stockholders last year voted in favor of trading the building for a new one to be erected by Land O'Lakes, but the deal has been held up by injunction proceedings instituted by a group of 13 stockholders. A hearing in the action had been scheduled for Wednesday of this week, but was postponed owing to the inability of Judge Montague of Crookston to be present to preside.

The petition demanding a special meeting was signed by 31 stockholders, including the 13 participating in the injunction proceedings, among whom are L. O. Stenseth, Gordon M. Olson, Louis Dinmen, Tobias Stene, Christian Steen, Rasmus Oen, Peter Hornseth, Mikkel Jorde, Ed O. Vigen, Ed Grundhaus, Albert Olson, Knute Solheim and P. H. Wright.

Game Warden Walter H. Quist was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Rotary club Tuesday noon. In his talk he discussed conservation problems.

WOOL GROWERS IN SUCCESSFUL MEETING HERE

Several Hundred Attend Annual Meeting of State Association

SPEAKERS DISCUSS MARKETING OUTLOOK

Thief River Falls Was Largest Concentration Point in 1934

Several hundred wool growers from thruout Northwestern Minnesota as well as other sections of the state assembled at the Auditorium in this city Wednesday for what officials declared to be the most successful annual meeting in the history of the Minnesota Co-operative Wool Growers association. This marks the first year in which the meeting has been held outside the Twin Cities.

Present at the meeting were officers and directors of the state and national marketing organizations as well as representatives of the state and federal governments. Alex Huddleston, president of the Minnesota association, was in charge of the day's program.

Figures presented at the afternoon session revealed that in 1934 the Thief River Falls concentration point handled the largest volume of wool of the eight points in the state with a total of 577,000 pounds.

Next came Wabasha with 434,000 pounds; Duluth, 377,000 pounds; Mankato, 310,000; Bemidji, 70,000; Morris, 68,000; Verndale, 63,000; and Carlos, 34,700. The state pool handled a total of 1,952,000 pounds consigned by 6,718 growers.

F. E. Harris, auditor in the department of agriculture, dairy and food, presented the annual report at the morning session in the absence of Manager R. E. Jones of Wabasha, who was detained at his home by illness.

The report called attention to the fact that market conditions during the past year had been unfavorable and that the state pool has on hand more than 2,500,000 pounds of wool remaining unsold. It was stated that the market had declined very materially since the bulk of the wool had been received.

The annual election of directors early in the afternoon session resulted in the re-election of W. L. Edwards of Roseau and J. E. Graham of Chokio, and the naming of J. S. Jones to succeed Austin Johnson of Littlefork, resigned. Mr. Jones is secretary of the Minnesota Farm Bureau federation.

J. Wiley Christie of the United States department of agriculture in Washington presented an interesting exhibit dealing with wool and also a motion picture at the Avalon theatre depicting the various processes thru which the product passes before reaching the market, including spinning, weaving, dying and finishing. He stressed the fact that the great potential market for wool should be developed and that consumption should be increased in the nation by more than 100,000,000 pounds.

Arthur Gilfillan of Spearfish, S. D., widely known humorist and an occasional contributor to the Saturday Evening Post and the Atlantic monthly gave an entertaining talk on the subject of "Secret Sorrows of a Sheepherder."

Al Dexter of St. Paul, who had charge of government cattle purchases in the drouth area last summer, told of the buying of 8,000,000 head of cattle, 11 per cent of the total in the United States. Discussing the livestock outlook he predicted that this country is on the verge of an era of agricultural prosperity, with a strong prospect of much higher prices for all classes of livestock. He advised sheep growers to build up their flocks with a view to obtaining satisfactory prices.

Harry B. Embach of Boston, manager of the National Wool Marketing corporation, told of unfavorable conditions existing in the wool market last year, and said the agency was able to sell almost no wool during 1934. He strongly advocated the co-operative method of handling wool, stating that in this way producers get the best returns over a period of years, and citing government records to prove his point.

The directors were scheduled to meet today to name officers for the ensuing year and to dispose of other matters coming up for consideration.

Marshall Girl Winner of U. S. Pie Baking Event

Eleven judges smacked their lips Friday in Chicago over as fine a lot of cherry pies as had ever been assembled under one roof, went into a huddle and then announced that Miss Inez Todnem, Marshall, Minn., high school girl, was the new champion cherry pie baker of the nation. The contest was under auspices of cherry packers. Miss Todnem, 17 years old, will receive $100 and the honor of having her prize pie sent to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential table. A farm girl living five miles from Marshall, she is a former 4-H club bread-making champion of Minnesota. She learned her art, Miss Todnem said, from her mother.

LIBRARY NOTES

Thirty one rural schools are depending upon the Carnegie Public Library for their library books. An interest in good reading in the schools and adjacent neighborhoods is more apparent than ever before. Teachers are enthusiastic, but at times anxious, as they find it hard to keep up with the increasing demands of their communities. A lively interest in books of travel, history, biography, useful and fine arts is always gratifying, but it is to be regretted that the budget will not allow more generous buying of this class of reading material. Every effort is being made to stretch the funds as far as possible and to keep the books in constant circulation.

Among new books of more than ordinary interest are the following:

"In the Shadow of Liberty", by Edward Corsi, former United States Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, New York District. This account of Ellis Island is the first ever written about the world's foremost immigration station. In the words of the publisher, "It is a story of the strangest, most vivid and prodigious parade in the history of man—the parade of twenty five million migratory souls to America in search of liberty and opportunity. Mr. Corsi's book has real historical significance, for it shows us the roots of modern America and reveals some of the causes of our national strength and weakness. It is thoroughly readable and makes a unique and absorbing story."

"Wild Flowers" by Homer House contains three hundred and sixty four full color illustrations with complete descriptive text and is perhaps the most beautiful book of its kind, published. It easily identifies any wild flower in the United States. This book is a gift purchased with special funds raised some years ago by members of the library board.

"Through Space and Time", by Jeans is as interesting as his "Mysterious Universe" and because of the simple way in which the subject has been handled, may prove even more popular.

"Where the Ghetto Ends" by Dennen is the story of the Jew in Russia. Of this book, Louis Adamic, author of Native's Return" and "Dynamite", says it has one fault. It is too short.

"Skin Deep" by Phillips is the companion book of "Twenty Thousand Guinea Pigs" and, naturally, is in demand.

"Half a Mile Down" by William Beebe has a fascinating subject and will have a double appeal because of the vivid descriptions and forceful style.

BOY LOSES EYE WHEN SHELL EXPLODES

Fergus Falls.—Lloyd LaPlante, 14 years old, lost his eye in a strange hunting accident recently. He and several other boys were enjoying a school holiday hunting on the river. One of the boys was loading his gun when two of the shells fell into a bonfire. One of the shells went off immediately and the boys turned away to wait for the other. When the second shell had not exploded for some time, LaPlante started to turn around and was shot in the eye. He walked to town, and was taken from there to the University Hospital in Minneapolis.

W. C. T. U. News Notes

Repeal was intended to accomplish several things, among which were the elimination of a contradiction between the law about drinking and the practice of drinking, and the use of a public habit for the benefit of the Government's treasury. These two objectives have been attained to a certain extent, though the laws are still widely violated and the revenue derived from taxation has not been as great as was anticipated. But these are the only two ends which one can honestly say have been reached in any important degree.

The bootlegger has not been beaten. The gangster has not been crushed, but has simply transferred his efforts to other lucrative fields which he had already explored thoroughly before repeal. Above all, temperance has not been fostered in any sense whatsoever. The drinking done by children scarcely out of their swaddling clothes, about which all who saw it felt such great concern, has simply been intensified by the mushroom sprouting of night clubs and roadhouses which handle liquor openly and sell to anyone who comes. The stories which the Chicago American, a repeal newspaper, ran some weeks ago were evidence enough of that.

Naked repeal has already shown itself utterly unsuited as a final solution of the liquor problem. It has accomplished but little that was claimed for it when it was merely a proposed action. It has contributed nothing toward transforming the public attitude from one which, in many circles, approved heavy drinking to one that disapproves it. It has created a vast chaos of conflicting regulations and contradictory absurdities between local and Federal law and among the several states. And it has made more difficult the eventual achievement of a rational and finally effective social regulation and control of the commercial liquor traffic. That effective control will some day be attained, but it will come by a long, slow process, and it will require the most intense constructive thought and a continued and unified political program.

OWNS LAND GRANT SIGNED BY LINCOLN

Faribault.—George Marks of Walcott has the original land grant to a 120 acre farm in that township which was given to his grandfather on April 1, 1861, and which contains the signature of President Lincoln. The land was originally assigned to one Joseph Julin, a private, who served in Captain Goss' company, South Carolina Militia, War of 1812. The land was assigned by Julin to Franklin W. Taylor, and by him to George W. Marks, in whose favor the land was located. The grant is almost as old as the State of Minnesota, and the land has been in the Marks family ever since it was given.

If Postmaster General Farley finds it so easy to get a profit out of his department's operations in 1934, wouldn't it be a good idea to make him secretary of the treasury?

Red River Valley History

By Wm. V. Working

First Coming of White People

Little is known concerning the activities of whites in the immediate vicinity of Thief River Falls prior to 1800. Explorers visited the neighborhood, but none of the outstanding figures of this period, such as Groseilliers, Radisson, Du Luth and the LaVerendryes, was definitely identified with this region. The claims of Groseilliers and Radisson as to areas visited are disputed and DuLuth does not appear to have reached this vicinity. Father Hennepin celebrated for his explorations farther south in the state, evidently did not see the Red river valley and it is assumed that he did not get in this section. But the LaVerendryes, the only ones of the early explorers, to visit the Red river valley area, also were identified with the extreme northern part of the state. They undoubtedly were closer to and knew more about this neighborhood than the others.

We have several authorities for the statement that a trading post was operated at the junction of the Thief and Red Lake rivers as early as 1794, Perrault in his Michigan Pioneer and Historical Collections places Vincent Roy, the trader, at this point in that year and James P. Schell in his Story of Early Missions on the Minnesota Frontier also finds Roy here in 1798. Then David Thompson, the scientist map-maker and fur-trader explorer who visited the Red river valley district in that year shows the Roy post here on a map accompanying his narrative.

So we have ample authority for dating the first white occupation back to 141 years ago, which ranks the site close to old Pembina as an early trading post point. By the way, while we do not know definitely when the episode that gave the river and the city their names took place, it is clear that it was some time before 1800 because Alexander Henry, Jr., the explorer and fur-trade promoter for the Northwest Fur company, who was stationed at Pembina from 1800 to 1808 refers to the stream as "Lac aux Voleurs" and "River aux Voleurs", or River of Thieves.

Early cartographers labeled the stream Stealing and Thieving river, and Major Stephen H. Long, who headed an expedition which explored the Red river country as far north as Winnipeg in 1823, wrote it "Thief river". This was probably the first time this form was used in any writings. Major Long did not see the river, but Count Beltrami the eccentric Italian traveler, who quarreled with members of the Long party and left it at Pembina, saw it in his later wanderings and in his book, "Pilgrimages in Europe and America", refers to it as "Robber river", which he says was called "Wamans Watpa" by the Sioux and "Puwlaci sibi" by the Cypowas (Chippewa). Either Beltrami erred in transcribing the Indian terms or the names were those applied by a single band of each tribe, since these names are not the ones applied to the stream by either Sioux or Chippewa generally.

While we are on the subject of the name it is interesting and even amusing to note that the residents of Thief River Falls have from an early date started movements at times for a change in the name. Henry A. Castle in his History of Minnesota says:

"From time to time the inhabitants of the vicinity have clamored for a change of name, not relishing the implication in Thief river—to some it seemed entirely too suggestive for the name of a law-abiding community. However, as long as Chicago prospers in spite of its name, which is just plain Chippewa for skunk, Thief River Falls can doubtless worry along under its title. It might be added that Manhattan is a slightly corrupted Indian word meaning "place of drunkenness", which dry leaders may charge is a highly appropriate name. Anyway, while some Thief River Falls residents may still be ashamed of the name, the only drawback seems to be in the fact that tourists occasionally bother residents with questions as to the source of the name. Obviously there is absolutely no reason to be ashamed of any implication in the name, as it applies in no way to any whites who ever were here and, for that matter meant no reference, as we know, to stealing when first used by the Chippewa. Incidentally, information received by the writer from a research worker, based on articles in old files of the Thief River Press in the Minnesota Historical society library in St. Paul, shows that there was a "mild effort" in 1895 to have the name changed to Ogahmah. This movement seems to have proved futile after brief agitation. The writer has no Indian language dictionary at hand, but has a faint recollection that the word, Ogahmah, means chief or leader in Chippewa—at least, the expression, "Big Ogahmah" once was a popular one. Ogahmah Falls would sound all right, even attractive perhaps, but Ogahmah alone, is not so good, in the writer's opinion. It would be interesting to learn the reactions of Times-readers in this matter of the city's name. The writer will be glad to consider any communications sent him in care of the Times.—Northwestern Feature Service.

Where did we get the DOLLAR-SIGN

Why don't we use a big D for "dollar" and draw two lines through that? Who started the idea of using an S instead?

Well, one explanation links us with old Spanish trading days. Prices were based on pesos, which was abbreviated to read Ps. Gradually, they say, we came to write the P right on top of the S. But that sign was too hard to read, so we rolled the loop off the P, which left $, and finally, we picked up another stroke and put it through the S, resulting in the present $.

Now reading the dollar-sign is natural to every one. But much more important, we believe, is learning to read dollar-values.

When you hold a newspaper in your hand, the dollar values are right before your eyes. You find them in nearly every good advertisement. They tell you where to get the most quality at the lowest cost.

It's a good practice to study dollar-values in the TIMES before you set out to buy. Then the price tags mean more to you than a group of figures.

DOWELL TALKS ON REPORT ON DIRECT HOG MARKETING

Suggests Form of Supervision for Marketing System

Superintendent A. A. Dowell of the Northwest School addressed the College and Experiment Station staff at University Farm, St. Paul, on Monday of this week on the study relating to the direct marketing of hogs, which was recently released by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics at Washington. According to Mr. Dowell, a summary of the study may be secured by writing to the Chief of the Bureau in care of the Department of Agriculture. The complete report which carries the data and analysis upon which the summary is based is now in the hands of the government printer and will be available for distribution within the next few weeks.

"Farmers throughout the nation have been eagerly awaiting the report of this study which was made at the urgent request of market, packer and producer interests," Dr. Dowell said. "This vexing question, which has been the subject of nationwide discussion for many years, has now been definitely settled," he continued, "and attention is now being focused on the suggestions carried in this report.

"The study shows that direct marketing has not lowered the price level on hogs; it has not added to the cost of marketing hogs; nor has it reduced net returns to hog producers. Direct marketing developed as a result of powerful economics forces, including the shift in corn and hog production; granting of concentration privileges by railroads which encouraged points, but was denied most public markets, thus injuring the latter's order buying business; the establishment of a freight structure that favored the shipment of hog products rather than live hogs from the western corn belt to eastern consuming centers; the lower wage levels at interior packing points; to the development of good roads, and use of trucks; and to marked change in methods of communication such as telephone and radio market news service.

"Since direct marketing has certain economic advantages, it should not be prohibited but rather should be given such supervision as will be of value to producers. Hogs should be sold on a basis of grade at all markets; interior prices should be quoted as a range rather than a 'board' price plus an unknown 'add'; filling hogs should be discontinued except for humanitarian purposes, and the Federal Market News service should be expanded.

"Farmers are not interested merely in preserving or promoting any method of marketing as such, but rather in the kind of service that will give them the greatest net return. The future of producers marketing agencies will depend upon the ability of its leaders to face the facts and keep abreast of changing economic conditions. There is no reason to suppose that there is not room for both types of marketing. The relative position of each in the long run will depend upon the service rendered."

If you have neglected to return cards with report of game taken in 1934 open hunting seasons, do so at once, is the advice of Erling Swenson, director of the division of game and fish. Failure to make return may bar licenses for hunting this coming fall, Mr. Swenson warned.

Ontario Official to Speak at N. W. School

Officials of the Northwest School of Agriculture have announced the Honorable Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture of the Province of Ontario, Canada, as the Commencement speaker on Thursday, March 2. Mr. Marshall is one of the most forceful speakers on agricultural topics in Canada and is known as the father of the School of Agriculture movement in that country. As Minister of Agriculture in Alberta some years ago, Mr. Marshall established schools similar to those in Minnesota at six centers in that Province. In addition to his engagement at the Northwest School, Mr. Marshall will also deliver the commencement addresses at the Central and West Central Agricultural Schools during the same week.

CORN-HOG SIGNERS WILL NUMBER OVER MILLION THIS YEAR

Pennington County Signup Seen as 25 Per Cent Under Last Year

With the signing of 1935 corn-hog applications now under way in the leading corn-hog States, indications are that the sign-up this year will be about the same as in 1934 when more than 1,100 producers cooperated to adjust production to effective demand.

Lowest estimates reaching the corn-hog section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration from the States indicate a sign-up of from 80 to 90 per cent of the 1934 figure, while the highest estimates indicate a gain of 5 to 10 per cent.

In Pennington county, the total sign-up will probably be about 25 per cent lower than last year, according to County Agent R. M. Douglass.

"If the forecasts for the nation should prove to be accurate," says Dr. A. G. Black, chief of the corn-hog section, "the 1935 program should be fully effective in holding production in line with demand. This is significant because full success of the 1935 program depends upon co-operation of a majority of producers."

Northwest Automobile Show in Minneapolis Set for March 9 to 16

Two hundred new models of the 1935 motor cars, representing the aristocracy of the automobile industry will be put on exhibition at the annual Northwest Automobile Show at the Minneapolis Auditorium March 9-16.

Everything from the latest high class sedan in the upper brackets, to the small cabriolet with the rumble seat in the lower price field will be displayed according to plans now underway by the 26 factory representatives for the show.

A complete program for entertainment will be presented with two orchestras playing for both early visitors and dancing and a complete list of vocal artists varying during each of the eight days of the show.

Six cars will be given away during the show, and winners will be drawn from stubs attached to all paid admission tickets, according to plans.

The main thing we have learned from our short-wave set is that nearly every country in the world is full of sopranos.—Grand Rapids Press.

A fellow has to be a contortionist to get by these days. First he has to keep his back to the wall, and his ear to the ground. Then he must put his shoulder to the wheel, his nose to the grindstone, keep a level head and have both feet on the ground.

R. C. BUREAU FARM INCOME SHOWS BIG INCREASE IN 1934

Despite the severe drouth of last summer, approximately 4,000 farms owned by the State Rural Credit department earned $800,000 rent in 1934, nearly double the $425,000 earned in 1933 on 3,760 farms. T. H. Arens, conservator, disclosed Saturday.

This represents a return of approximately 3.2 per cent on the state's investment of nearly 25 million dollars in 1934, as compared to a return of only 1.68 per cent on $25,500,000 in 1933, and only 1 per cent, or $192,000 on 7,789 farms representing an investment of $19,766,908 in 1932.

The increase in rent payments was made, the conservator asserted, in spite of the fact that more than 1,000 state-owned farms in the severe drouth area in west central Minnesota failed to return any rent to the department in most cases.

At the same time Mr. Arens said he hoped, if there is no drouth or other crop disaster this year, to increase the rental revenue to a million dollars in 1935 and expressed the belief the ultimate loss to the state on liquidation of the department may be considerably less than the 20 million commonly estimated if agricultural conditions improve in the future.

While a heavy loss is inevitable because of loans far in excess of reasonable values made on farms, Mr Arens said, the eventual amount is dependent on crop conditions and prices in the future, which he believes may improve and thus lessen the total loss.

In any event, it will be at least ten and possibly fifteen or twenty years before taxpayers of the state are called on to pay the losses sustained by the bureau, as its loans were made on a 35-year amortization basis.

The conservator also estimated that approximately one-third of 6,346 delinquent loans of the department would be eligible to scaling down under legislation pending in the State Legislature, and that the reductions in loans probably would total between three and four million dollars.

MERCURY HITS MINIMUM OF 17 BELOW MONDAY

March 1 is Good Date to Begin Farm Record, Farm Specialist Says

March 1 is a very convenient date for farmers to begin keeping records and accounts, says S. A. Engene, extension farm management specialist, University Farm, St. Paul. He advises every farmer not keeping records now to begin at once.

"Making a record of the amount and value of all farm property owned at the beginning and end of the record year is an important part of any worth while record system" Mr. Engene says. "Such an inventory can be taken easier and more accurately on or about March 1 than at any other time of the year, because most of the farm feed supply has then been fed; the surplus livestock marketed, and the seed supply cleaned and sacked.

"March 1 is also the beginning of the lease period on the majority of rented farms in Minnesota, and is also nearly the beginning of the cropping season.

"Good farm records started now will enable the farmer to measure more accurately the success of his year's business; to determine more accurately the sources of his profits and losses; and to plan his future farming operations more intelligently. They will also help him to prove compliance with his 1935 agricultural adjustment contracts and to establish claims for production allotments and benefit payments under any new contracts which may be offered.

"The AAA farm record book, a copy of which can be obtained free by every farmer from the county agricultural agent; contains convenient forms for recording farm income and expenditures; inventories of farm property at the beginning and end of the year; acreages and yields of all farm crops planted and harvested; and the number of pigs farrowed on the farm. Every farmer who has not yet received his copy should apply for it at once."

RABBITS BARRED FROM PHEASANTS' DINNER

Clarkfield.—Clarkfield is now vying with Tracy for honors in the race to keep starving pheasants alive. Tracy sportsmen employed an airplane to drop feed to the hungry birds in their district, but the Clarkfield hunters discovered that thieving jack rabbits made off with the ringnecks' food if left in the open. To meet this emergency, emissaries of the Clarkfield sports were sent out to construct a self-feeder that would keep the jacks from the pheasant's feed. A cleverly built self-feeder was devised, and covered with wire netting. Now the birds can reach the feed, but the rabbits can only get near enough to work up an appetite.

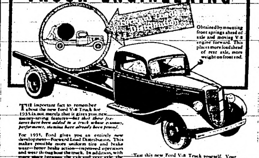
FORD PRESENTS
ANOTHER ADVANCE IN TRUCK ENGINEERING



Obtained by mounting front springs ahead of axle and moving V-8 engine forward. This places more load ahead of rear axle, more weight on front end.

THE important fact to remember about the new Ford V-8 Truck for 1935 is not merely that it gives you new money-saving features—but that these features have been added to a truck whose economy, performance, stamina have already been proved.

For 1935, Ford gives you an entirely new development—Forward Load Distribution. This makes possible more uniform tire and brake wear—better brake action—improved operation and wear throughout the truck. In addition, with more space between the cab and rear axle, the 1935 Ford V-8 permits acute angle turns with full-width semi-trailers.

No matter how efficiently you are now doing your hauling, these and the other features of the 1935 Ford V-8 are important advantages to consider. They are matched by no other truck in America today, regardless of price.

Test this new Ford V-8 Truck yourself. Your nearest Ford dealer will let you do this on your own job, under your own load, with your own driver!

$500 and up, F. O. B. Detroit. Easy Terms Through Universal Credit Company, The Authorized Ford Finance Plan.

LOCALS TO MEET GRAND FORKS CENTRAL MAR. 1

Nelson Central's Scoring Threat; "B's" Will Play Alvarado as Opener

As a climax to the current basket ball schedule, the Prowlers meet the Grand Forks Central Quintet at the Municipal Auditorium Friday evening. The North Dakota team defeated the locals on their own floor in an early season game, but the Lincoln five is out to even up matters in tomorrow's cage battle.

Nelson, the visitors' center and most dangerous scoring threat, has been showing some of his early season ability lately and will probably be at the height of his form on Friday. It will be remembered that he scored twenty-two points in the first encounter with the warriors of the Gold and Blue, but, without his scoring partner, Burchardt, to feed the ball to him, his influence on the scoreboard will be less prominent.

This game, from the minute play begins until the referee's whistle stops hostilities, will be one of the fastest, classiest, and closests contests of the fast departing season. The two teams are in the "pink" of condition and neither will give in or concede the slighest edge to the other before the score definitely decides the victor.

With the incentive to return Central's favor and with a desire to give the local fans their last real treat before the District Tournament, the mighty Prowlers will be fighting every second of play. The form shown in the Bemidji tilt is sure to be present again tomorrow evening. A question mark of unprecedented size is hanging over the outcome of this game.

In direct contrast with the main event, the Lincoln seconds will exert their powers over the Alvarado quintet in the preliminary mix-up. The local B squad defeated the Alvarado "five" a few weeks ago on their own floor by a 31-9 victory. The Prowler "second beats" will, in any event, show that they, too, are basket ball players in their own right and hand Alvarado a good trimming.

Both of the games will be worth seeing. Remember that this game will be your last chance to see the Prowlers in action before the district tournament. Don't miss either attraction.

JOSIE'S NOTES

I'm a dreamer, Montreal". Oh my goodness the way these Lincoln High students do dream. Oh dear! Oh dear! Oh! "The" dreamer, dreamed a dream the other night which is hair raising. Anyway it wasn't told to me I only heard, here 'tis:

Somehow or other Heinie Waug barely escaped with his life the other day. Well he figgured he was in love, but his girl just didn't cotton up to him worth a plugged nickel. Well he hung around for awhile an' then he went an' told her he was fixin' to commit suecide on accounts' she treated him so worse.

He asked the doctor to let him have some poison an' Doc give him a rope, a ol' .38 pistol, an' a poison pill and heads for the river.

He makes him a noose and slips it 'round his neck, throws the other end over the tree; takes his poison pills, pulls out his pistol and takes one last look on the crool world. "Fare thee Well!" says he. He pops the pills in his mouth, points the gun at his head, and pulls the trigger as he jumps off the bank into the river. Then I suppose it was "blessed oblivion", but don't ye know—that bullet cut the rope and he hit the water with a heap big splash, the water entered his mouth, filled him up "till the pills floated to the top and went sailing down the river, and if he hadn't been a pretty good swimmer he would 'a' drouned sure. But that dream don't end that way. Hank is still as good as hole an' just as much ga goo about "the" girl.

To the freshmen: (poor dears don't feel badly)

Don't worry if your job is small
And your rewards are few
Remember that the mighty oak
Was once a nut like you.

Somebody mentioned the fact that if Wayne K. was very kind and polite to his friends what would they think? Some of them will think they can probably lick him. So beware Wayne, "there are daggers in men's smiles."

"Help, I can't swim!"
"What, you can't swim?"
"No, I can't swim."
"Why cant you swim?"
"I aint in the water."

Did you know that
Mary had a little cold
It developed into croup
And everytime that Mary coughed
Her tonsils looped-the-loop.

WHEN a boy breaks a date he has to,
When a girl breaks a date she has TWO.

GENTLEMEN may prefer blondes, but there are still those high school boys.

H. S. Debaters Practice With A. C. Team Tonight

Last Thursday, February 21, the Lincoln debate team journeyed to Crookston, where they participated in the first of two practice debates with Crookston A. C.

In spite of the fact that they were debating negative, their weakest case, the local team made an excellent showing and held a slight edge throughout the debate. However, no decision was rendered, since the debate was held only for the practice it would provide.

Tonight the A. C. Debaters will come to Thief River Falls for the second debate. This time the Lincoln debaters will have the affirmative and in all probability, will again have the advantage unless their opponents present an unusually good negative case. Again there will be no judges' decision, the purpose of the debate being identical with that of the first.

PROWLERS AGAIN WIN OVER BEMIDJI LUMBERJACKS 33-23

Kielty and Hermanson High Point Men for Locals; "B's" Win Over Newfolden

Last Friday, before a large crowd, the Prowlers scored their second victory of the year over the Bemidji Lumberjacks. The Prowlers took the lead early in the game and were never headed after that. In the first half the Prowlers scored 16 points to Bemidji's 11, and in the second half 17 to Bemidji's 12.

The Prowlers took the lead right away on field goals by Hermanson and Mickleson but Bemidji came back and tied the score at four on a goal and free throw by Slosson and a free throw by Galloway. Kielty then gave Thief River a 6-4 lead as the quarter ended. McCormick and Galloway put the Lumberjacks out in front but the Prowlers put on a scoring spurt with Kielty getting two field goals, Van Pelt two and Nicholson one. The first half ended with the Prowlers out in front 16 to 11 after Galloway had scored two field goals and Hermanson had made a gift shot.

After the intermission the Prowlers came back strong with Kielty getting a basket and Hermanson and Mickleson scoring five points apiece. Bemidji stopped this rally and came back strong with Slosson, McCormick and Olson getting field goals and Olson also adding a gift shot. As the fourth quarter started Bruggeman made a set up but Lee and Hermanson ran the score up to 31 to 18 for the Prowlers. Bruggeman then added three points for the Lumberjacks and Kielty got two for the Prowlers as the game ended with the Prowlers leading 33 to 23.

In this game the Prowlers showed more of the excellent shooting and ball handling than they had exhibited earlier in the season. Kielty and Hermanson were high point men for the evening with nine points apiece. They were also the Prowlers biggest threat. Slosson, Galloway and McCormick were the big guns in Bemidji's attack.

In the preliminary game the gam the Prowler seconds ran their string of consecutive victories to eighth when they defeated Newfolden 20 17.

GIRLS WEIGHED, MEASURED AT END OF 6 WEEK PERIOD

"Don't look now! No, I'm only about twenty per cent overweight. Whew, guess I'll have to go on a diet!"

This is the way the girls reacted this week when they were weighed and measured for the six weeks' period.

The girls' heights and weights were taken and recorded on their report cards so that their parents will notice it. If they see that they are ten per cent underweight or twenty per cent overweight, they have an opportunity to correct it.

Grade Schools Play Two Games Friday

Two games were played Friday night. They were Knox and Northrop, and the seventh and eighth grades.

In the Knox-Northrop game, Knox defeated their opponents 17-7. Carlson and Stone were outstanding for Knox and Gustafson for Northrop. The eighth grade again overcame the seventh by a score of 17-15. The high scorers were Bredeson of the seventh grade and Mickelson of the eighth.

Washington's Birthdate Commemorated by Speech and Group Singing

To open the program celebrating the birthday of the Father of our country, Miss Springen led the student body in signing "America" and "Yankee Doodle". Then it was the great pleasure of Lincoln High school to secure the able services of Superintendent Arnold Gloor of Crookston. Supt. Gloor was a very able speaker on George Washington as he has given addresses on him and for the celebrating the 200th centennial of the birth of Washington two years ago.

Supt. Gloor opened his address by explaining that the school boards of Minnesota were allowed to decide whether school should be closed or left open with one hour for exercises appropriate for the day. He said that Thief River Falls had wisely chosen the latter, a point on which the student body seemed to disagree slightly with him. In order that he might prove that Washington was truly great he gave four tests for greatness: (1) Contemporary fame, that is the fame given to you by your contemporaries while you are living. Washington showed contemporary fame by the confidence and leadership he put forth in his mission to Fort Duquesne, his mission to help Braddock defeat Fort Duquesne, as Commander-in-Chief of the Colonial forces in the Revolutionary War, as a Delegate and chairman of the Continental Congress, and finally in his first and second terms as President of the United States. In all these duties Washington showed ability, leadership, confidence and diplomacy.

The second test for greatness is posthumous fame or the fame accorded to a person after he is dead. Although Monroe was unanimously elected president, but for one vote, after he died people forgot about him and Coolidge a beloved President who has not been dead but a short time is forgotten by most people now. But Washington is still remembered, spoken of, thought of, and loved. This is shown by the biographies on his life, the coins, stamps, towns, cities townships, and state named for him and after him. Also his home, Masonic lodge, and the church he attended have become national shrines. His fame as it lives on, increases.

While a man may be honored by his contemporaries and posterity, to be truly great a third test, that of achievement, is necessary. "The best life is that in which creative instinct is dominant over acquisitive instinct." This maxim means that the best life is that in which the urge to create, to achieve is master over the urge to get, acquire, or enjoy. This is not true in very many men but George Washington is a good example. Most men like John D. Rockfeller crave wealth but they, like he, become much better men after they find that this wealth can be used to help others less fortunate. However it must not be said that the acquisitive instinct was entirely absent from Washington's life for he was a very wealthy man in the Colonies, and which was not to his credit, he was stingy and not given to overpaying his servants. But while he had the urge to acquire and enjoy, the urge to achieve was dominant, for it was through his efforts that the Colonies secured their independence. Of course, some people will argue that it was through France's aid but if it had not been through Washington's efforts in keeping the Colonial army together the aid from France would have come too late. Another of his achievements was the preservation of the union of the Colonies. We owe it to Washington that we are independent of Great Britain rather than dependent like some countries. In this achievement he was handicapped because of his lack of experience and military training and the poor soldiers included in his armies.

The fourth test for greatness is vision. Washington was a man of vision seasoned with judgment. While he was not a fanatic jumping at hastily drawn conclusions he also was not tied down by precedence or loyalty to the king when he felt it was wrong. He was a man who could look into the future and break a new trail.

Finally after we have proved that Washington was truly great you may ask "If he is dead why celebrate his birthday?" It is not for his benefit, as he is dead but its purpose is to set an example for us and help us in our daily life. Mr. Gloor closed his speech with the exhortation "Permit your creative instinct to dominate your acquisitive instinct."

After the speech Miss Springen led in the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

—Marjorie Matheson.

Prowlers Receive Ultra-Violet Ray Treatments

During the past two weeks, the victorious Prowlers have been favored with ultra-violet ray treatments by the St. Lukes Hospital. The rays are a help in preventing colds and other winter ailments. The time for the treatments has been increased to ten minutes and the boys are assuming an aspect of having spent the winter in Florida.

With the District Tournament only a week away, the Lincoln squad will be less in danger of losing players because of colds. Through the early part of the winter, there was always at least one player missing, but lately all have reported to practice. Hats off to the St. Lukes Hospital for keeping our squad intact.

VOX MAGISTRI

There is no frigate like a book
To take us lands away,
Nor any coursers like a page
Of prancing poetry.
This traverse may the poorest take
Without apress of toll;
How frugal is the chariot
That bears a human soul!
—Emily Dickinson

As a high school student thumbs through the pages of The National Geographic Magazine, he is fascinated by the advertisements of tours to celebrate the winter sports at Lake Placid or to enjoy the winter in Florida. He dreams of the day when travel will be his fortune. Little does he realize that studying literature is traveling. He has the opportunity to cross this vast country of ours and to see the rocky coast of Maine, the trim New England villages and farms, the rolling prairies of the Middle west, the towering skyscrapers of our cities, and the awe-inspiring Sierras. The actuality is, perhaps, more thrilling. But everyone cannot pack his things and board a transcontinental express to New York City, where he can rub shoulders with the Broadway crowds. Nor can he fly his own plane to the plantations of the South. Neither is he so fortunate as Richard Halliburton, who sails to distant lands and writes of his unusual experiences, as his swim through the alligator infested waters of the Panama Canal. As on a magic carpet, he is transported from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Happenings become as real as Alice's trip through the looking-glass, and the characters as human as Bo Peep and Tom Thumb in the picture "Babes in Toyland".

In common language, a good traveler must be a "good sport", never complaining if the meals are not to his liking. He cannot be indolent about his sight-seeing, nor sleep away his time in a hotel when he should be climbing to the top of the Washington Monument for a view. If he travels with a party, he recognizes the desires of others. So it is with a student. He should not complain if the essay is difficult and the story uninteresting. He should not shy from climbing to the heights of the elevated thoughts of our writers. He should realize the possibilities about him.

The traveler plans his trip carefully. When he has collected the necessary maps and booklets, he studies his route on the map and the notations about the sights of interest. The student has the dictionary, which assists him to understand the author's meaning; the reference book, which gives him the necessary historical background; and the explanatory notes, which help him to appreciate any allusions. These are his signposts and guide books.

For the student, the itinerary is well-planned. He first travels into past history where no automobile, train, or airplane can take him. The chroniclers of the Virginia and New England settlements reveal for him their daily actions. In Sara Kimble Knight's dairy, the student learns that in 1704 it took two weeks to travel 180 miles. He stops to listen to the defiance of Patrick Henry, to weigh the advice of George Washington against foreign entanglements, to absorb a little of Franklin's philosophy of common sense. In Irving's famous yarns, the student traveler visits the Hudson River and the Catskills. As he continues on his journey, he thinks the great thoughts of Emerson and Lincoln. With Mark Twain, he pilots a barge down the Mississippi. Bret Harte relives for the student the days of the gold rush to California. In Hamlin Garland's "The Son of the Middle Border," the student visualizes poignantly the hardships of the pioneer. Then as the traveler follows his tour into the modern era, he feels the reaction of the industrialism of the city in Carl Sandburg's poetry.

A student has not only the privilege of traveling with these and other distinguished guides, but he has the opportunity to meet interesting personalities. From them he experiences the sorrows, the joys, the kindnesses, and the rollicking humor and wit of people. He learns just a little more of human nature. He arms himself to cope with his own world about him.

L. E. GERDE ENTERTAINS ASSEMBLY, MON.

Ventriloquism, Tricks of Magic and Cards Delight L. H. S. Student Body

On Monday February 25 the Lincoln High School had a very interesting and entertaining assembly, in which Mr. L. E. Gerde, a Magician, was the entertainer. As soon as Mr. Claffy had introduced him, he went to his magic experiment.

His first trick was that of an old man sawing wood with an ax. After that he imitated a butcher, who he had recently visited, sawing a bone. By pounding his chest with his fists, Mr. Gerde was able to make various tunes. After that, telling how he had been at a fair and seen a man with a Stock bag, he showed how he imitated the Stock bag sounds the first time and then the improved, that was with a little tune.

Ah, on his hand he drew a picture of his best girl. His grandmother was his best girl for she never made him eat potatoes! After putting a handkerchief around his hand, symbolizing the scarf of "grandmother" he had his best girl talk and sing.

Later he guided a little Norwegian boy up onto the stage who [illegible] "Yankee Doodle Doo" after explaining that his teacher said any "usede do". The boy asked Mr. Gerde to multiply huge sums for which Mr. Gerde replied, "What do you take me for, a fool?" Then testing his knowledge of geography, Mr. Gerde asked "what shape the world was." To this the boy replied, after answering some minor questions about Mr. Gerde's cuff buttons, "Square on week days and round on Sundays." The little boy sang two songs; one to the girl in the yellow dress and the other song was in Norwegian.

Card tricks followed. By giving several cards to the audience, he finds the corresponding cards in the center, top or bottom of the deck, fitting to the request of the holder of the card. One card was made to correspond by having someone blow on it. Parts of cards were put properly together. Bruce Prichard held a glass containing an egg. Mr. Gerde then shot at the glass. After breaking the egg he found the remaining part of the card which one of the audience held.

A little red boy held the mystery of securing or making an egg disappear. Even with two boys holding his sleeves, he still held the power of having the egg come and go.

Three big cards, namely a Jack-of-Diamonds, and Queen-of-Clubs, and Jack-of-Hearts. The cards would never be where one expected it to be. The moral of this was "Not to Gamble!".

Again a mystery came before us. A prisoner hand cuffed by two guards. These people were really two green handkerchiefs, the guards, a yellow one the prisoner, which was tied between the guards by some person of the audience. The prisoner was placed in jail with the guards trying to guard it. The guards were pulled out and the prisoner was out of jail, later found on the back of one of Mr. Gerde's assistants.

Last the duck, which had been continually quacking, was taken out of his pen. The duck was made to go to sleep in a closed box. To make sure he was asleep, Mr. Gerde shot at him with the gun "used at the Boer War." The box was fully examined but only to find the duck was gone! Have you solved where the duck went?

Six Interclass Basket Ball Games Played

A much cleaner brand of basket ball was displayed by the interclass teams this week.

The first game resulted in a victory for the Soph B's when they defeated the Frosh B's by a score of 25-22. Caldis was high point man for the Freshmen while DuChamp and Kelly were high for the Sophs. After this the Soph A's and Junior A's fought it out. The Sophomores were again victorious, this time by a score of 26-17. The star player for the Sophs was Nelson, and Waag held the honor for the Juniors. Helquist went out on fouls.

Tuesday night the Junior B's proved themselves too powerful for the Junior C's by defeating them to the tune of 44-22. Legvold was high scorer in the contest. The same night Junior D's overpowdered the Frosh D's by the decisive score of 40-5. Moline was high point man for the Juniors.

For the second time this year, the Frosh C's defeated the Soph C's—the score being 20-13. Bundy was star player for Freshmen, and Erickson for the Sophs. The Juniors weren't so lucky in their second game of the week. This time the Frosh A's won 41-20. Bredeson was high point man for Juniors, but also went out on fouls. "Little" Lee led the Freshmen. For the second time the shortest man was the highest scorer. It was one of the roughest games of the week and 18 fouls were committed.

Crookston Gains 3-0 Decision in Debate

Last Monday the Thief River Falls debate team, consisting of Kendall Gustafson, Dorothy Rau, and Corlan Dokken, journeyed to Crookston, where they met defeat at the hands of the Crookston team, made up of Marion Robins, Paul Sharp and Francis Norman.

The debate was not exceptionally outstanding, as the main points were about the same as usual. Crookston, debating affirmative, presented a sound plan and were awarded a 3 to 0 decision over the Thief River Falls team. As usual the local team appeared strongest in their rebuttal and here, perhaps, held a slight advantage over their opponents.

PROGRESS POKES ITS NOSE AROUND

We're still in the year 1940, but this time we're touring the United States in search of former Lincoln high school graduates.

The first stop is at our state capitol, St. Paul. Here the glad news greets us that Jerome Havel has been appointed chief Justice of the State Supreme Court. Judge Havel had won much recognition before this time by his interpretation of famous clauses in the state constitution. As we go to watch our friend sworn in, another familiar face greets us. Miss Harriet Jung, until recently of Thief River Falls, is now the clerk of the State Supreme court.

Just across the way in Minneapolis, our bus takes us by the city auditorium. Huge mobs are gathering to gain entrance. Naturally we become curious and follow the throng. Voices from the speaker's platform seem to awaken our inner senses. Looking up, we notice Miss Dorothy Rau delivering an oration. Seated at her right is Dorothy Traver. These two brilliant ladies have aroused much praise in their talks on temperance.

Our next stop is Chicago. All are in favor of seeing a night club, so the first evening is spent in this manner. Heading the list of entertainers are the Misses Alice and Mae Lindquist, that famous sister singing team.

While in the Windy city, let's stop off at a dress shop and do some shopping. As we enter the door of one of the most renowned shops, we are greeted by Madame Phyllis Norbeck, the famous woman's style expert. She explains to us that Miss Eileen Rhodegard has won much praise as the former's main model.

But we'll have to hurry, on to Pittsburgh for we hear that a renowned basket ball team is scheduled to play. When the players come onto the floor, our eyes fairly pop out at seeing Wayne Kielty piloting this group. We are furthur surprised to see that the team consists of all of Lincoln's old players of the year 1934-1935.

In another section of the city we visit a huge circus ground. The loud cries of the "barker" attracted our attention. Hurrying over to the grounds, we observe Oscar Bickley in the role of the "barker". His salesmanship persuades us and inside we go.

The next day we visit New York City. Naturally, Madison Square Garden attracts us immediately. From the posters we learn that Miss Bessie Syverson is competing for the title of the world's champion skater among women. Her press agent is no one else than Lloyd Bradley, who has forsaken being a politican to manage her interests.

On the last lap of the journey we stop at Palm Beach, Florida. Here we find two more Lincoln graduates. One, Wallace Carlson, has become well-known as an owner of a men's haberdashery shop. The other, Miss Evelyn Kinsela, is manager of a famous beauty salon. Her latest creation is a streamlined hair-cut.

Next week will find us again seeking old friends of ours.

ENTERTAINING PEP FEST HELD FRI., FEB. 22

School Song, Radio Skit, and Yells by Leaders Constitute Program

The pep fest which preceded the basket ball game with Bemidji had as its main attraction that genial personage, Paul Furuseth, a graduate of Lincoln High School.

The program was conducted by the program with the School Song. Lorraine Amundson led the singing with the Robert Douville at the piano. Bob, then announced that after trying to lead a couple of yells, he had come to the conclusion that we either didn't know how to yell or we didn't know the yells. However, Kathleen Monsbroten and Phyllis Norbeck proved that they know how to lead yells with the "1-2-3-4" yell, spelling out Prowlers, and the "echo" yell as examples.

A radio skit, with Paul Furuseth as master of ceremonies, was the next entertainment offered. The first performer on the amateur program was tiny Arline Michaels. Her presentation of "On the Good Ship Lollypop" was enjoyed so much by the students that an encore was demanded. Arline was accompanied by Adele Holmstrom at the piano. Paul introduced the next contestant as the "girl that's never left behind", Ardith Jansen. After she had stammered over her announcement, the gong was rung, meaning that she must stop. The "tip top dancer", in the person of Martin Jorde, next appeared. While Ardythe Melby played, he beat two sticks upon the back of a chair, making a sound of tapping feet. Paul discribed this as just as good "as sour milk poured on nitroglycerine for breakfast".

"Songs from the lonesome pines of Norway", as Paul called them, were very entertaining, although the players "got all mixed up". The artists were Stanley Simonson and Norman Legvold, violinists, and Paul Furuseth, accordionist. Although the gong rang several times, no response was shown, and finally the gong ringer joined in and beat time on a pie tin with a mixing spoon. Paul announced the winner as Arline Michaels, who would get a whole week's engagement at the Lyceum.

Before he closed, Paul complimented Lincoln High by saying, "You're doing very fine this year." The pep fest closed with yells led by Adele Holmstrom and Martha Storholm. Mr. Dooley and the basket ball team were allowed to pass out first.

—Edna Lee.

CALENDAR OF EVENTS

Our calendar of events has dwindled until it would appear that basket ball will be the dominating interest of the students in general for the next three weeks. It is as follows:

March 18-
March 1, basket ball game, Prowlers vs. Grand Forks.
March 6, 7, 8, district basket ball tournament.
March 8-15
Regional basket ball tournament.
March 15-29
State basket ball tournament.
March 29, Junior class play.

Senior Class Appoints Committees for Annual

A brief senior class meeting was held in the rear of the high school assembly last Monday at four o'clock. The purpose of the meeting was to appoint a Prowler staff and to select a Committee for the class flower and class motto. The following students were elected for the Prowler staff committee: Kendall Gustafson, Donald Hermanson, Corlan Dokken, Harriet Jung, Dorothy Rau, Phyllis Norbeck, Walter Kinghorn, Theodore Qualo and Eunice Linholm.

EDITORIAL

Next week Lincoln High School will be host to participants in the District 31 basket ball tournament. Teams from Crookston, East Grand Forks, Warren, Plummer, and Oklee will be on hand to battle for the coveted trophy which signifies basket ball supremacy in the thirty-first District. Each evening the auditorium will be filled to capacity with crowds anxious to see these smooth-working basket ball machines in perfect working order, anxious to see the amazing coordination between the mind and the muscles of some of the best basketeers in the state.

Why will these fans fight for seats at the auditorium next week? The main reason is the pride that they have in the team that will represent them. Whether a fan is from Thief River, East Grand Forks, Crookston, or any other town that will have a team performing, he is certain to be proud of his team and he is certain to possess an intense desire to see his team triumph over its rivals. And that is why students of Lincoln high, and citizens of Thief River Falls as well, will jam the portals of the auditorium during the 6th, 7th and 8th of March. They are proud of their team, proud of their coach, and they expect to see the Gold and Blue of Lincoln High triumphant in the first step toward the state basket ball crown. They know that their support is needed and they are glad to give it to the coach and the team that personify their expectations.

Girls Elect Season's Basket Ball Captains

"Let's poke around and see what's what in basket ball. Shall we?".

Now for our basket ball captains—Freshmen: Mary Chommie, Sophomore: Elizabeth Dahlen, and Juniors: Edna Lee. It seems that the seniors have not yet elected a captain.

Next week the girls gym classes will again try the basket ball tests and try to make a better score than they did the first time they took them this season. Now watch the ratings in basket ball go up!

LAND O'LAKES SESSION DREW BIG GATHERING

More Than 600 Registered at Annual District Meet Wednesday

ANNUAL REPORT WAS EXPLAINED BY STAFF

President John Brandt is Principal Speaker in Afternoon

Despite icy highways that made travel precarious, well over 600 creamery operators and patrons from throut this section of the state assembled in the Auditorium in this city Wednesday for the annual meeting of District 17 of Land O'Lakes Creameries. A large additional number of visitors failed to register their names.

At the morning session Ben Ommodt presented the field man's annual report, which is reviewed briefly elsewhere in this issue. Discussions of creamery problems were led by P. L. Anderson, field man in District 14, and Olaf Holdahl, secretary of the Roseau creamery, while others on the program were B. O. Norby, manager of the local Land O'Lakes poultry plant, and C. M. Peack of Crookston.

The afternoon session, over which District Chairman Stuart McLeod presided, followed the serving of a substantial noon lunch to those present in the Civic and Commerce association rooms, after which the high school band presented a concert under the direction of S. P. Orwoll.

B. O. Norby discussed various features of the annual report of the institution he represents, while Gorman Thompson told of the achievements of the old department established a year ago, and Carl Brahns, manager of the hatchery department, also spoke briefly. Several appreciated selections were presented by an overalled male quartet made up of Land O'Lakes employes.

O. Z. Remsberg of the Central Co-operative Livestock Marketing association of South St. Paul, spoke at length on the marketing situation, strongly opposing the direct marketing of hogs on the ground that there is no competitive bidding or government supervision such as there is at the terminal markets. He criticized the Dowell report for its favorable attitude toward direct marketing, and called attention to bills now in the legislature designed to regualte the system.

After two selections by the Alvarado girls' clarinet trio, John Brandt, president of Land O'Lakes Creameries, discussed the past year's record and said the institution entered the new year in sound financial condition.

Mr. Brandt told his hearers they should not worry so much about critics on the outside of the organization as about those that are boring from within to stir up dissension. He expressed the wish that someone would invent a serum that would reveal "reactors" in the co-operative movement.

Referring to the local controversy over the sale of the local creamery building to the Land O'Lakes organization, he declared that Land O'Lakes had not made the first move but had been approached on the matter by local people. He also cited the fact that the deal had been twice approved by a decisive majority of stockholders of the creamery at separate times.

Mrs. Burgess, who is now in the city making arrangements for the opening, stated that the shop will handle dresses, suits, hats, lingerie and hose.

Land O'Lakes Volume Shown in 1934 Report

The 32 Land O'Lakes Creameries in District 17 last year shipped out a total of 6,062,601 pounds of butter, a shrinkage of 321,848 pounds from the previous year, it was revealed in the annual report of Ben Ommodt, field man, submitted at the district convention in this city Wednesday.

Of the 32 creameries 14 showed a gain in volume of shipments while eight showed a gain in quality. Shipments of the Land O' Lakes grade of butter aggregated 3,461,698 pounds, with the Lancaster creamery making the largest gain in quality.

Mr. Ommodt pointed out that a slight increase in the percentage of undergrade butter over the previous year indicates the urgent need for more attention to the quality of the butter made. He stated that the loss from this source in the district as a whole was computed to be $32,670.

B. O. Norby, manager of the local Land O'Lakes poultry plant reported to the meeting on the 1934 operations of the institution. Receipts included 37.84 carloads of eggs aggregating 454,157 dozen; 20.23 carloads of poultry; 244 carloads of feed and flour; 85 carloads of turkeys aggrigating 1,699,240 pounds; 202,845 pounds of cheese; 11,040 gallons of ice cream; 3,854,105 pounds of seeds; and more than 700,000 gallons of gasoline, kerosene and distillate.

The average net price paid for butterfat was 25.81 cents a pound, and the total manufacturing and general expense per pound of butter was shown to be 2.84 cents. TOM A. FOSSUM, 28 YEARS A RESIDENT, DIES ON THURSDAY

Had Been Councilman and Assessor, Served in S. D. Legislature

Funeral rites were held Monday afternoon from Trinity Lutheran church for Tom A. Fossum, for the past 28 years a resident of this community, who passed away last Thursday at the age of 76. During his residence here he had been active in civic affairs, serving several terms on the city council as well as performing the duties of city assessor.

Born at Elon, Iowa, in 1858, Mr. Fossum was educated at Luther college, Decorah, Iowa, and Winona Business college. Following his marriage in 1884 to Eliza Froslie, the young couple moved the following year to a homestead in Campbell county, S. D., sharing in the pioneer activities of that period.

Entering into political affairs, Mr. Fossum was one of the first officers to be elected in Campbell county, making the family home in Mound City, the county seat. In 1902 he moved his family to Harreid in the same county, where he continued in the mercantile and implement business, serving at the same time for four years in the South Dakota state legislature.

In 1907 he disposed of his business interests and moved with his family to Thief River Falls, where he became interested to some degree in farming and other local activities.

The surviving family include Mrs. Fossum, two sons, Allie of Pierre, S. D., and Ingwald of this city, and a daughter, Miss Huldah Fossum of Great Falls, Montana, all of whom were present at the funeral rites. Also surviving are a brother Andrew of Glencoe and a sister, Mrs. Henricca Ask of Lanesboro, as well as five grandchildren. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery.

POTATO AUTHORITY CITES THE NEED OF IMPROVED MARKET

A. G. Tolaas of U Farm Addresses Gathering of Local Farmers

Citing the fact that more than 200 carloads of Idaho potatoes are shipped into Minnesota each year, A. G. Tolaas, head of the seed certification department of University Farm, St. Paul, told a group of local farmers Tuesday afternoon that the marketing of potatoes in Minnesota lags behind that in certain other states and stated that whatever improvement is made must be instituted by the growers themselves.

Mr. Tolaas advised no increase in acreage at the present time, but urged the growing of better seed and table stock, for which, he said, this section of the state is well adapted.

He also suggested that it is profitable to handle the potatoes carefully to avoid damage, to store them properly and to grade closely. The storage space, he said, should not be too warm, asserting that the ideal temperature is from 34 to 36 degrees.

LINDELL SPEAKS IN CITY ON LAW AND ORDER GROUP

Local Citizens Sign Membership Cards at Meeting Friday Night

A considerable number of local citizens signed membership cards in the Minnesota Law and Order league at a meeting Friday evening in the Legion club rooms addressed by Edwin L. Lindell, executive secretary of the organization.

The members of the group pledged themselves to build up and maintain interest in the respect for law; to work for any desired changes peacefully; and to give full moral support and encouragement to public officials in the discharge of their duties. Permanent organization of a local unit was left in the hands of a committee.

The league's present efforts Mr. Lindell stated in his address, are directed toward the revision of the state's criminal trial procedure to give the prosecution the final argument and to bar "perjured" alibis.

Legislation along four lines is being backed by the league. These four are establishment of a school for police training, enlargement of the state bureau of criminal apprehension, creation of a wide police communication system and placing in the hands of the state highway patrol full police powers. These changes in the system will cost $100,000 a year, Lindell stated, but pointed out that the cost of crime is $40,000,000 annually.

The meeting was held under the joint auspices of the local Legion post and auxiliary unit, and lunch was served at the close of the evening.

Sleet Storm Affects Wire Service Locally

The mercury dropped below the zero mark on only one day during the past week, reaching a minimum of 3 below Wednesday morning, according to records of H. F. Ueland, observer. The highest maximum of 26 above was recorded Monday morning. Sleet storms throut northern Minnesota, particularly at Duluth and Superior, raised havoc with wire services early this week, and telegraph service in the vicinity of Thief River Falls was hampered until Wednesday. The ice covered streets and highways made automobile and foot travel extremely precarious here this week.

Nels Nora Succumbs at Local Hospital Today

CALDIS BLOCK IS DAMAGED IN BLAZE MONDAY

Largest Share of Loss is Suffered by Wangensteins Jewelry Store

FIRE ORIGINATED IN VICINITY OF FURNACE

Effective Work by Department Averted Total Destruction

As a result of efficient work on the part of the local fire department, aided by the new fire engine pumper, the Caldis building at the corner of LaBree av. and Third st. was saved from total destruction early Monday morning in a stubborn blaze that damaged the structure and contents to an extent estimated at $12,000 to $15,000, most of the losses being covered by insurance.

The fire originated near the furnace in the northwest section of the basement, and was first discovered shortly after 3:30 when smoke became thick in the apartment of Mrs. Anne Adey on the second floor of the Dudley block connected with the Caldis building. Mrs. Adey immediately spread the alarm to other second-floor tenants of the two buildings, nearly a dozen in number, and all safely made their escape thru the smoke filled halls.

The blaze presently broke thru the main floor into the quarters occupied by the Wangenstein jewelry store and the Robert J. Lund insurance agency, and the flames were not extinguished before a large section of the floor in the two rooms had been destroyed and the contents had fallen thru into the basement.

Besides the damage to the building, the major portion of the loss was sustained by stock and fixtures in the jewelry store. Others suffering losses from heat and the layers of grime deposited by the sooty smoke include the Model beauty parlor and barber shop, the Coffee Shop and to some extent the F. W. Woolworth store. Property of second floor tenants also suffered considerable damage from the clouds of smoke.

Pending the completion of repairs to the building the Wangenstein jewelry store and Lund insurance agency have taken up temporary quarters on the main floor of the First National bank building, and up-stairs tenants have taken lodgings elsewhere for the time being.

LOCAL PEOPLE OFFERED NEW FUNDING BONDS

County to Issue $80,000 in Bonds to Retire Present Warrants

OFFERS RECEIVED UP TO FRIDAY, MAR. 22

New $500 Bonds Will Draw Interest at Rate of 4¼ Per Cent

An issue of $80,000 funding bonds to complete the refinancing of the Pennington county debt, now outstanding in the form of bonds and warrants drawing six percent interest, will be sold by public subscription to local investors, it was decided at the March meeting of the county board held Tuesday.

Subscriptions for the new issue will be received at the office of County Auditor Harry Fowler up to the time of a special meeting of the board Friday, March 22, at 1 o'clock, at which time allotments of the bonds will be made.

The bonds will be issued in denominations of $500 drawing interest at the rate of four and one-quarter per cent payable semi-annually, and will mature serially, the first bonds being payable in 1938 and the last of the issue in 1954. A brisk demand for the new bonds is anticipated from holders of the outstanding warrants to be retired as a result of the refinancing.

Members of the board emphasized that the new issue represents no increase in the present county indebtedness, being merely an exchange of current obligations bearing six per cent interest for others drawing nearly two per cent less, with a resulting substantial saving to the county.

The board at its meeting also approved 14 additional applications for old age pensions, and adopted a resolution banning Sunday dances in the county. Recommendations were made to the state tax commission approving settlement of a number of cases of accumulated taxes.

CONCORDIA BAND IN CONCERT HERE SUNDAY AT 3 P. M.

Municipal Auditorium to be Scene of Program by Noted Group

The Concordia Concert Band that appears at the Auditorium Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, numbers 42 picked players under the direction of Prof. J. A. Holvik, former member of the St. Olaf Concert Band, and cornet soloist with that organization on its European tour of 1906.

On several occasions on the World's Fair tour of 1933, directors and music critics from the audience expressed themselves to Prof. Holvik after the concerts regarding the marvelous precision, perfect intonation and high artistic sense of the band.

The band also took part in the International Luther League Convention in Fargo, July 2-4. In a letter received from Dr. F. Melius Christiansen, he said, "The Concordia Band is on par with any college band in the country. There is an ensemble and pure intonation in your band that is hard to find in even the professional organizations."

The following numbers will be among those appearing on the program:

Alice Parnow and Harvey Patten Are United in Marriage

In the presence of forty immediate relatives and close friends, wedding vows were spoken in Erie Friday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Parnow, by their daughter, Miss Alice, nurse at St. Luke's hospital, and Harvey Patten, son of Mr. and Mrs. James K. Patten of this city. Reverend E. W. Baumann read the service which was preceded by the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Miss Myrtle Joop, of Felton, a cousin of the bride; and immediately following the ceremony Mrs. Baumann sang "I Love You Truly."

For her marriage, the bride had selected an afternoon gown of light blue silk crepe, carrying an arm bouquet of Talisman roses and sweet peas. Her attendant was her sister, Miss Ethel Parnow, who wore a frock of green silk crepe and with it a corsage of sweet peas and roses. Russell Patten, brother of the groom, was best man. White candles and baskets of blue flowers formed attractive centerpieces at the four tables, at each of which ten guests were seated for the two-course dinner following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Patten left that same evening for a brief wedding trip to Winnipeg, after which they returned to make their home in the Dudley apartments. Mrs. Patten, who resigned her position at St. Luke's hospital last week, is a graduate of the Crookston Agricultural college and of the Bethesda hospital at Crookston. Immediately after completing her training at the Bethesda hospital, she left for Ann Arbor, Michigan, where she followed her profession for two years. She has been on the St. Luke's staff the past three years. Mr. Patten graduated from the local high school in 1920. He is employed as clerk in the Lieberman Clothing store, a position he has held the past four years.

Carried Too Far

The foreman was called away for a few days, and during his absence he left two of his most trusted workmen in charge.

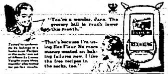
"Pat," he had said before he went, "you can be foreman on Monday, and you, Mike, can be foreman on Tuesday."

On Monday morning Foreman Pat made Mike's life unbearable. He gave him all sorts of difficult jobs, and complained because they were not done properly.

Mike stuck it out for as long as he could without saying a word. At last he pulled Pat aside.

"You're having it all your own way today," he said grimly, "but you wait until tomorrow, you'll wish you'd never been born."

"You'll be doin' nothing to me, Mike, my lad," he said. "I'm foreman of this job today, and I'm givin' you the sack tonight."—Answers.



"You're a wonder, Jane. The grocery bill is much lower this month."
"That's because I'm using Rex Flour. No more money wasted on baking failures now. I like the free recipes in the sacks, too."

Advantages of Home Gardens Are Cited in New 'U' Farm Booklet

Cutting down the family food bill is not the only advantage of having a home vegetable garden, says a new garden bulletin which the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station has just printed for free distribution.

Money can not measure the satisfactions and health advantages which come from a garden which supplies fresh, attractive, high quality vegetables in season and additional supplies for canning and winter storage. Pleasure and educational value are afforded thru the gardener's association with growing plants, not to mention that gardening provides a healthful exercise.

Containing more than 60 pages, with many diagrams, garden plans and pictures, this bulletin is the most complete handbook ever offered Minnesota gardeners. No phase of vegetable growing for home use has been overlooked in this publication. It presents in detail every step from locating the garden to harvesting and even to the winter storage of the produce. The bulletin has been written by A. E. Hutchins, vegetable specialist of the Division of Horticulture, who is widely known to Minnesota gardeners thru his extensive writings for Minnesota weekly newspapers and agricultural publications.

While they last, copies of this booklet on "The Home Vegetable Garden," Minnesota Bulletin 315, may be obtained from county or home demonstration agents, high school agriculture instructors, or by writing the Bulletin Office, University Farm, St. Paul.

Growing With Your Child

Thumb-Sucking

We don't know enough about the causes of thumb-sucking so that suggestions can be given with assurance.

Experimental work gives us the clue that perhaps thumbsucking is frequently caused by an unsatisfied sucking instinct that is, a nipple with a large hole, or rapid feeding at the breast may not give the child sufficient mouth movement. Again, some babies may develop the habit because they have nothing else to do, are bored and restless. Whatever the origin, it soon becomes an emotionally satisfying habit and harder to break as the child grows older.

Only with the very young baby who does not yet use his hands much in play, it's possible to resort to mechanical means. First be sure that the baby is comfortable, is not hungry, and if he is tired that conditions are right for sleep. His hands may be confined in their socks, in aluminum mitts for the purpose, or the baby may be put into a sleeping bag. The frequent use of the arms must not be interfered with. Restraint will cause the child to want more than ever to suck his thumb.

Thumb-sucking, when it persists beyond babyhood, indicates that the child enjoys being an infant. The baby finds one of his greatest pleasures in eating. The pleasure of sucking the finger is a faint echo of the sensation derived from sucking at the breast. He depends on this as a solace when tired, hungry, moody or out of sorts. Many mothers say, "He only does it when he is sleepy, or hungry", as the case may be. This suggests how little effect nagging or scolding will have. The child may even resort to the habit more frequently as his one way of escape from nagging. Some babies who are bad thumb-suckers, show no fear of objects which ordinarily make them cry—if only the useful thumb is in the mouth.

A playmate often accomplishes in short order what months of begging, promising, threats and mechanical means fails to do. Giving new interests to the bored child is effective, while his parents' anxiety and worry only increase the trouble.

Talking to the child about his habit should be strongly avoided. To do away with the habit we must substitute some other habit for it. Often the child has been too closely confined indoors. Sometimes he has exhausted the possibilities of his playthings. Children need play materials adapted to their changing growing needs. It is not that they need so many toys, but that the play equipment they have should provide outlets for their imagination. Tools, wood, paper and paint, clay and sand—all these involve the use of the child's hands and of his mind. If we make a child's life full and satisfying, there is little room for the appearance of bad habits.

Auxiliary Notes

Mrs. T. L. Stickney of Crookston, our 9th Dist. President extends her heartiest congratulations to the Thief River Falls unit of the Legion Auxiliary for being "Over-top" in membership. We now have a membership of 151 against 148 of last year.—Mrs. Stickney.

Mrs. Claude Evenson, your unit president and all officers of the unit are very grateful to one and all who have made this possible.

We are very appreciative and proud of the splendid work that is being done by the Auxiliary welfare board.—Mrs. T. P. Anderson.

Mrs. George Baken, Mrs. A. C. Matheson, and Mrs. C. M. Haug. Only last week a family of six children without a mother was made happy and comfortable by the members of the board. Also there were a number of bed jackets made by them and sent to the Veteran's hospital. Many of you had the privilege of inspecting these garments at the club rooms.

A report of the joint meeting with the Legion will no doubt be mentioned elsewhere in this paper.

The Auxiliary however, wishes to thank all present at this meeting for the splendid co-operation and the Drum Corps in particular for their fine turn out.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be March 21st.

VARIETY IN THE MENU

FOR a luncheon menu after preparing the salad of crisp lettuce, french dressing with a few sections of grapefruit or pineapple, sprinkle it with a handful of good nuts—peanuts, almonds, pecans or hickory nuts—any nut will be good and supply the protein which is needed for the well balanced menu. With a slice of whole wheat bread and a glass of milk, this makes a good meal.

Creamed Finnan Haddie.

There should be one and one-half cupfuls of the fish, flake or break into small bits, after soaking in water. Remove all bone and skin. Make a white sauce as usual, add the fish and simmer for ten minutes. Have [illegible] large, fresh, green peppers and remove the seeds and veins, cook with boiling water and drain well. Fill with the creamed fish, cover with buttered crumbs and place the peppers in gem pans to hold their shape. Bake ten minutes or until well heated and the crumbs are well browned. Salmon, tuna or cooked fresh fish well seasoned may be used in place of the haddie. Garnish with a hard-cooked egg and chop the whites and [illegible] edge of the pepper for a more fancy and nutritious dish.

French Potato Soup

Slice a large potato or two [illegible] proportions depending on the number to be served. Slice the onions and put them to cook in two tablespoonfuls of butter. When a golden brown, add them to the potatoes [illegible]

Jelly Hint.

Red River Valley History

The Red River Cart

To avoid prosaic treatment of the early history of this region we propose to skip about a bit and give readers material designed to be of interest, awaiting later opportunities to weave in more background. This week we deal with Red River carts.

Before quoting from Holcomb's history of the region we desire to remind readers that the Red River cart did not originate in the Red River valley but was in use much earlier than the time of its advent here. It was known in England centuries ago and in a somewhat different form on the continent. It was in use in the colonies on the Atlantic coast in the seventeenth century. So it is apparent that it was not an offspring of necessity here. For that matter, it was used in the Minnesota valley fairly early in the nineteenth century. But most striking of all evidence concerning these early carts, in the writer's opinion, was the appearance of one in the motion picture, The Private Life of King Henry VIII. While the wheels were somewhat different the body or box of the cart in the picture was remarkably like the genuine Red River cart on display on the grounds of the Great Northern depot at Grand Forks, N. D. The following paragraphs tell the story of the Red River cart:

"These carts were originally built wholly of wood and rawhide, not a particle of metal being used in their construction. The wheels were large and clumsy, being sometimes five feet in diameter and three inches thick. The fellows were fastened together by tongues of wood, and pressure in the revolutions of the wheel assisted in keeping them from falling apart. The hubs were thick and strong, the axles were all wood, and even the linchpins were wooden. A light box frame, tightened by wooden pegs, was fastened, also by pegs, to and poised upon the axle. The common price of such a cart was, in Manitoba, two pounds; in Minnesota, ten dollars.

"Each cart was generally drawn by a single ox, and sometimes by a tough, strong Indian pony, or 'Cayuse.' The animal was hitched between shafts and its harness was made of roughly tanned ox hide or buffalo hide. This leather was called by the Red River Metis, or mixed bloods, 'shagganappi,' and the horse that drew the cart was called a 'shagganappi pony'. A loaded cart generally contained about 500 pounds weight. A good pony could often draw such a load 50 miles a day, but a slow, plodding ox could not compass more than 20 miles in that time. The axles of the cart were not greased or lubricated in any way, and the wheels turned with a dreadful squeaking and screeching which could be heard on the open prairie for more than a mile.

"The carts generally moved in trains. Ten carts constituted a 'brigade,' in charge of three men. Five or six or more brigades made up a train, which was in charge of a guide or leader, who assumed much authority. He was on horseback, rode backward and forward along the line, yelling at the drivers and those in charge of the extra oxen or ponies, and marshaling his forces in pomp, flourish, and style. He had to be an intelligent man, for the stopping places for the night, where there were plenty of grass and water; the time of halting and starting; the disciplining of the crews, and all other details of the successful management of a considerable caravan were all under his charge and responsibility. The history of these Red River cart trains which often might be likened to Ancient Midianitish caravans, may be briefly sketched.

"Prior to 144 the import of goods to and the export of furs from the Red River colony and the trading posts in that quarter were made through the circuitous, difficult, and uncertain Hudson's Bay route. This route was open and navigable practically only two months in the year and was beset with difficulties at all times. In 1843 Norman W. Kittson (for whom both Norman and Kittson counties were named) established a trading post of the American Fur Company at Pembina. The first season he secured about $2,000 worth of furs and buffalo robes, but there was the greatest difficulties in the way of sending them to market. He had to deliver them at Mendota (Fort Snelling), the headquarters of the Minnesota division of the company, and formerly the way of transporting furs from the upper Red river posts to the 'factory' at Mendota was up the Red to and through Lake Traverse, then by portage to Big Stone Lake, and thence down the Minnesota. But this method of transportation involved much hard work and its success depended largely upon the proper stage of water in the rivers." —Northwestern Feature Service.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

WHEN WE WAKE UP

LONDON neurologists recently carried on an interesting experiment with three soldiers of the British army. They tested the soldiers as to the effect of their mental attitude on their physical strength. This was measured by a device which the men gripped with all their might, registering as they gripped.

It was found that in their normal state the men had an average grip of a hundred and one pounds. Then, hypnotized and told they were weak, their greatest efforts registered only twenty-nine pounds. Still hypnotized and told they were very strong, their strength returned to the normal hundred and one pounds and then jumped to a hundred and forty-one!

So, the men were weaker, in the relation of twenty-nine to a hundred and one, when they BELIEVED they were weak, but BELIEVING they were strong, they actually registered strength of a hundred and forty-one against a normal best of a hundred and one!

Sure enough people are constantly hypnotizing themselves into one thing or another. Some allow a few disappointments or defeats to hypnotize them into accepted failure. Of most of these it is true that if they believed better of themselves they could do better. It is also true, as enthusiastic "encouragers" point out to us, that most of the unusual achievements in the world went hand in hand with the supreme confidence—which is self-hypnotism—which convinced some men and women they could not fail.

However, kill-joy though it brands me, it must be pointed out that self-hypnotism can be a two-edged sword. How about the man who would have made a perfectly good carpenter who hypnotized himself into confidence that he was cut out for the law—and lived the life of the "also ran" and the failure? How about the farm lad who found self-expression and joy in making things grow out of the earth, but who hypnotized himself, or allowed a fond parent to hypnotize him, into belief that he was called to "go to the city and make good"? How about the woman who would have made a good accompanist, but who hypnotized herself into belief that she must not be lost to the concert stage? That story of heartbreak and defeat is a not uncommon one.

The experiment of the soldiers proves how belief in ourselves can hypnotize us into strength. The question is, can we follow through when we wake up?

The Heroine

By LARRY ALLAN

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

INTO the little hamlet of Hartwell that day came walking and riding, living cross-sections of the human countryside, all intent on getting as close to the shrouded monument as the crowd of earlier arrivals in the public square would permit.

All Hartwell, all Hart county, all that section of Georgia, were there on that day to take part in the celebration incident to the unveiling of a beautiful monument to Nancy Hart, Georgia's Joan of Arc, the brave American woman who had killed her share of Redcoats in the Revolution and had inspired her men folk to go and do likewise.

The governor made a long and well-gestured speech extolling Nancy Hart and her brave deeds. The lady representing the Daughters of the American Revolution read the paper on "Revolutionary Heroines" she had so carefully prepared. Several patriotic songs were sung. Mrs. Juanita Floyd, a great-great-granddaughter of Nancy Hart, sat among the guests of honor on the platform facing the shrouded monument, nervously awaiting the moment when she would jerk the rope to loosen the canvas covering and let the monument stand out in all its beauty.

The governor's speech extolled Nancy Hart's heroism in resounding words and grandiose phrases in a typical patriotic display of verbal pyrotechnics, but sitting next to me was a tobacco-chewing Cracker who told me in words of one syllable the story of Mistress Nancy's heroic gesture.

Nancy was born in North Carolina some twenty years or more before the outbreak of the Revolution, and eventually married a husky young mountaineer named Benjamin Hart. Some time before the Boston Tea Party they felt that that section of North Carolina was getting over-populated and migrated to the wilder mountain regions of Georgia.

When the Colonies rose in revolt Georgia called on her sons. Among the first to respond was Benjamin Hart.

One rainy, muddy day when the small handful of patriots left behind to protect homes and families were out on a scouting expedition, and Nancy and her small daughter were industriously preparing the day's food for the men, five Redcoats suddenly rode up and surrounded the home.

A quick search by them revealed that there were no male rebels on the premises, but instead of going on their way the Redcoats, smelling the fragrance of Nancy's cooking, demanded that she serve them. Now, Nancy was just a poor lone woman in the wilderness, but all of these pioneer women were spunky. She hated Redcoats and, being an extremely finicky housekeeper, she was as mad as a hornet at the Redcoats for tracking up her kitchen.

And so Nancy laid the table and busied herself about the fireplace without a word of protest. It was while she was going to the bin for more cornmeal the thought suddenly came to her that the patriots might return while the Redcoats were there. Not realizing their danger, they were quite likely to walk right into trouble. With that thought uppermost in her mind she gazed around seeking some method of escape, and it was then that she noticed that the Redcoats, their vigilance lessened, had stacked their guns in a corner of the cabin.

Without exciting their suspicion Nancy walked toward a table near that corner of the room and reached down for the jug of molasses she kept there. Suddenly she whirled, seized the nearest rifle and fired point blank at the unfortunate Redcoat who had just gotten up from the bed. The four others jumped to their feet, but even as they did so Nancy had seized a second gun and stood aiming it at them.

"I killed one!" she cried fiercely, "and if you make a move I'll kill you!"

Then she sent little Nancy scurrying out to give the alarm. It so happened that the little group of scouts had heard the gunshot and had turned toward the cabin.

The four King George's men, each fearful that he would be sent to his death if he made a move, stood there helpless until Benjamin and the Continentals arrived on the scene.

"And there's the story just as it really happened," the old Cracker explained.

Just then the lady pulled the cord, the canvas parted, and amid the applause of the gathered Georgians the monument to Nancy Hart was revealed. I was disappointed. It was an obelisk, and not a statue of the Redcoat-killing Nancy.

"Why didn't they have a statue of Nancy so we could see what the great heroine looked like?" I asked.

"Well, you see," my local historian explained. "The citizens thought it might look kinda funny. Did yuh ever see this movie fellah, Ben Turpin? Well, Nancy Hart was just as cross-eyed! That's why she was able to bluff them Redcoats, each one thought she was aiming straight at him!"

Dr. Billings Advises Against Unduly Early Hatch of Turkey Eggs

Don't fret about too early egg production from turkey hens, but bend every effort to have the flock fit when laying time really comes. Minnesota turkey breeders who expect their hens to start laying seriously before late March are failing to reckon with the weather and Old Mother Nature, says Dr. W. A. Billings, extension turkey specialist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Eggs laid earlier than late March would be difficult to keep from getting chilled, anyway, according to Billings. Late in March, when the sun is high and the breezes blow balmy from the South, turkey hens get ready to lay, providing they are physically fit.

Hens should be placed on a laying ration about the middle of February. A ration as good as any and cheaper than many is the regular five-point ration, which is equal parts of ground corn, bran, middlings, oats, and meat scraps. To each 100 pounds of the foregoing mixture should be added a quart of fresh cod-liver oil, about 5 pounds of pure bonemeal, and one pound of salt. This simple, basic mash may be altered to include some dried milk, alfalfa leaf meal, or other such feeds.

To avoid having hens badly cut up during the mating season, Dr. Billings suggests not using overlarge toms with young hens, outfitting the hens with blankets or saddles, and third, covering the toms claws with short pieces of rubber tubing stuck fast with tire cement.

War Critic Feared Arrest

As a member of congress representing the Columbus district, "Sunset" Cox, also a famous Ohio journalist, feared that he might be arrested under military order as Clement L. Vallandigham had been. For Cox had been almost as outspoken in his criticism of the conduct of the Civil war as his friend Vallandigham, who had been exiled from the North for his denunciation of Lincoln. While at home in Columbus Cox kept at his bedside a rope connected to a bell to warn the population—who he felt were adverse to his seizure—of an arrest of one of their representatives. He thought the citizens would come and help him.

In addition, they are used to a rigorous climate, which makes them vigorous, and they are extremely thrifty and industrious.

5,612 Persons in State Are Given Employment Thru NRS in January

A total of 5,612 persons including 956 women were placed on regular and temporary jobs by the National Reemployment Service in Minnesota during the month of January according to an announcement by Dreng Bjornaraa, state director. The National Reemployment Service operates offices in the territory outside of Hennepin and Ramsey Counties and the City of Duluth.

Of the jobs cleared through the Service, 1167 were on public works projects; 351 Emergency Relief Administration non-relief placements; and 4,094 in private industries and with local governmental units. During the month, 43,560 persons visited or made contact with the reemployment offices. Of this number seeking employment, 3,196 were applicants who had visited the offices for the first time. 756 of the new applicants were women.

In December, the number of persons calling upon the offices for employment numbered 39,595 of whom 2,883 were new applicants, indicating an increase of about 4,000 persons making demands for jobs.

The requirements of the State Emergency Relief administration that all employable relief clients must be registered for employment has brought in many new applicants to the Reemployment Offices.

On January 31st, the number of persons whose applications for employment were in the active file numbered 50,000 men and 6,200 women. These persons had renewed their applications during the preceding 30 days. A considerable increase in employment activities is expected to begin the first of March.

Scarlet Fever Often Mistaken for Measles, Medical Group States

The principal danger involved in the present widespread epidemic of German Measles is the likelihood that a good many mild cases of Scarlet Fever may be mistaken for it.

This warning is issued today by members of the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association, as reports of large numbers of cases of German Measles reached them from various quarters of the state.

"German Measles is generally a mild infection. It is not a reportable disease and not quarantined" says the bulletin. Frequently the only symptom is a rash which clears up quickly. But the rash is unfortunately very like the rash of mild cases of Scarlet Fever which is a much more serious matter.

"Parents are likely to take it for granted that every rash is German Measles when German Measles is around and fail to report the matter."

That is why Scarlet Fever sometimes gets a bad start in a community in the presence of an epidemic of German Measles and often with grave results, since even mild cases of Scarlet Fever hold the possibility of serious complications and after effects.

Every rash should be reported no matter how trifling it may seem, according to the physicians. If it should prove to be German Measles, a few days at home is usually all that is necessary. If it should be Scarlet Fever, isolation, bed rest and careful watching are imperative.

March 20th is the date we have set aside for our annual spring program and entertainment, to which we invite all our friends and customers

Our plans for this annual event are much the same as in the past. Only this year we will have talky movies. We will have lunch at noon and want you to plan to spend as much of the day with us as possible and we shall try to make it interesting from morning until night.

We have a lot of new machines, tractors and equipment, that we want you to see and know you will be interested to learn of progress made in this equipment to improve agriculture and rural conditions.

Many have paid us the compliments that our annual event is just as interesting as any of the Pioneer Days, Whisker club celebrations or even the Automobile show and the annual fair. So let's all plan for March 20th. Come and help us make it a great day again.

EVER SINCE THE BEGINNING

Ever since the first settlers landed in this section of the country there have been McCormick and Deering machines in use here and it has fallen our lot to serve this territory in furnishing this outstanding line of farm equipment and we feel it is our duty in continuing this service to give satisfactory repair service. So this year we are putting in almost $15,000.00 stock of repair parts, in special effort to please and to serve our customers well. We know that we could make more money by cutting down on our investment in stock of repairs. But believe that our trade will appreciate these facts, and that our service on repairs backed by the best farm equipment made will warrant your patronage on your new equipment.

TRACTOR POWER

If you will investigate, you will find it is a fact that the International Harvester Company do underrate all of their tractors, as well as trucks and engines. The 10-20 McCormick-Deering tractor for instance has always been represented as a two plow tractor, but we have gone into the field with this 10-20 in demonstrations against so called three plow tractors many times and this same 10-20 will take the three plow load against any of them. There is no better way to find out tractor power and value than actual tests, and we are always willing to give demonstrations. McCormick-Deering Tractors are outstanding tractor values.

"F-12"

Fast and every day "F-12" is becoming a name in itself, which every farmer knows means the latest addition and outstanding value of McCormick-Deering Farmall tractors, and if it is not a McCormick-Deering it is not a Farmall.

The "F-12" is outstanding, because it is small and does a big job for less money. It is the wonder two plow tractor and suited especially for all regular farm jobs in this section as no other tractor ever did. We have a limited quantity bought on which we can save you $50.00 of the present price on these "F-12" tractors, and the same saving on all other McCormick-Deering Tractors for a limited time only.

PHOSPHATE

We urge the placing of all orders for treble strength Superphosphate and other mixtures of fertilizer at this time. We are placing our order with the mills in the near future and must gauge our shipments in line with quantity sold. We cannot afford to carry this material in stock. No farmer can afford not to use Phosphate. Phosphate pays big returns.

46 Per Cent of Gainful Workers in Minnesota Apply for Jobs

A total of 458,651 adult citizens of Minnesota, or nearly half the total working population of the state, had up to January 1 applied to the national and state re-employment agencies for work, figures released Saturday by the departments thru state headquarters in St. Paul reveal.

There are no duplications in the totals and the figures show 46.2 per cent of the gainful workers of the state have thus registered for employment. In some of the farm counties, registrations have been in excess of 75 per cent of the gainful worker population.

Figures released by the agency reveal that in Pennington county 2,219 persons have registered for work, while the total number of gainful workers in the county as recorded in the 1930 census was 3,627. Registrations in other counties in the district follow:

Control of Mange in Hogs is Urged by Co-op

A little time and money spent on controlling mange in hogs will prove to be a very profitable investment," says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-operative Association, farmer-owned livestock selling agency at South St. Paul.

Mange in hogs arriving at the market is becoming conspicuous, and buyers are discriminating against them. The value of a hog to the packer is lowered from $1.50 to as much as $3.00 per cwt., when it is infested with mange. That loss on the present average weight of hogs amounts to approximately $3.00 to $7.00 per head. Even if hogs are only slightly affected with mange, packers discount their value.

The best pork cuts cannot be obtained from mangy hogs, since it is necessary in virtually every instance, to skin the animals. This involves labor and destroys the market value of the carcasses. Consequently, market prices for mangy hogs are severely penalized.

Barberry Fight Still Big Job in Minnesota, Entomologist States

Eight thousand and four hundred rust-spreading barberry bushes were found and destroyed in Minnesota in 1934, bringing the total eradicated in this state since the beginning of the program to more than 900,000. Most bushes destroyed during the past season were found in the timbered areas of Fillmore, Goodhue, Olmsted, Wabasha and Winona counties, where extensive spread has occurred as a result of seed scattered by birds and other agencies.

Dr. L. W. Melander, in charge of the Minnesota barberry eradication program for the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, U. S. Department of Agriculture, says that southern counties of the state have been found quite generally infested with the rust-spread species of barberry.

Dr. Melander states that there are two important problems involved in the future of the stem rust control program in Minnesota. Clearing extensive areas of bushes growing on rough pasture land and in the hill areas along rivers and streams will require the use of labor crews. Second, there is the task of locating the remaining scattered bushes throughout the state, thus preventing reinfestation where eradication has been largely accomplished.

A single barberry bush may be responsible for destructive epidemics of stem rust extending for many miles. Warm, moist weather enables the fungus to spread rapidly once it gains a start in the spring. Scientists recently have found that barberry bushes in the grain areas not only are early spring sources of rust infection, but that known strains of the stem rust disease may hybridize on the barberry leaves producing new strains of the disease which may attack varieties of grain previously resistant to the rust.

Winter Fishing Closes in Minnesota March 1

All forms of licensed winter fishing except that being done under contract with Minnesota state division of game and fish in the removal of rough fishes, will terminate Friday, March 1, Erling Swenson, division director, announced. On that date all angling and fish-house fishing of any kind will close. All species of game and rough fishes are included.

Minnesota anglers will then await the opening of the annual stream trout season which occurs May 1 in most counties. The trout season is delayed until May 15 in certain specified counties.

In 1933, a total of 11,683 fish house licenses were issued by the state with a revenue accruing of $11,683. This was a slight decrease over the year 1932 when 12,913 fish-house licenses were issued for a total of $12,913. No figures are yet available for 1934 fish-house license sales.

Price of a Wife

It is said that among the Ainus the price of a wife is a bear ham. The Kaffir figure varies from four to eight oxen, according to the competition for the particular bride. A score of cartridges buys a wife in Uganda, and the Australian black gives the weight of his better half in butter, while the Tartars in Turkestan get as many wives as they want at the rate of a box of matches each.

THE chill query in Sybil's gaze made Louis squirm a little, and that annoyed him. He leaned forward and began persuasively:

"It's the simplest thing in the world. An hour's plane ride each way, fifteen minutes' stop in between, and it's all over. The good it'll do you both would be worth a lot more trouble than that."

The lady uttered an indignant gasp.

"How dare you!" she cried. "I've never been so insulted in my life! As if our beautiful love were something to be twisted and played with to suit your sordid schemes! It's fine and wonderful and I won't have it caged in petty conventions."

"Now, you mustn't look at it that way," he soothed. "Nobody respects your—ah—design for living more than I do; but this is just one of those things we can't escape. The public is on the moral warpath and they're after people as well as pictures. It's well known about you and Bruce; can't you see what a master stroke it would be for you to marry him now? And you're really past the stage where it would seem like a concession. Five years together is enough to convince anybody of your independence."

She was silent a moment; then: "Do you really think it would be all right?" she inquired anxiously. "I mean, with Bruce. Of course I want to do whatever you say is best for our careers."

"He's okay," Louis broke in, with a smile of triumph; "I've talked to him and he leaves everything to you. I guess that's that, eh? I'll have a plane ready as soon as you like. If you step on it the story'll make tomorrow's first editions."

It did. No other elopement of film folk captured popular fancy as did the Sybil Archer-Bruce Franklin affair.

He was in conference with Producer Joe Filberg when Sybil arrived and demanded to see him.

"You fool!" she screeched at him. "You wretched, meddling idiot! You've ruined my life!"

He stood by the door and stared at her.

"Everything we had is gone, all because of your stupid interference. In my heart I knew neither Bruce nor I could be happy with the terrible restraint of marriage upon us."

She crumpled into a chair, sobbing gustily.

"Am I to infer," Louis questioned, "that you've quarreled with him or something?"

"Quarreled!" She sat bolt upright, to reveal a woebegone face. "I tell you we're through, finished! We stood the dreary horror of it as long as we could, then I told him to go and—and he went!"

She sniffed again, and added resolutely:

"I'm going to get a divorce immediately. It's the only way to save my pride, and that's all I have left now. By tomorrow everyone in Beverly Hills would know that he'd left me."

Once more a brief silence, while Louis looked fixedly at the carpet, eyes half shut. At last he stood up, shrugged, and said:

"Well, I won't even try to stop you. But listen—do us all the favor of keeping it quiet. You know what'll happen if you file the papers here; they'll be shouting it on every street corner in half an hour. I can see that it's handled under cover through a Mexican court—take about twenty-four hours. Then you can tell anyone you want to, but the whole world won't have to know. How's that?"

She was hesitant, but a bit more persuasion won her. Garrison typed out: "I, the undersigned, do hereby request a divorce from Bruce Franklin on the grounds of incompatibility," and handed it to her.

"Sign that and I'll have it sent to Agua Caliente this afternoon. Tomorrow you'll be a free woman."

Sybil's lip was trembling as she wrote her name. Louis asked:

"Where's Bruce gone? We'll have to notify him."

"He's—he's at the Christie Plaza." The tears again were flowing freely as Garrison led her to the door.

At the desk he pushed a buzzer button. When the secretary appeared, notebook in hand, Louis said:

"Take a telegram. 'Mr. Bruce Franklin, Hotel Christie-Plaza, Hollywood: Sybil has just divorced you.' Sign my name. That's all."

For more than an hour thereafter work occupied him. At last he glanced at his watch and took up the phone:

"Get me the Christie Plaza." Tilting back, his fingers drummed the desktop lightly. "Hello—connect me with Mr. Franklin, please."

"Sorry, sir," regretted the crisp voice in his ear; "Mr. Franklin checked out about twenty minutes ago."

"Did he say where he was going?"

"He had us send his trunks to an address in Beverly Hills. Shall I look it up for you, sir?"

"No," Louis said; "no—I don't think that'll be necessary, thanks. I'll just guess."

Game Birds and Animals

Game birds and animals must depend on a suitable environment for their continued existence. This environment must include, among other things, food and cover for all seasons of the year, nesting grounds unspoiled by burning or other destructive farm practices and small ungrazed areas that will provide a means of escape from natural enemies.

Red River Valley History

The Red River Cart

To avoid prosaic treatment of the early history of this region we propose to skip about a bit and give readers material designed to be of interest, awaiting later opportunities to weave in more background. This week we deal with Red River carts.

Before quoting from Holcomb's history of the region we desire to remind readers that the Red River cart did not originate in the Red River valley but was in use much earlier than the time of its advent here. It was known in England centuries ago and in a somewhat different form on the continent. It was in use in the colonies on the Atlantic coast in the seventeenth century. So it is apparent that it was not an offspring of necessity here. For that matter, it was used in the Minnesota valley fairly early in the nineteenth century. But most striking of all evidence concerning these early carts, in the writer's opinion, was the appearance of one in the motion picture, The Private Life of King Henry VIII. While the wheels were somewhat different the body or box of the cart in the picture was remarkably like the genuine Red River cart on display on the grounds of the Great Northern depot at Grand Forks, N. D. The following paragraphs tell the story of the Red River cart:

"These carts were originally built wholly of wood and rawhide, not a particle of metal being used in their construction. The wheels were large and clumsy, being sometimes five feet in diameter and three inches thick. The felloes were fastened together by tongues of wood, and pressure in the revolutions of the wheel assisted in keeping them from falling apart. The hubs were thick and strong, the axles were all wood, and even the linch-pins were wooden. A light box frame, tightened by wooden pegs, was fastened, also by pegs, to and poised upon the axle. The common price of such a cart was, in Manitoba, two pounds; in Minnesota, ten dollars.

"Each cart was generally drawn by a single ox, and sometimes by a tough, strong Indian pony, or 'Cayuse.' The animal was hitched between shafts and its harness was made of roughly tanned ox hide or buffalo hide. This leather was called by the Red River Metis, or mixed bloods, 'shagganappi,' and the horse that drew the cart was called a 'shagganappi pony'. A loaded cart generally contained about 500 pounds weight. A good pony could often draw such a load 50 miles a day, but a slow, plodding ox could not compass more than 20 miles in that time. The axles of the cart were not greased or lubricated in any way, and the wheels turned with a dreadful squeaking and screeching which could be heard on the open prairie for more than a mile.

"The carts generally moved in trains. Ten carts constituted a 'brigade,' in charge of three men. Five or six or more brigades made up a train, which was in charge of a guide or leader, who assumed much authority. He was on horseback, rode backward and forward along the line, yelling at the drivers and those in charge of the extra oxen or ponies, and marshaling his forces in pomp, flourish, and style. He had to be an intelligent man, for the stopping places for the night, where there were plenty of grass and water; the time of halting and starting; the disciplining of the crews, and all other details of the successful management of a considerable caravan were all under his charge and responsibility. The history of these Red River cart trains which often might be likened to Ancient Midianitish caravans, may be briefly sketched.

"Prior to 144 the import of goods to and the export of furs from the Red River colony and the trading posts in that quarter were made through the circuitous, difficult, and uncertain Hudson's Bay route. This route was open and navigable practically only two months in the year and was beset with difficulties at all times. In 1843 Norman W. Kittson (for whom both Norman and Kittson counties were named) established a trading post of the American Fur Company at Pembina. The first season he secured about $2,000 worth of furs and buffalo robes, but there was the greatest difficulties in the way of sending them to market. He had to deliver them at Mendota (Fort Snelling), the headquarters of the Minnesota division of the company, and formerly the way of transporting furs from the upper Red river posts to the 'factory' at Mendota was up the Red to and through Lake Traverse, then by portage to Big Stone Lake, and thence down the Minnesota. But this method of transportation involved much hard work and its success depended largely upon the proper stage of water in the rivers." —Northwestern Feature Service.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

WHEN WE WAKE UP

LONDON neurologists recently carried on an interesting experiment with three soldiers of the British army. They tested the soldiers as to the effect of their mental attitude on their physical strength. This was measured by a device which the men gripped with all their might, registering as they gripped.

It was found that in their normal state the men had an average grip of a hundred and one pounds. Then, hypnotized and told they were weak, their greatest efforts registered only twenty-nine pounds. Still hypnotized and told they were very strong, their strength returned to the normal hundred and one pounds and then jumped to a hundred and forty-one!

So, the men were weaker, in the relation of twenty-nine to a hundred and one, when they BELIEVED they were weak, but BELIEVING they were strong, they actually registered strength of a hundred and forty-one against a normal best of a hundred and one!

Sure enough people are constantly hypnotizing themselves into one thing or another. Some allow a few disappointments or defeats to hypnotize them into accepted failure. Of most of these it is true that if they believed better of themselves they could do better. It is also true, as enthusiastic "encouragers" point out to us, that most of the unusual achievements in the world went hand in hand with the supreme confidence—which is self-hypnotism—which convinced some men and women they could not fail.

However, kill-joy though it brands me, it must be pointed out that self-hypnotism can be a two-edged sword. How about the man who would have made a perfectly good carpenter who hypnotized himself into confidence that he was cut out for the law—and lived the life of the "also ran" and the failure? How about the farm lad who found self-expression and joy in making things grow out of the earth, but who hypnotized himself, or allowed a fond parent to hypnotize him, into belief that he was called to "go to the city and make good"? How about the woman who would have made a good accompanist, but who hypnotized herself into belief that she must not be lost to the concert stage? That story of heartbreak and defeat is a not uncommon one.

The experiment of the soldiers proves how belief in ourselves can hypnotize us into strength. The question is, can we follow through when we wake up?

The Heroine

By LARRY ALLAN

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

INTO the little hamlet of Hartwell that day came walking and riding, living cross-sections of the human countryside, all intent on getting as close to the shrouded monument as the crowd of earlier arrivals in the public square would permit.

All Hartwell, all Hart county, all that section of Georgia, were there on that day to take part in the celebration incident to the unveiling of a beautiful monument to Nancy Hart, Georgia's Joan of Arc, the brave American woman who had killed her share of Redcoats in the Revolution and had inspired her men folk to go and do likewise.

The governor made a long and well-gestured speech extolling Nancy Hart and her brave deeds. The lady representing the Daughters of the American Revolution read the paper on "Revolutionary Heroines" she had so carefully prepared. Several patriotic songs were sung. Mrs. Juanita Floyd, a great-great-granddaughter of Nancy Hart, sat among the guests of honor on the platform facing the shrouded monument, nervously awaiting the moment when she would jerk the rope to loosen the canvas covering and let the monument stand out in all its beauty.

The governor's speech extolled Nancy Hart's heroism in resounding words and grandiose phrases in a typical patriotic display of verbal pyrotechnics, but sitting next to me was a tobacco-chewing Cracker who told me in words of one syllable the story of Mistress Nancy's heroic gesture.

Nancy was born in North Carolina some twenty years or more before the outbreak of the Revolution, and eventually married a husky young mountaineer named Benjamin Hart. Some time before the Boston Tea Party they felt that that section of North Carolina was getting over-populated and migrated to the wilder mountain regions of Georgia.

When the Colonies rose in revolt Georgia called on her sons. Among the first to respond was Benjamin Hart.

One rainy, muddy day when the small handful of patriots left behind to protect homes and families were out on a scouting expedition, and Nancy and her small daughter were industriously preparing the day's food for the men, five Redcoats suddenly rode up and surrounded the home.

A quick search by them revealed that there were no male rebels on the premises, but instead of going on their way the Redcoats, smelling the fragrance of Nancy's cooking, demanded that she serve them. Now, Nancy was just a poor lone woman in the wilderness, but all of these pioneer women were spunky. She hated Redcoats and, being an extremely finicky housekeeper, she was as mad as a hornet at the Redcoats for tracking up her kitchen.

And so Nancy laid the table and busied herself about the fireplace without a word of protest. It was while she was going to the bin for more cornmeal the thought suddenly came to her that the patriots might return while the Redcoats were there. Not realizing their danger, they were quite likely to walk right into trouble. With that thought uppermost in her mind she gazed around seeking some method of escape, and it was then that she noticed that the Redcoats, their vigilance lessened, had stacked their guns in a corner of the cabin.

Without exciting their suspicion Nancy walked toward a table near that corner of the room and reached down for the jug of molasses she kept there. Suddenly she whirled, seized the nearest rifle and fired point blank at the unfortunate Redcoat who had just gotten up from the bed. The four others jumped to their feet, but even as they did so Nancy had seized a second gun and stood aiming it at them.

"I killed one!" she cried fiercely, "and if you make a move I'll kill you!"

Then she sent little Nancy scurrying out to give the alarm. It so happened that the little group of scouts had heard the gunshot and had turned toward the cabin.

The four King George's men, each fearful that he would be sent to his death if he made a move, stood there helpless until Benjamin and the Continentals arrived on the scene.

"And there's the story just as it really happened," the old Cracker explained.

Just then the lady pulled the cord, the canvas parted, and amid the applause of the gathered Georgians the monument to Nancy Hart was revealed. I was disappointed. It was an obelisk, and not a statue of the Redcoat-killing Nancy.

"Why didn't they have a statue of Nancy so we could see what the great heroine looked like?" I asked.

"Well, you see," my local historian explained. "The citizens thought it might look kinda funny. Did you ever see this movie fellah, Ben Turpin? Well, Nancy Hart was just as crosseyed! That's why she was able to bluff them Redcoats, each one thought she was aiming straight at him!"

Dr. Billings Advises Against Unduly Early Hatch of Turkey Eggs

Don't fret about too early egg production from turkey hens, but bend every effort to have the flock fit when laying time really comes. Minnesota turkey breeders who expect their hens to start laying seriously before late March are failing to reckon with the weather and Old Mother Nature, says Dr. W. A. Billings, extension turkey specialist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Eggs laid earlier than late March would be difficult to keep from getting chilled, anyway, according to Billings. Late in March, when the sun is high and the breezes blow balmy from the South, turkey hens get ready to lay, providing they are physically fit.

Hens should be placed on a laying ration about the middle of February. A ration as good as any and cheaper than many is the regular five-point ration, which is equal parts of ground corn, bran, middlings, oats, and meat scraps. To each 100 pounds of the foregoing mixture should be added a quart of fresh cod-liver oil, about 5 pounds of pure bonemeal, and one pound of salt. This simple, basic mash may be altered to include some dried milk, alfalfa leaf meal, or other such feeds.

To avoid having hens badly cut up during the mating season, Dr. Billings suggests not using over-large toms with young hens, outfitting the hens with blankets or saddles, and third, covering the toms claws with short pieces of rubber tubing stuck fast with tire cement.

War Critic Feared Arrest

As a member of congress representing the Columbus district, "Sunset" Cox, also a famous Ohio journalist, feared that he might be arrested under military order as Clement L. Vallandigham had been. For Cox had been almost as outspoken in his criticism of the conduct of the Civil war as his friend Vallandigham, who had been exiled from the North for his denunciation of Lincoln. While at home in Columbus Cox kept at his bedside a rope connected to a bell to warn the population—who he felt were adverse to his seizure—of an arrest of one of their representatives. He thought the citizens would come and help him.

In addition, they are used to a rigorous climate, which makes them vigorous, and they are extremely thrifty and industrious.

5,612 Persons in State Are Given Employment Thru NRS in January

A total of 5,612 persons including 656 women were placed on regular and temporary jobs by the National Reemployment Service in Minnesota during the month of January according to an announcement by Dreng Bjornaras, state director. The National Reemployment Service operates offices in the territory outside of Hennepin and Ramsey Counties and the City of Duluth.

Of the jobs cleared through the Service, 1167 were on public works projects; 351 Emergency Relief Administration non-relief placements; and 4,094 in private industries and with local governmental units. During the month, 43,560 persons visited or made contact with the reemployment offices. Of this number seeking employment, 3,196 were applicants who had visited the offices for the first time. 786 of the new applicants were women.

In December, the number of persons calling upon the offices for employment numbered 39,565 of whom 2,803 were new applicants, indicating an increase of about 4,000 persons making demands for jobs.

The requirements of the State Emergency Relief administration that all employable relief clients must be registered for employment has brought in many new applicants to the Reemployment Offices.

On January 31st, the number of persons whose applications for employment were in the active file numbered 60,000 men and 6,200 women. These persons had renewed their applications during the preceding 30 days. A considerable increase in employment activities is expected to begin the first of March.

She is Amelia Barunda, a young peasant, who declares that she is "fed by the angels." The girl is under the supervision of doctors, who declare that her digestive system is still normal, though slightly withered.

Scarlet Fever Often Mistaken for Measles, Medical Group States

The principal danger involved in the present widespread epidemic of German Measles is the likelihood that a good many mild cases of Scarlet Fever may be mistaken for it.

This warning is issued today by members of the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association, as reports of large numbers of cases of German Measles reached them from various quarters of the state.

"German Measles is generally a mild infection. It is not a reportable disease and not quarantined" says the bulletin. Frequently the only symptom is a rash which clears up quickly. But the rash is unfortunately very like the rash of mild cases of Scarlet Fever which is a much more serious matter.

"Parents are likely to take it for granted that every rash is German Measles when German Measles is around and fail to report the matter."

That is why Scarlet Fever sometimes gets a bad start in a community in the presence of an epidemic of German Measles and often with grave results, since even mild cases of Scarlet Fever hold the possibility of serious complications and after effects.

Every rash should be reported no matter how trifling it may seem, according to the physicians. If it should prove to be German Measles, a few days at home is usually all that is necessary. If it should be Scarlet Fever, isolation, bed rest and careful watching are imperative.

Money

Money is a circulating medium of exchange and includes coins, bank notes, certificates, or any other article of value that can be readily put into circulation. Like distance, weight, and volume, money must have a gauge of known dimension to determine its proportions, and gold is the gauge by which money values are measured in every civilized country in the world.

MARCH 20TH, 1935

March 20th is the date we have set aside for our annual spring program and entertainment, to which we invite all our friends and customers.

Our plans for this annual event are much the same as in the past. Only this year we will have talky movies. We will have lunch at noon and want you to plan to spend as much of the day with us as possible and we shall try to make it interesting from morning until night.

We have a lot of new machines, tractors and equipment, that we want you to see and know you will be interested to learn of progress made in this equipment to improve agriculture and rural conditions.

Many have paid us the compliments that our annual event is just as interesting as any of the Pioneer Days, Whisker club celebrations or even the Automobile show and the annual fair. So let's all plan for March 20th. Come and help us make it a great day again.

EVER SINCE THE BEGINNING

Ever since the first settlers landed in this section of the country there have been McCormick and Deering machines in use here and it has fallen our lot to serve this territory in furnishing this outstanding line of farm equipment and we feel it is our duty in continuing this service to give satisfactory repair service. So this year we are putting in almost $15,000.00 stock of repair parts, in special effort to please and to serve our customers well. We know that we could make more money by cutting down on our investment in stock of repairs. But believe that our trade will appreciate these facts, and that our service on repairs backed by the best farm equipment made will warrant your patronage on your new equipment.

TRACTOR POWER

If you will investigate, you will find it is a fact that the International Harvester Company do underrate all of their tractors, as well as trucks and engines. The 10-20 McCormick-Deering tractor for instance has always been represented as a two plow tractor, but we have gone into the field with this 10-20 in demonstrations against so called three plow tractors many times and this same 10-20 will take the three plow load against any of them. There is no better way to find out tractor power and value than actual tests, and we are always willing to give demonstrations. McCormick-Deering Tractors are outstanding tractor values.

"F-12"

Fast and every day "F-12" is becoming a name in itself, which every farmer knows means the latest addition and outstanding value of McCormick-Deering Farmall tractors, and if it is not a McCormick-Deering it is not a Farmall.

The "F-12" is outstanding, because it is small and does a big job for less money. It is the wonder two plow tractor and suited especially for all regular farm jobs in this section as no other tractor ever did. We have a limited quantity bought on which we can save you $50.00 of the present price on these "F-12" tractors, and the same saving on all other McCormick-Deering Tractors for a limited time only.

PHOSPHATE

We urge the placing of all orders for treble strength Superphosphate and other mixtures of fertilizer at this time. We are placing our order with the mills in the near future and must gauge our shipments in line with quantity sold. We cannot afford to carry this material in stock. No farmer can afford not to use Phosphate. Phosphate pays big returns.

458,651 PERSONS SEEK WORK THRU FEDERAL AGENCY

46 Per Cent of Gainful Workers in Minnesota Apply for Jobs

A total of 458,651 adult citizens of Minnesota, or nearly half the total working population of the state, had up to January 1 applied to the national and state re-employment agencies for work, figures released Saturday by the departments thru state headquarters in St. Paul reveal.

There are no duplications in the totals and the figures show 46.2 per cent of the gainful workers of the state have thus registered for employment. In some of the farm counties, registrations have been in excess of 75 per cent of the gainful worker population.

Figures released by the agency reveal that in Pennington county 2,249 persons have registered for work, while the total number of gainful workers in the county as recorded in the 1930 census was 3,697. Registrations in other counties in the district follow:

Control of Mange in Hogs is Urged by Co-op

A little time and money spent on controlling mange in hogs will prove to be a very profitable investment," says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-operative Association, farmer-owned livestock selling agency at South St. Paul.

Mange in hogs arriving at the market is becoming conspicuous, and buyers are discriminating against them. The value of a hog to the packer is lowered from $1.50 to as much as $3.00 per cwt., when it is infested with mange. That loss on the present average weight of hogs amounts to approximately $3.00 to $7.00 per head. Even if hogs are only slightly affected with mange, packers discount their value.

The best pork cuts cannot be obtained from mangy hogs, since it is necessary in virtually every instance, to skin the animals. This involves labor and destroys the market value of the carcasses. Consequently, market prices for mangy hogs are severely penalized.

Barberry Fight Still Big Job in Minnesota, Entomologist States

Eight thousand and four hundred rust-spreading barberry bushes were found and destroyed in Minnesota in 1934, bringing the total eradicated in this state since the beginning of the program to more than 900,000. Most bushes destroyed during the past season were found in the timbered areas of Filmore, Goodhue, Olmsted, Wabasha and Winona counties, where extensive spread has occurred as a result of seed scattered by birds and other agencies.

Dr. L. W. Melander, in charge of the Minnesota barberry eradication program for the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, U. S. Department of Agriculture, says that southern counties of the state have been found quite generally infested with the rust-spread species of barberry.

Dr. Melander states that there are two important problems involved in the future of the stem rust control program in Minnesota. Clearing extensive areas of bushes growing on rough pasture land and in the hill areas along rivers and streams will require the use of labor crews. Second, there is the task of locating the remaining scattered bushes throughout the state, thus preventing reinfestation where eradication has been largely accomplished.

A single barberry bush may be responsible for destructive epidemics of stem rust extending for many miles. Warm, moist weather enables the fungus to spread rapidly once it gains a start in the spring. Scientists recently have found that barberry bushes in the grain areas not only are early spring sources of rust infection, but that known strains of the stem rust disease may hybridize on the barberry leaves producing new strains of the disease which may attack varieties of grain previously resistant to the rust.

All forms of licensed winter fishing except that being done under contract with Minnesota state division of game and fish in the removal of rough fishes, will terminate Friday, March 1, Erling Swenson, division director, announced. On that date all angling and fish-house fishing of any kind will close. All species of game and rough fishes are included.

Minnesota anglers will then await the opening of the annual stream trout season which occurs May 1 in most counties. The trout season is delayed until May 15 in certain specified counties.

In 1933, a total of 11,683 fish house licenses were issued by the state with a revenue accruing of $11,683. This was a slight decrease over the year 1932 when 12,913 fish-house licenses were issued for a total of $12,913. No figures are yet available for 1934 fish-house license sales.

Price of a Wife

It is said that among the Ainus the price of a wife is a bear ham. The Kaffir figure varies from four to eight oxen, according to the competition for the particular bride. A score of cartridges buys a wife in Uganda, and the Australian black gives the weight of his better half in butter, while the Tartars in Turkestan get as many wives as they want at the rate of a box of matches each.

THE chill query in Sybil's gaze made Louis squirm a little, and that annoyed him. He leaned forward and began persuasively:

"It's the simplest thing in the world. An hour's plane ride each way, fifteen minutes' stop in between, and it's all over. The good it'll do you both would be worth a lot more trouble than that."

The lady uttered an indignant gasp.

"How dare you!" she cried. "I've never been so insulted in my life! As if our beautiful love were something to be twisted and played with to suit your sordid schemes! It's fine and wonderful and I won't have it caged in petty conventions."

"Now, you mustn't look at it that way," he soothed. "Nobody respects your—ah—design for living more than I do; but this is just one of those things we can't escape. The public is on the moral warpath and they're after people as well as pictures. It's well known about you and Bruce; can't you see what a master stroke it would be for you to marry him now? And you're really past the stage where it would seem like a concession. Five years together is enough to convince anybody of your independence."

She was silent a moment; then:

"Do you really think it would be all right?" she inquired anxiously. "I mean, with Bruce. Of course I want to do whatever you say is best for our careers."

"He's okay," Louis broke in, with a smile of triumph; "I've talked to him and he leaves everything to you. I guess that's that, eh? I'll have a plane ready as soon as you like. If you step on it the story'll make tomorrow's first editions."

It did. No other elopement of film folk captured popular fancy as did the Sybil Archer-Bruce Franklin affair.

He was in conference with Producer Joe Filberg when Sybil arrived and demanded to see him.

"You fool!" she screeched at him. "You wretched, meddling idiot! You've ruined my life!"

He stood by the door and stared at her.

"Everything we had is gone, all because of your stupid interference. In my heart I knew neither Bruce nor I could be happy with the terrible restraint of marriage upon us."

She crumpled into a chair, sobbing gustily.

"Am I to infer," Louis questioned, "that you've quarreled with him or something?"

"Quarreled!" She sat bolt upright, to reveal a woebegone face. "I tell you we're through, finished! We stood the dreary horror of it as long as we could, then I told him to go and—and he went!"

She sniffed again, and added resolutely:

"I'm going to get a divorce immediately. It's the only way to save my pride, and that's all I have left now. By tomorrow everyone in Beverly Hills would know that he'd left me."

Once more a brief silence, while Louis looked fixedly at the carpet, eyes half shut. At last he stood up, shrugged, and said:

"Well, I won't even try to stop you. But listen—do us all the favor of keeping it quiet. You know what'll happen if you file the papers here; they'll be shouting it on every street corner in half an hour. I can see that it's handled under cover through a Mexican court—take about twenty-four hours. Then you can tell anyone you want to, but the whole world won't have to know. How's that?"

She was hesitant, but a bit more persuasion won her. Garrison typed out: "I, the undersigned, do hereby request a divorce from Bruce Franklin on the grounds of incompatibility," and handed it to her.

"Sign that and I'll have it sent to Agua Caliente this afternoon. Tomorrow you'll be a free woman."

Sybil's lip was trembling as she wrote her name. Louis asked:

"Where's Bruce gone? We'll have to notify him."

"He's—he's at the Christie-Plaza." The tears again were flowing freely as Garrison led her to the door.

At the desk, he pushed a buzzer-button. When the secretary appeared, notebook in hand, Louis said:

"Take a telegram. 'Mr. Bruce Franklin, Hotel Christie-Plaza, Hollywood: Sybil has just divorced you.' Sign my name. That's all."

For more than an hour thereafter work occupied him. At last he glanced at his watch and took up the phone:

"Get me the Christie-Plaza." Tilting back, his fingers drummed the desktop lightly. "Hello—connect me with Mr. Franklin, please."

"Sorry, sir," regretted the crisp voice in his ear; "Mr. Franklin checked out about twenty minutes ago."

"Did he say where he was going?"

"He had us send his trunks to an address in Beverly Hills. Shall I look it up for you, sir?"

"No," Louis said; "no—I don't think that'll be necessary, thanks. I'll just guess."

Game Birds and Animals

Game birds and animals must depend on a suitable environment for their continued existence. This environment must include, among other things, food and cover for all seasons of the year, nesting grounds unspoiled by burning or other destructive farm practices and small ungrazed areas that will provide a means of escape from natural enemies.

Comfort Zone Riding

IN THE NEW FORD V-8

IT MAKES no difference where you sit in the new Ford V-8. Even back seat passengers enjoy "the comfort of a front seat ride."

It took a major engineering development to make this possible—the Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating. Notice how the springs are mounted beyond the axles : : : how the seats are cradled in the easy-riding zone between the springs. Notice what a difference this makes—in everyone's comfort!

But Comfort Zone Riding is only one reason why you'll want a Ford V-8 in 1935. You'll want it for its V-8 power—for the beauty of its streamlined body and interior appointments—for its new roominess—its new easy-pressure brakes and clutch—its new, larger tires—the safety of its welded, all-steel body and safety glass all around (at no extra cost)!

Low in first cost : : : more economical to operate than any other Ford ever built : : : the 1935 Ford V-8 is, at the same time, designed to meet the needs of everyone. It's a new automobile value. See it today.

IS THIS STILL AMERICA?

Walter Quist, an old wheel horse of the Farmer-Labor party, who was a Farmer-Laborite back in the days when that party had no political plums to squabble about, is now charged with "disloyalty to the party" by a group of local party officials who seek to have him removed from his office as game warden. Because a state investigator, who spent a day or two here checking up on Mr. Quist's qualifications as a warden, made inquiries among local citizens regardless of their political affiliations, this investigator must also lose his job we are given to understand. In other words, the executive committee of a private county association, in no sense representative of the citizens of this community, is attempting to set itself up as a super government, not only assuming control of local patronage but dictating the policies of state departments as well.

While it is our opinion that Walter Quist is one Farmer-Laborite who, from the standpoint of service to the party, has up to the present time received far less from the party than he deserves, in this phase of the question we are not particularly interested. If the "rule or ruin" policy of the local association breaks up the Farmer-Labor party that isn't any of our concern. But if this is still America that we are living in, then as American citizens we do have a right to come to the defense of a public official who we believe is trying to do a good job in his official capacity. And we do believe that Walter Quist, regardless of his merits as a politician, is a good game warden and deserves to retain that office as long as he continues to give good service.

TIME TO TAKE OUR BEARINGS

Relief costs in Pennington County almost reached the twenty-five thousand dollar mark in 1933 and, if we remember correctly, several indignation meetings were held locally because the county spent something like a thousand dollars for the supervision of this relief. The year 1933 was a bad year. We had a good crop but prices were low. But even at that, local taxpayers agreed, the cost was terrific.

In 1934 relief was handled by agencies of the federal government. These agencies spent some over fifty thousand dollars, more than ten thousand dollars of which was administration expense. But local taxpayers didn't complain. Why? Because of the generally accepted idea that whatever we get from the federal government is a gift. And yet local taxpayers will have to pay their proportionate share of that federal bill just as certainly as they will have to pay the salaries of the local county officials.

It might be said that all of this is water that has gone over the dam were it not for the fact that present indications point to even greater relief expenditures by the federal government and a program of relief that will force the state and local units of government into the same wasteful practices as have characterized the activities of the federal administration. Notice has been served upon the state that it must spend ten million dollars. In addition to this, as we understand it, each county will be forced to contribute to the pool. And if this enormous sum is to become just another slush fund to be distributed as federal funds have been distributed during the past year, then it is high time the taxpayers stage a little revolt of their own.

There is no good reason in a country as rich as ours is, why anyone should lack the necessities of life. The needy must be provided for. No taxpayer can rightfully object to the assessments on his savings that are necessary to provide for those who are actually in distress. But every taxpayer has a right to demand that the money he contributes be used wisely and with discretion.

It is unfortunate that there is some justification for the public attitude so general here and elsewhere which countenances wastefulness because, "if federal and state money isn't wasted here it will be wasted somewhere else so let's get our share. If we don't get our share we will still have to pay our share so let's get what we can." So everybody grabs what they can get and waits for the other fellow to start using a little common sense. But this sort of thing has gone about as far as it can go. Apparently there isn't going to be any common sense injected into this thing by the tax spenders. The only hope seems to lie in the possibility that those who will have to pay the bills will assert themselves. And the taxpayers are nobody else but Mr. and Mrs. Common People.

Experience has taught us, among other things, that basketball is a game of great uncertainties, and so, while the season's record would indicate that Thief River Falls has better than a fair chance to win the district championship, and at least a fair chance to win the regional, we would advise local fans to make no definite plans as yet to accompany the team to the state tournament. We are sure, however, that those who visit the Auditorium tonight and tomorrow night will be rewarded by seeing some good, fast basketball. Beyond that we make no predictions.

SAY "TAK FOR SAMVÆRE"

It is all right to go in for frank discussion but to an outsider it occurs that groups called co-operatives might benefit by absorbing some of the fraternal spirit; mix it with their frankness in facing mistakes or omissions. In other fields of activity there are societies where backslapping and exchange of praise is over-done. Farm co-ops never take a chance of handing out too many compliments. They are more inclined to lean over in the other direction.

A few weeks ago a substantial group argued for changes in administration and policy at the farmers creamery, and took steps to that end. One wonders if results would not have been just as decisive, and the feeling better, if the action had also included some little mention of the fact that old directors and old methods had paid off debts, removed fear of financial troubles for the creamery as an institution, and put it in condition to adopt new policies when voted by the shareholders.

Interest in the creamery is not confined to shareholders and producer-patrons. Many more of us have pride in the institution, realize its worth to the community, want it to grow and bring increasing benefits to every farmer who milks cows. Because of this feeling those on the outside may be permitted to hold some views, while not taking sides in the present dispute. They do hope that agreement will be reached and progress resumed. Many of them feel like stressing two things: the demand for some changes comes from so many, in groups of varied views, that it should be recognized, and some action taken; second, the record of the old administrations has enough on the credit side to indicate that a drastic "purge" is not necessary.

A different illustration from the Leenthrop mutual insurance company. An officer of the company who had been connected with it in some way for 49 years was retired by vote of the members. There need be no objection to that action. Organizations are not obligated to re-elect anybody. But, again, to an outsider, it seemed strange that an organization built on the foundation of mutuality would let pass without mention the retirement of an official whose time of personal work for the company lacked only one year of being a half century.

The folks from the old country used to say "tak for samvære," thanks for the being together; with the thought implied that the association had been a privilege and pleasure. Such a thought is not a bad one to share with directors of co-operative creameries and officers of mutual insurance companies when the time comes that their best work is done. Or with countless others.

IT ALL DEPENDS

(Grand Rapids Herald Review)

Some weeks ago the state of Minnesota bought some matches.

It received bids. Matches made in Minnesota by people and taxpayers of Minnesota could have been purchased. But matches made in Russia were offered at 40 cents a gross lower in price. The state went to Russia for its matches.

An adherent of the state administration justifies such an action on the ground that the state must purchase from the lowest bidder. That is true.

But that does not satisfy some of us. We remember that two years ago the state purchased some linseed oil to use at Scenic State Park. The greatest linseed crushing plants in the world are in Minnesota. But the state bought the oil in New York. It paid $1.25 a gallon and the freight from Long Island City to Deer River. At the same time linseed oil was selling at retail in Grand Rapids and Bigfork, close to the job, at 69 cents a gallon.

We cannot take the explanations and excuses very seriously.

MINNESOTA HAS GOOD WARDEN

(Long Prairie Leader)

We read of prison breaks, murdered guards, penitentiary rebellions and escapes in many parts of the country but there never seems to be any such trouble in the Minnesota prison at Stillwater. There is evidently a good man in charge of the Minnesota prison. His name, by the way, is J. J. Sullivan. He has a prison population to contend with that is greatly in excess of the accommodations. More than 200 murderers are in his charge. The bad actors from every nook and corner of the state are there including gangsters of every kind and degree. But there are no breaks and no insubordination. There aren't any guns smuggled into the institution and there are no uprisings that result in burned buildings, escaped men and loss of life. This has been the record for years and years so evidently it isn't just a happenstance. Minnesota has a good prison and a good man to run it.

SALVAGE FROM FARM CREDITS

(Minneapolis Journal)

It is possible at last to look a little toward the bright side of the State Rural Credit situation. This is gratifying, after a succession of disheartening years. Rental income of the Division nearly doubled last year, and the Conservator hopes for a further increase this year to net a million dollars from State-owned farms.

When the Legislature and the Governor agreed two years ago to end the business of lending State funds on farm mortgages, it was estimated that the ensuing liquidation would result in losses of at least twenty million dollars, to be made up out of tax revenues.

Conservator Arens now holds out hope that the losses may be held to a lower figure. The improved showing of rentals, in a year when much of the State was burned up by drouth, is a good sign.

Some of the loss already has been paid, and more loss is bound to come. Only one quarter of the loans now outstanding are paid up, and the State now is the owner of 3,800 farm tracts thru foreclosures. All these farms in time must be returned to private ownership. The State takes losses in selling the repossessed farms. There is general support for the Rockne bill which will permit loans to be scaled down to the present value of the land, and this will mean some further sacrifice, but such losses will be met cheerfully if they are offset by the rehabilitation of farmers on these lands, and their retention on the tax rolls.

The general picture is still pretty dark, but there are silver linings. The improved rental revenue is one. Another is the fact that 518 farms were sold last year and only one hundred foreclosed. The peak of the foreclosure era seems to have been passed, and the trend of the foreclosed land now is back toward private ownership. Any improvement in farm prices, coupled with even average growing conditions, should stimulate this trend and help to relieve the State of its burden.

The State Rural Credit system was conceived as a help in reducing farm interest charges. As it worked out, the law only got the farmers too heavily into debt and tied State funds up in frozen assets. It will be an expensive lesson, at best.

Residents of Thief River Falls and Warren are eagerly backing the proposal to make a state park out of what is known as the Old Mill Site in Marshall county. It is about the only spot in that section of the state suitable for large gatherings and it's history qualifies the site for recognition. Bemidji is interested in the project since it was Earle A. Barker of this city, as president of the Northwestern Minnesota Historical Association, who suggested the plan and in the movement our neighbors will have hearty support from many in this city. The Historical Pageants at Itasca State Park have been responsible for increased interest throughout the entire state in historical events.—Bemidji Sentinel.

Dowries for Brides

It pays to be the youngest, oldest, tallest or shortest bride of the year in the Scottish parish of St. Cyrus, Kincardineshire. These brides receive cash dowries. The custom had its origin in a custom which occurred more than eighty years ago, says a writer in the Montreal Herald. John Orr sat looking out at a blinding snowstorm. Through the blizzard he saw a country lad and his sweetheart wending their way to the village church to be married. He wondered what they had in the way of worldly goods; made inquiries, and discovered that they had an abundant store of mutual love, but little else. At his death he left $5,000, the interest on which he directed be divided into five equal portions, the first to be given to the poor, the remainder to be divided between the brides as specified.

Coffin in Barn 110 Years

After resting in a barn behind the Old Castle Inn, at Stevenage, England, for 110 years, a coffin was opened by a mysterious visitor recently, and the story was revealed of its care on the premises since [illegible]. Inside the coffin were the remains of Henry Trigg, a grocer, who on his deathbed left all his property to his brother on condition that his coffin was kept in the house instead of buried in the usual way. Then the house was converted into the Old Castle Inn and the coffin was kept in a barn. Each landlord kept it intact. The coffin has been replaced in its usual position.

CAPITOL NEWS

By A. I. Harris

Rulings of the Securities Commission, like a barometer, register the ever changing conditions and affairs of day to day business life. At the present time, gold mining issues, long dormant, are coming to life and seeking licenses to sell. The high price of gold and the recent Supreme Court gold clause decision favorable to the government have made valuable again properties that up to now could not be operated at a profit. The Securities Commission is proceeding cautiously in its examinations of such securities and warns investors to beware of solicitations made through the mails or telephone from other states, in an attempt to sell stocks not submitted to the commission. The commission is ready and in a position to furnish at any time upon inquiry full information concerning the status of any stock offered an investor.

Max Sloane, of the merchandising firm of Sloane-Pettibone, Inc., St. Paul, is perplexed. He wants to put his problem before the Senate and House committees which are "investigating" relief administration in Minnesota. According to a certain witness who appeared before the committee, Mr. Sloane is "on the inside" on purchases, and sleuths of the committee at once thought that they had finally run onto some evidence of real consequence. It means something to be "on the inside" on government purchases. Being a practical business man, Mr. Sloane knows this, but during a period over which about $200,000 was spent for clothing, the firm of Sloane-Pettibone, Inc., bidding on every order, received the sum total of approximately $3200. Therefore, the question Mr. Sloane is desirous of putting to the committee, but which the committee does not want Mr. Sloane to put to them, is: "If, out of $200,000 worth of purchases I can obtain $3200 worth of business, by being 'on the inside', how much business could I get by being 'on the outside?'"

The St. Paul Daily News drove home a pertinent harpoon when, in a front page editorial last week, it asked the state senate if it would be necessary to exhibit a starving family on the capitol lawn, in the manner of the cow, the horse and the pig, to obtain passage of the $10,000,000 relief bill. Even the conservative newspapers are getting disgusted with the senate's evident political tactics as the failure to appropriate the $10,000,000 would mean about ten times that amount lost to Minnesota in federal aid.

"If I am candidate for United States senator or governor at the next election, it will be on the Farmer-Labor ticket. I have not made a political trade with anyone, nor will I make any." So said Governor Olson recently and his statements should quiet conservative press rumors that the governor has prepared to throw over his party for favors from one of the others.

Liquor control receipts from the first of the year to March 1, totaled $509,078. This sum is $127,817 greater than for the same period in 1934. David R. Arundel, state liquor control commissioner in charge of liquor revenue collections, laid the increase to a higher percentage of tax collections on all the liquor sold. And this means that less bootleg liquor is being sold.

R. W. Hitchcock, reactionary radio propagandist, made a bad boner when he wanted to show that the department of education is filling the schools with "radical" propaganda. In support of this idea, he said that a sentence illustrating a grammatical rule had been taken from a newspaper report of Governor Olson's inauguration. He didn't say when, but the department of education checked up the old examinations and discovered that the sentence occurred in an examination given in May 1931, when J. M. O'Connell, republican, was commissioner of education.

Mr. Hitchcock said that "the iron industry is flat on its back. It just can't pay any more taxes." In a recent advertisement, the iron industry stated that it was obtaining returns of ten per cent net. Ten percent net returns shouldn't prostrate any corporation.

Question Box

By ED WYNN
The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My brother is in the regular army and I have decided to enlist in the army also, but do not know what to do. You see the only condition under which I will join the army is that I must be near my brother. How shall I go about joining the army and being close to my brother? He is in the Seventy-fourth regiment.

Truly yours,
D. ZERTER.

Answer: Yours is a difficult problem, but I will help you: First, write to the United States government and tell them you wish to enlist in the army and, as you want to be near your brother, who's in the Seventy-fourth regiment, you wish to be put in the Seventy-fifth.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

There is a man living across the street from me who is acting queerly. The first day I saw him he was running around his back yard drinking from a medicine bottle. The second day I watched him he was still running and still drinking from the medicine bottle. Now, the third day I looked over I saw him skipping around the yard and still drinking from the same medicine bottle. Can you account for these strange actions?

Yours truly,
Y. GATES.

Answer: The man you refer to is evidently a very sick man and his doctor must have told him to take his medicine two days running and then skip a day.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Can you tell me why it is that Scotland is always full of Americans in the summer?

Sincerely,
C. SICK.

Answer: That merely demonstrates the gratefulness of the American people. The reason Scotland is full of Americans in summer is simply to pay them back for the Americans being full of Scotch in the winter.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My doctor has advised me to drink lots and lots of water and says that is the only thing for my stomach. Is this true?

Truly yours,
P. NUTZ.

Answer: I do not wish to advise against your doctor, but, if water rots your rubbers, what is it going to do to your stomach? Not for me.

Meaning of Name "Caesar"

Although the most widely accepted meaning of the name "Caesar" is "hairy," this name also is said to have as its root the word caedo (to cut), and also caesius (supernaturally blue), according to the Chicago Tribune. It also has been stated that the Moorish word for elephant was its origin. It was, however, borne by the emperors of Rome as a title, when their empires were far flung and their power tremendous. The word kaiser is believed to have derived from this title, in the days when German rulers took their authority from Rome. There is argument that czar, formerly spelled tsar, evolved from the same source.

Highest Mountain

Measuring from the centre of the earth, instead of from sea level, the highest mountain of the globe is not Mt. Everest, but Mt. Chimborazo, in the Andes, according to calculations made by a German scientist, says Literary Digest. On this scale Chimborazo's peak is 3,960.02 miles from the center of the earth; Everest's only 3,965.08. Four other peaks, Huascaran (Peru), Cotopaxi (Ecuador), Kenia (East Africa) and Kilimanjaro (Africa) are also "higher" above the earth's center than Everest. The difference in the measurement is due to the bulge of the earth at the equator.

Active Volcanoes

Mt. Lassen is sometimes called the only active volcano in the continental United States, but a volcano specialist says that Mt. Shasta, Mt. Baker and several other peaks in the Northwest are active volcanoes which may erupt at any time.

Mississippi River Widths

The Mississippi river at its extreme mouth is not very wide. The different openings through the delta are called passes and none of them is more than two miles wide at any point, [illegible]

State Calls for Bids on Two Paving Projects

Bids for placing 36 miles of high type bituminous surfacing on two important trunk highways in Southeastern Minnesota will be opened March 8 by the state highway department. The largest job is the surfacing of U. S. Highway No. 52 from Rochester to the Iowa line. A heavy plant-mixed bituminous surface is to be laid on the newly constructed waterbound macadam base. This will provide another paved route from Rochester south. The smaller project calls for laying a similar surface on Trunk Highway No. 16 between Lanesboro and Preston. This connects with an existing bituminous surface from Lanesboro to Rushford. Contracts already have been let for surfacing Highway 43 between Rushford and Winona, so that when these two jobs are completed, Winona will have a new bituminous connection with U. S. 52.

Twenty Per Cent of Trucks Are Overweight

Twenty per cent of trucks stopped recently by the State highway patrol have been overweight, according to a highway department bulletin. Of 425 trucks stopped in various parts of the state, principally at Anoka, Breckenridge, St. Cloud, Farmington and along Trunk Highway No. 61 north of the Twin Cities, 82 were from a few pounds to six and a half tons overweight. Heavy damage can be done to highways in softened condition as the spring breakup nears, and the patrol is now stopping and weighing trucks in all parts of the state. Of the 82 truck drivers found violating the law, all were taken into court and fined.

BILL PROVIDING MUD LAKE FUNDS GOES TO HOUSE

Group Proposes $50,000 Revolving Fund to Acquire Necessary Lands

Establishing of a $50,000 revolving fund to permit the acquiring of lands in the Mud Lake area of Marshall county for a migratory wild fowl reserve as part of a major federal government conservation and rehabilitation project, is sought under a bill submitted to the house Friday by Rep. F. A. Green of Stephen and co-authors.

The fund would cover the expense of condemnation proceedings and awards to make the land available for sale to the federal government. As the government makes payment the expended funds would revert and terminate the revolving fund. The lands would be acquired by the state commissioner of conservation.

The federal government has arranged to buy 53,713 acres in the Mud Lake area for approximately $369,000 and spend $100,000 on the public works project. Rehabilitation of needy persons on these lands as well as conservation is the objective of this FERA land program under NIRA activities.

JAPANESE GENTLEMEN SHY OFF AT DENIALS

If one were to put in straight English the Japanese judgment (or, for that matter, the Chinese or the Hindu) of what Occidentals call honesty, sincerity and candor, writes Sir Frederick Whyte in the Atlantic Magazine, one would find it approximate to the saying, "One can be truthful only with one's equals; with those who have not his whole respect the wise man is merely polite."

In any controversy particularly of a personal nature, Westerners are in the habit of saying: "Let's go and have it out with him; that will clear the air and then we can get down to business." But this rough and ready method of candid exchange finds little or no place in the habits of Asia.

It is hardly an exaggeration to say that it is a social crime in Japan to give, in answer to a question, any reply (however true), which may displease or to ask for any favor which will make necessary a blunt refusal. Among certain peoples the messenger of evil was rewarded with death; in Japan, one who conveys his message without suitable circumlocutions, he is likely to be ostracized as a barbarian.

Blunt negatives and direct refusals are, in fact, unknown to the code of the Japanese, and in order to convey such notions one must speak circuitously, casting hints of one's meaning here and there, half indicating one thing while ostensibly affirming the opposite.

DOG TEAM "POWER" OPERATES TRAMWAY

Thoughts of a dog team in the Canadian Far North country, writes Bert Stoll in the Detroit News, usually brings to mind a team of huskies swinging over a snow covered trail pulling a sledgeload of furs or supplies, while their driver "mushes" along ahead on his snowshoes, breaking trail or, if the trail is fairly well packed, riding on the rear of the sled while his sturdy team pull him steadily toward his cabin.

But there is one dog team in the North country that sees another type of service during the summertime. They furnish the "power" to operate a miniature tramway for a trapper. In the [illegible]

The ingenious trapper, a former engineer, laid a track of wooden rails from his cabin, running back into the "bush" where he could cut his winter's supply of fuel. He built a small flat car with light flanged wheels like those on a regular railroad car.

When he has a supply of logs cut ahead, he piles a load of them on his flat car, hitches three of his husky dogs in tandem, harnesses them to the front of the car, and they draw his load of fuel along the wooden rails up to his cabin.

Chas. J. Krause Dies; Last Rites Yesterday

Charles J. Krause, who has made his home here the past thirty-five years, passed away Saturday, Mar. 2, at the age of 62. Funeral services were held from the Larson Chapel yesterday afternoon at one o'clock and at the Oak Ridge church at three, Rev. R. M. Fjelstad officiating. Interment was made in Oakridge cemetery.

Charles Krause was born in Haycreek June 7, 1873, moving with his parents at the age of eleven years to Lockhart. Later he accompanied them to Euclid, where he remained until his marriage in this city December 11, 1900, to Miss Anna Olson. Since then he has made his home here. He is survived by a son, Charles, and three daughters, Cora, Mrs. O. Bishop and Mrs. M. Troland, all of this city. His wife and a daughter, Mildred, have preceded him in death.

Harvesting Brazil Nuts Unusually Hazardous Job

Not a harvest in the world is gathered under more perilous conditions than the Brazil nut crop. Before even arriving within sight of the wild groves, where these delicacies thrive in the "green hell" of Amazonia, the peons, or native pickers, have to fight their way through hundreds of miles of swampland, infested with alligators, swimming snakes, and electric eels, while in the jungle itself the merest scratch from a liana, orchid or some other poisonous plant spells death. Jaguars are among the lesser perils.

Then, when the tiniest breath of wind runs through the giant castanha trees, 80 and 100 feet high, on which the nuts hang in great pods, each weighing, when mature, not less than four pounds, these pods hurtle to earth with the velocity of bombs. Hundreds of natives are thus bruised and maimed every season.

The deadly black shells, hastily collected from the forest floor—climbing the trees would be impossible—are immediately packed on the backs of mules, and carried to the nearest stream, where they are washed, in readiness for transport by boat to the barracao or collecting station. Brazil, curiously, has no appetite for these luxury fruits. Great Britain and America are the largest importers.—Tit-Bits Magazine.

Zoo Animals Acquire Complexes

Among the curious characteristics of animals confined in zoos noted by Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of mammals and reptiles at the New York zoo is the dislike of snow shown by California sea lions which are accustomed in their native habitat to warm ocean currents and sunny beaches. On the other hand those heavily furred denizens of the Far North, often seen swimming between floes [illegible] in the wild state, the polar bears show themselves very reluctant to plunge into the pools provided for them in zoos in midwinter. In this latter connection Doctor Ditmars declares that the polar bears probably suffer less from the intense heat in midsummer than some of the animals imported from tropic climes. The reason for this is that the bears can quickly get relief from the heat when [illegible] by plunging into their own private pools.

Ancient Shorthand

The art of condensed writing is no modern invention. The Egyptians used shorthand more than 1,700 years ago, according to evidence collected by H. J. M. Milne of the British museum, London. The language of the shorthand was not Egyptian, but Greek, and Milne recently announced the discovery of a key to the ancient Greek shorthand, opening up to archeologists and historians many priceless, but hitherto indecipherable scripts.—Literary Digest.

PIRATES WIN CITY HOCKEY TITLE BY DOWNING THE CUBS

Close Intermediate Hockey Season Sunday With 10-5 Victory

By defeating the Cubs 10 to 5 Sunday in a free-scoring game, the Pirates climaxed a successful season by winning the city intermediate hockey league championship Sunday afternoon.

The Pirate forward line, including Kelly, Helquist and Ade Lorentson, set up a deceptive passing attack which could not be stopped by the Cubs, and kept Nesse, Cub goalie, in hot water most of the time.

Kelly opened the scoring for the Pirates on a pass from Helquist after nine minutes of play, and Ade Lorentson added another from the next face-off. Babe Lorentson and Kenneth Jaranson of the Pirates pony line scored twice before the end of the first period.

During the last two periods the play was more even, scores for the Pirates being made by Kelly, Helquist, Lorentson and Jaranson, while Donville scored three, Tungseth one and Nesse one for the Cubs. Outstanding players were J. M. Nesse and Donville for the Cubs, and Helquist, Lorentson and Kelly for the Pirates. Grant Gulrud and Bob McFarland served as referees.

Mrs. Theodore Doucette sustained cuts on her face early Tuesday morning when the car in which she was riding with her husband collided with a box car standing on the Great Northern track adjoining Main av. The car was badly damaged in the collision.

Aborigines Crave Salt

Among the savage tribes which live mainly on vegetables, salt is considered much as we consider sugar. Their children suck sticks of salt as our children suck sweets. Savages carry small pieces of salt in their pockets and offer it to each other to lick much as Americans will offer another a cigarette. Actually in the past nations fought wars for the possession of sources of common salt. People who eat much meat can do without adding salt, because they obtain salt from the blood of the animals they eat. Meat contains considerable quantities of sodium chloride, as do also salt water fish, but the fruits and vegetables, and particularly fine flours, contain very little salt.

Skiing an Ancient Sport

An exhibition of skis in Berlin has shown that skiing is one of the most ancient sports in the world. Drawings on stones found in Sweden, thought to be of about 5,000 years ago, show skiers in pursuit of reindeer (though chasing reindeer was necessity rather than sport to these early skiers). Some years ago there were found in a peat bog wooden skis from the Stone age. In the Middle ages ski matches were a favorite form of entertainment in Scandinavia. Then skiing dropped out of fashion until nearly the end of the last century. Today its devotees are numbered by the hundred thousand.

Time is at Hand for Poultry Producers to Plan Spring Hatching

It is not too early for poultry producers to arrange their special breeding pens for hatching purposes this spring. The superior females should be placed in special breeding pens and mated with males of approved quality and breeding. Such mating should begin at least three weeks before eggs are to be kept for hatching purposes as this will insure high fertility. According to A. M. Pilkey, poultryman at the Northwest Experiment Station, the selection should be based not only upon color, type, freedom from standard breeds defects and general bodily health, but also with emphasis on superior egg production. The birds should exceed body weight requirements for the breed and produce eggs of uniform color and size averaging not less than 23 ounces per dozen.

Mr. Pilkey states that best results are secured when the birds are segregated into comparatively small groups. The number of males required varies considerably by breed, size of flock, season of year, and general health and vigor of the birds. In the case of light breeds, such as Leghorns, one male should be placed with every fifteen females, while with the heavier breeds, such as Rocks and Reds, Mr. Pilkey recommends one male to every ten females and with breeds such as Orpingtons, one male to eight females.

Many poultry raisers attempt to improve their flocks by mass breeding. According to Mr. Pilkey this method is not to be recommended. Improvement can be brought about more quickly by special breeding pens where superior males can be mated to the highest producing females. The flock should be culled systematically some time in August and again during the following spring. All who are interested in flock improvement should secure a copy of Special Bulletin 150, "Culling for Egg Production", through the office of the local county agent or by writing to the Northwest Experiment Station, Crookston.

Making Survey of Red Lake Wild Life Refuge

An intensive survey of conditions in the Red Lake Wild Life refuge located north of the Red Lakes was made last week by Charles McFarlane, Deputy Director of the Division of Game and Fish, in company with representatives of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey. The Red Lake refuge is important to a wild life program in the State, it was pointed out by Erling Swenson, Division Director, because the only known herd of woodland caribou to be found within the entire United States is located within its confines.

HUGE PLANTING PROGRAM FOR FEDERAL FORESTS

Production of 150 million seedlings to be used this season for planting in the national forests of the north central region is part of the federal forestry program planned in which Minnesota will share, according to Grover Conzet, State Forester. Capacity of the Cass Lake Federal nursery is being used to aid in the growing of part of this planting stock which includes spruce and Norway, white and jack pine. Seedlings will be used largely "in the rehabilitation of idle but potential forest areas recently acquired by the federal government under the present land acquisition program".

$1,000,000 U. S LAND BANK LOANS IN MARSHALL CO.

369 Loans Average $2,634.69, Secretary J. W. Sands Announces

Marshall county farmers today have in force loans totaling nearly a million dollars from the Federal Land Bank and the Land Bank Commissioner, according to a report released today by J. W. Sands, secretary-treasurer of the Wheat Belt National Farm Loan Association of Warren, says the Warren Sheaf. Loans which are now in the process of closing will bring the total to well over a million dollars, Mr. Sands stated.

Three hundred and sixty-nine farmers in Marshall county and a few surrounding townships in Polk and Beltrami counties have received a total of $972,200 from the Federal Land Bank. New applications have been made amounting to $42,100, and miscellaneous applications yet pending total approximately $25,000. The expected allowances to be made upon the pending applications will bring the total well over a million dollars.

Of the total amount, $401,300 in loans were made by the eight national farm loan associations which served the county prior to the formation of the Wheat Belt Association, which organization took over the functions of these groups. The balance, $507,900, has been loaned to the borrowers direct from the Land Bank and through the new association.

The 369 loans averaged $2,634.69 and have been made in every section of the county. It is interesting to note that the decline in the average of loans made upon similar security since the depression has been slight in comparison to the drop in prices of commodities and farm values. The average drop has been approximately $500.

Charity Recipient Dies With Savings of $15,000

A safety deposit vault containing more than $15,000 was discovered in Minneapolis Thursday, the property of a man who frequented the city's missions and relief offices and died February 22 while spending the day in the Great Northern railroad station.

The dead man was identified Thursday as Edmund Brzezinski. In his pockets when the body was taken to the morgue was found $464 in cash, tied up in a roll of rags and pinned inside his shirt.

With identification of the body, officials brought the safety deposit box to life and, searching it, found more than $15,000 in cash.

U. S. 'BABY' BONDS ARE NOW ON SALE THRUOUT COUNTRY

Postoffice Selling Them in Denominations as Small as $25

President Roosevelt launched the government's "baby-bond" sales campaign Friday by buying one for each of his five grandchildren and one for himself.

Two cabinet officers, turned bond salesman, made the sales to the President with a fanfare of photographing and ceremony designed to attract popular attention to the administration's effort to have small investors buy its securities and become "partners in the government."

Simultaneously the new small-denomination bonds were offered to everyone at 14,000 postoffices through the country.

Mr. Roosevelt bought a $25 bond for each of his grandchildren. He paid $18.75 for each. In 10 years the grandchildren will receive the full $25 for each bond, the difference representing interest.

The bonds also come in units of $50, $100, $500 and $1,000. The President bought one of the larger denominations for himself.

In case of emergency, the government will redeem the bonds at any time after 60 days. The name of a purchaser will be written on the bonds as they are sold and the government will keep a record of them. Loss of the bonds, through theft or destruction, will not deprive the purchaser of payment.

Pictures of Minnesota Playgrounds Sought

Seeking action photographs which can be used to show Minnesota and her playground of 10,000 lakes as an ideal place in which to live, work and play, the Minnesota Tourist Bureau, state capitol, St. Paul, this month will conduct a state-wide contest for both amateur and professional lens artists, with cash prizes going to the winners.

Although striking scenic photos of lakes, trees and streams will be accepted, preference will be given those in which men, women and children are shown enjoying the multitudinous outdoor recreational attributes of the playground of 10,000 lakes, according to George H. Bradley, Tourist Bureau director.

Pictures winning the $50 cash prizes to be awarded in the contest will be used by the Bureau in out-of-state advertising to lure other visitors to come and play in the "Land of Sky-Tinted Water", Mr. Bradley said.

In addition to the cash awards, every contestant submitting one or more entries on or before April 1st will receive a 20 page booklet detailing humorous anecdotes about Paul Bunyan, greatest of all lumberjacks, whose prime legendary feat was the creation of the 10,000 lakes of Minnesota.

HIGHWAY CHIEF MAKES BIENNIAL REPORT THIS WEEK

11,339 Mile System Includes 2,686 Miles of Concrete Paving

Work of the state highway department in 1933 and 1934, as outlined in its biennial report just issued, includes the following:

Grading, 529 miles; graveling, 742 miles; bituminous surfacing, 451 miles; paving, 154 miles; paving base, 127 miles; shouldering, 148 miles; new bridges, 54; bridges widened, 39; bridges rebuilt or repaired, 633; grade crossings eliminated, 27; dangerous center piers eliminated in underpasses, 13; In 1935, the report says, it is hoped to eliminate all remaining center piers on the trunk system.

Official mileage of the system, by types, is shown as follows: Total system, 11,339 miles, which is made up of 2,686 miles of concrete paving, 101 miles of bituminous pavement, 3,086 miles of bituminous treated gravel, 4,520 miles of untreated gravel, 74 miles of graded dirt road and 872 miles of ungraded dirt road. A considerable portion of the graveled roads, the report states, hardly comes up to that classification because the graveling is so light and is on inferior grades or foundations. Much of this type of road was added to the system in the 1934 expansion.

Owing to federal regulations governing most of the highway construction of the past biennium, the work was broken up into many small projects widely scattered over the state. This was done as an employment measure and resulted in providing more jobs, says the report, but it also increased the cost of the work.

The report was presented to Governor Olson by N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner, and copies were supplied to the legislature.

Woodstock's Greater Paper Capacity
Eliminates the Necessity for Special Machines for Many Special Purposes

WHEN one investment, in one piece of equipment, will provide the utility of two or three slightly different pieces of equipment, there is no denying of economy.

Because of the greater paper capacity of the standard Woodstock, its utility in accommodating larger sheet sizes means one machine can be used for many purposes. Such an advantage means less confusion in routing work—one operator can, with the standard Woodstock, handle an endless variety of forms that of necessity are usually passed among two or three operators.

The paper capacity of the standard Woodstock accommodates forms up to 11½ inches wide, takes legal size Envelopes without folding, Bank Statements, Income Tax Reports, and with a writing line of 9½ inches.

That's utility for you—and extra service that only Woodstock can give you. And the saving is just that much money in the bank.

Paper Capacity is Matched With Writing Capacity

Woodstock not only gives you a longer writing line, but you can write at the extreme top of cards without shadowing as well as the extreme bottom in perfect alignment and without any special adjustments. The extra width capacity permits the operator to clear the adjustable Paper Fingers to each side without lifting or pulling. The Woodstock Carriage incorporates more worthwhile features than are to be found on any other one writing machine.

May we demonstrate these, and all of the other Woodstock "Points of Merit"? No obligation, of course.

Edited by Students of Lincoln High School, Thief River Falls, Minn.

PROWLERS ARE FAVORITES IN TOURNAMENT

Plummer Expected to Lose to Crookston; East Grand to Prowlers on Friday

Beginning last evening and continuing through Friday night Thief River Falls is the host of the District Tournament. The games are played in the Municipal Auditorium and everyone of them will be a fight to the finish for each team will be exerting all possible strength to represent the district in the Regional Tournament at Crookston.

This was written before last night's games were played, but in the first mix-up East Grand Forks should have been an easy victor over Fisher by about 30-9. Later the Crookston quint probably swamped Oslo by a 41-7 count.

The Warren Plummer battle was, in any event, the center of attraction last night. Both teams are good, but Plummer claims the advantage in height and class of players. All in all considering Plummer's veteran team, and [illegible] height, the "five" from Plummer could have [illegible] out a [illegible] victory.

The Prowlers probably [illegible] Climax all over the floor for about a 48-8 win.

If the previous predictions are correct as to the winning teams, East Grand Forks meets Plummer this evening with a likely outcome of a 31-20 victory for the Little Green Wave. The Crookston Pirates will certainly give the Prowlers a run for their money but the locals are favored over the Crookston by about a 28-21 advantage.

Friday evening's card con[illegible] battle between Crookston and Plummer, but [illegible] East should have little trouble [illegible] of the Plummer quint [illegible] least a 40-21 lead.

The climax of the tournament in fact the climax of the season's basket ball season is scheduled for 9:00 p. m. tomorrow evening when the Prowlers meet the East Grand Forks team. PROWLERS DROP SECOND GAME TO GRAND FORKS

Redskins Win in Fast Game By 37-26 Score; "B's" Defeat Alvarado in Prelim.

The Prowlers lost their second game of the year to Grand Forks Central last Friday evening 37 to 26. This was the first game lost on the home floor this year. The Prowlers did not seem to be up to their usual good form for this game while Central presented a fast passing and an exceptionally large team.

The Redskins opened fast and took a 6-0 lead on two baskets by Nelson and one by Rood. Van Pelt came back for the Prowlers with two baskets but Nelson slipped in two more for the Redskins. The quarter ended with the Redskins leading 12 to 6 after Drange had counted for Central and Mickleson dropped one in for the Prowlers.

After the intermission the Prowlers came back hard with Nicholson getting three baskets and Mickleson one. Rood, Nelson and Drange stopped this rally and started one for Central by adding four more baskets. Kielty scored twice from under the basket and Nelson got a gift shot as the third quarter ended with the Redskins leading 27 to 22. In the last period the Prowlers seemed to be tiring fast and Nelson added six points to his total and Bye and Rood got two apiece. Van Pelt got a field goal and Kielty a gift shot as the game ended with Central winning 37 to 26.

This game was one of the fastest seen this season on the home floor. Grand Forks refused to be held down and by virtue of their fast passing attack got several set-ups. The high scorer for the evening was an elongated center from Grand Forks who in addition to his strong defensive work, scored nineteen points for the Redskins. Besides Nelson, Rood was outstanding for the Redskins and for the Prowlers Van Pelt stood out.

The Prowlers B team ended their season by defeating Alvarado 30 to 17. This gave the second team a clean slate for the year winning nine games and losing none. The B team scored 257 points to the opponents 96 during the season.

PROGRESS POKES ITS NOSE AROUND

Our trip this week will carry us out West. Of course, you still understand that this all takes place in the year 1940.

Nevada first captures our attention. When thinking of Nevada, the city of Reno naturally appears first. In the courts of this famous city, news reaches us that the former Miss Margaret Gustafson has obtained her first divorce. When interviewed, Miss Gustafson stated that her next ambition is to travel around the world.

In Nevada, we also visit Miss Dorothy Blanchard, who is leisurely touring the western states. Nevertheless, Miss Blanchard still maintains her residence in Thief River Falls. She also informs us that she has just received a letter from a friend of hers, Miss Helen Berg. Miss Berg now operates a group of summer cottages at Twin Lakes.

We can't leave the boys entirely out of this, you know. In Idaho we discover that Norman Leesold and Stanley Simonson have packed up all of their belongings and have joined the "Golden West" orchestra. Their dance are reputed to be the largest paid any musician [illegible].

Miss Agnes Movestad greets us at Denver, Colorado. She is a teacher in the public schools in this city. While talking over old times, we learn that Miss Edna Goldbrist is a musical instructor in the public schools of Mahnomen, Minnesota. The [illegible] chorus, which she has supervised for only one year recently won first honors in the State musical contest.

In seeking a place of recreation we come to the city of Hot Springs, Arkansas. Here Miss Edna Lee and her group of girl's professional basket ball players are contending for the Western championship title. After wishing her the best of luck we leave.

Now on to the state of Washington. Do our eyes deceive us? In Seattle, Miss June Rolland, the well known portrait artist, is out West looking for [illegible]. [illegible] New York City.

In Oregon, we find two more old friends, Miss Silvy Hanson, [illegible] as "Sally Blake," contributes many short stories [illegible] just completed a novel. Miss [illegible] Miss [illegible] Lofquist, who teaches [illegible].

[illegible] our trip out West. Visiting the studios of K. F. I., Los Angeles, we are greeted by Wesley Westphal, who has now assumed the head position of musical supervisor of the station. His unusual guitar arrangements have won recognition for him throughout the entire United States.

At the docks, Miss Ella Erickson is preparing to leave the shores of the U. S. for a long time. She is leaving for India as a special missionary.

Many of our schoolmates are still occupied in other work so bear with us until next week.

VOX MAGISTRI

The word "insignia" is usually associated with military and naval life. The word implies distinguishing marks of authority, office or honor in terms of badges and emblems. What is the insignia of a lady? When you girls used to play lady what did being a lady mean? A long train, sashes, gloves, a big hat, a parasol. What are these distinguishing marks of a lady?

1. Appearance has been acknowledged an outstanding element of personality, considering it from the standpoint of bodily cleanliness, posture and the selection and care of clothing. "In character, in manners, in style, in all things, the supreme excellence is simplicity"—Longfellow.

2. The art of conversing is not always as seriously cultivated as the art of singing or dancing, and yet it is far more valuable than any of the other arts. In the age of Queen Victoria, girls were actually taught the art of conversation. If you were to keep a record of your conversation for one week, would you talk about the things you do? The subject of conversation is indicative of character.

3. The root of all courtesy is kindness and thoughtfulness of other people. Politeness is to do and say the kindest thing in the kindest way. Courtesy may be classified as community courtesy and personal courtesy. Community courtesy may be regarded as the attitude a girl takes in her community. Did you ever see a crowd of girls monopolize the walk? You should realize when you are in public places that you are guests of that community or city. What do you think of the guest who throws bits of letters, or peanut hulls on the street, or in the post office? When a speaker is addressing an audience it is discourteous to turn your head when someone enters the room or when some disturbance occurs in the rear of the room. Are your courteous or a good sport when you "boo" a referee decision at an athletic contest? Are you courteous to your school and to your team when you prepare to leave, by busying yourselves with coats and hats, leaving your seat several minutes before the game is over? All of these things come under sportsmanship and gives your school its reputation and school spirit. A good sportsman always:

Takes part in all activities willingly.
Plays clean in talk and actions.
Plays hard to the end, does not sulk and is not yellow.
Hates an alibi.
Is loyal to her high school, to the teams and to the activities.
Abides by the decision whether winning or losing.

Personal courtesy consists of those little mannerisms and courtesies that every individual comes in contact with daily. There is not a finer courtesy of spirit than described in these words, "thinking of other people before you think of yourself." You do not want to place yourself in a position where you have to exclaim vainly, "If I had only known what to do at that moment!" or "Oh I was so embarrassed, I could have wept."

When you played lady you always went visiting, didn't you? You went through gorgeous ceremonies upon entering your playmate's spacious castle and the lady who received you was graciousness itself. Are you going to be a hostess or a guest of your play days?

Manners are only the surface indications of real character. Since you are all social beings trying to live harmoniously in your respective places, it is necessary to conform to certain standards, to follow certain rules of life as you do [illegible] games.

Rousseau maintains that "education is nothing but the formation of habits." You have come to realize that education is not the mere gaining facts but the development. You must be able to do things correctly and with a reasonable degree of ease. When you are capable of meeting emergencies with wisdom and intelligence, of doing the correct thing and saying the right thing, you have those distinguishing marks and may well be awarded the insignia of a lady.

E. L. LINDELL SPEAKS IN THE ASSEMBLY FRI

"Law and Order" Subject of Speech of Sec'y of Law and Order League

At the assembly program which was held last Friday, Mr. Edwin L. Lindell was the speaker. Mr. Lindell is the executive secretary of the Minnesota Law and Order League. Since Mr. Claffy was not very well acquainted with Mr. Lindell, he asked Mr. Dahlquist to introduce him.

Mr. Dahlquist told of knowing him as a commander of the American Legion. Mr. Dahlquist told us that "Law and Order" wasn't as bad as it sounded and that was what Mr. Lindell was to speak on.

Mr. Lindell opened his address by explaining that we had law and order if the policemen hadn't called at your home yet. Mr. Lindell explained how law went back to the beginning of civilization and to the cave man. "Everyone is subject to certain regulations, although many object to them," stated Mr. Lindell. He told that we should bear in mind the fact that laws were made for a group, not for an individual.

"Think of your laws to please a group and not only yourself, group honor, not individual honor," advised Mr. Lindell. He pointed out how many countries were governed by the law, for our welfare.

Mr. Lindell begged us to be good students, for if we are that now we will become good citizens of whom our country will be proud. Law is necessary to keep all those facilities given to us by the efforts of our ancestors, who made them through hard work and law. All depends upon the law.

To close his address Mr. Lindell told the following story: There was a boy from the farm who had finished taking all education possible for him to take. This boy wanted most of all a small plot of ground to farm. As the boy rested in the evening he gazed off into the West across the valley, where he saw a home with golden windows. He decided if someone else could have golden windows, he could also.

The next morning the boy set off across the valley seeking the house with golden windows. He approached the home where a friendly farmer invited him in. The farmer promised to show him the house with golden windows. Therefore, the next morning the farmer points to the East, to his own home. There the rays of the sun hit his own windows, making his home the home with the golden windows.

Mr. Lindell then explained how our windows of gold are right here with our associates and let our golden windows mold for us a sense of honor.

His last thought was that when temptation is very, very strong we should overcome it by better judgment. Never stoop so low as to take that which belong to someone else. Mr. Lindell told how there were 40,000 criminals in the United States. The largest single age group was that of 19. Have respect for the law in the hearts of the United States citizens.

After the interesting address of Mr. Lindell, Mr. Claffy closed the program.

MR. LANNING SPEAKS AT PEP ASSEMBLY FRI.

Mr. Orwoll Gives Baritone Solo; Cheer Leaders Teach New Yells

The pep fest which preceded the basket ball game with the Grand Forks' Centrals, Martha Storholm was the master, rather mistress, of ceremony. First, Martha called on Mr. Lanning to lead the school song.

Mr. Lanning told us that our pep was very noticeable by its absence. "We have a basket ball team which is going to play a 'tough' game tonight". He demanded that we must have pep and to overlook the "falling coming" which has to go on. Mr. Lanning admonished us for making our school pep song sound like a funeral dirge instead of a "Rumba". Again he amended us for murdering our school. He promised that we would not murder the song anymore, but make it a song for a circus parade. The song is taken from Notre Dame's "Victory March" which carries dignity. Our school song should be "fine". After directing the school song accompanied by Dochy Douville, Mr. Lanning told us to follow the yell leaders by giving two yells directly after the school song "to get off on a big booming start."

All the yell leaders led us with the "Yea Prowler" yell and fifteen rahs for the team. Next the yells "With P with an R with a P-R-O" and the "Shoot 'em high" were led by Adele Holmstrom and Martha Storholm. Kathleen Monsbroten and Phyllis Norbeck led us to the "1-2-3-4" yell and their favorite "Echo" yell.

Mr. Orwoll favored us with a baritone solo, entitled "O Sole Mio" translated, "Beneath Thy Window." Before he played his solo he told the following story: Many people were attending a wedding. Among them were an old man and an old spinster, unfamiliar with classics, recognized a familiar song. To fill a request of an old man, she told her the song was "A Maiden's Prayer."

Mr. Claffy dismissed the pep fest, hoping all of us would attend the game.

ORWOLL ATTENDS BAND MEETING AT U. OF MINNESOTA

Gives Report of Annual Band Clinic Held February 21, 22, and 23

Mr. Orwoll gave the following report of his trip to the Bandmaster's Convention last week:

"With nearly two hundred and fifty in attendance, the eleventh annual Band Clinic, sponsored by the Minnesota Bandmasters' Association, held at the University of Minnesota February 21, 22, and 23, closed with a record of achievements that will stand out as signally important in the Annals of the Association. Representatives were present from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, South and North Dakota.

The guest conductors, Dr. Edwin Franko Goldman of the Goldman Band of New York, and William Revelli, Director of Music at Hobart Indiana, assisted by many Minneapolis Symphony men, kept us bandmasters on our toes throughout the entire clinic. William F. Ludwig's demonstrations and talks on percussion were very interesting as well as instructive. Our day was so full of so many very fine discussions and demonstrations, that we tucked our napkins under our chins at noon and evening in the very room we held our meetings.

An eighty-five-piece clinic band had been selected from the Twin City High schools in order that the conductors might use them for their demonstrations. These rehearsals terminated in a grand concert on Saturday evening in the Northrup Auditorium, the spirit of the meetings can best be stated in the words of Berlioz, "Music must begin in harmony, continue in harmony, and end in harmony."

Dr. Goldman sees a great future for school bands. The music development of the entire nation is dependent on what we do in schools. No country today has contributed as much to school music as we have. He paid a very fine tribute to the West and Central states by stating that we were twenty years ahead of the east. We are living in an age of unprecedented change. In New York they are bound by the Regents who continue to think largely in terms of tradition. They have not changed to meet the requirements. Their day of the survival of the fittest is over with as far as school attendance is concerned, and is one justification for Instrumental Music. Several states have already raised the age at which a student may withdraw from school. Our educational opportunities must necessarily be enlarged to meet the new demands.

Music should not be considered a luxury, for it is not, it is a necessity, a great one, more so in these trying days than ever before. It is false economy to curtail expenses, for no matter how much more we have, it is not enough. Music is the key to health and happiness."

EDITORIAL

With the passing of fifty-five more school days approximately one hundred and thirty seniors will have concluded their four years of high school. The number of graduates will be considerably smaller than the number of students enrolled as freshman four years ago. What has happened to those who will not receive their diplomas next June?

Some of them were members of families that were hit especially hard by recent economic conditions and hence were forced by adverse circumstances to forfeit their chance for a secondary school education. Other have migrated to other communities and will be members of other graduating classes. The saddest and most deplorable group is the group that is still attending Lincoln High: the group that won't graduate because they haven't exerted enough effort to be scholastically fit to have a certificate of graduation from an accredited high school. These students who have "loafed away" the past four years deserve no sympathies whatsoever; they are getting their just deserts. Our only hope is that they have been taught a lesson that will serve as a warning against further indolence in future years.

Twelve seniors have been honored with positions on the staff of the 1935 "Prowler". They will soon discover that these positions of honor are accompanied with no small amount of work, both of the mental and physical nature. They will run into unforseen difficulties, but in overcoming them they will gain experience that should aid them in later years.

These dozen seniors will meet with inevitable failure unless they are given the whole-hearted support and cooperation of their classmates. Pictures will have to be taken and taken on time, activity lists will have to be compiled with accuracy and punctuality, and many other things will have to be done by seniors other than those on the "Prowler" staff. This is a direct plea to every senior to comply with the requests of members of the staff in publishing a book that will be cherished by every possessor.

Last Friday Mr. Lanning addressed us from the stage of the assembly. His discourse might appropriately have been entitled "The Admirable Animation of the Student Body of Lincoln High School and What To Do About It". He rebuked us for not showing more pep and spirit in supporting our winning basketball team. Nor was his reproof gentle and indirect. He exercised a caustic wit and accompanied every remark with brimming sarcasm.

Usually such a speech would have met with disfavor, but the students evidently realized the truth of his statements and the reaction desired was attained by the speaker, for the cheer leaders soon discovered life to be much more pleasant and the yells were declared very much improved. Of course, there were those students who didn't like the rebuke and who don't show any more life than before. But they are just setting themselves up in the public eye as poor sports and are really harming no one but themselves.

The consensus of opinion was that Mr. Lanning was right. And [illegible] attribute to Mr. Lanning!

Associations Making Loans on Farm Items Ask Early Conference

A total of 4,263 farmers attended the 78 annual meetings of the production credit associations in the 7th district, including 1,788 farmers who were not members, but who accepted the invitations of the association presidents to attend.

Although all of these associations, including the one with headquarters in Thief River Falls, are now equipped to make loans in much shorter time than last year, the secretary-treasurers are urging farmers and stockmen who need to be financed this year to make their applications as soon as possible. This will enable them to receive their commitments and have the money available when it is needed to meet their expenses. It will also reduce the cost of operating these associations by reducing the flood of applications that it will be necessary to handle during the spring financing season. Since these associations are cooperatively operated for the benefit of their farm-members, any reduction in costs will accrue to the benefit of the members.

Interest on loans is not charged until the farmer-borrower actually receives his advance, thus there is no additional cost connected with applying for loans before the money is actually needed.

Measuring Earthquakes

Tests made during earthquakes have shown that records of measuring instruments located at the top of a building do not usually coincide with those located at the bottom of the structure.

Two Artificial Lakes Proposed for Kittson County by State ERA

In response to requests from officials in Kittson county, the Minnesota SERA has ordered hydraulic engineers to study the possibilities of building dams in the forks of Two Rivers to regulate the flow of water and create artificial lakes at two points.

A dam at Bronson on the south branch of Two Rivers would cause a body of water to form in a natural lake bed to the east. A second lake would result from a dam in the north fork of the river, at Lancaster. A series of small dams in the middle fork would guarantee the city of Hallock an adequate water supply at all times, it was said.

In support of the plan, the sponsors point out that the two lakes would provide great recreational benefits to the people in adjacent communities the lakes would be ideal playgrounds in the summer. Fish could be supplied by the state game and fish commission, and in general, the program would tend to conserve the wild life in the region.

TAXING REFORM PROPOSALS GOES TO BOTH HOUSES

Claim Comprehensive Bill Would Save Millions Each Year

Methods of administering local government would be changed sharply under the proposals of a bill introduced in the State Senate by Senator Henry C. Stiening of Cass county, and in the House by Representative S. Theo. Severtson. The bill, which is regarded as one of the most comprehensive pieces of tax legislation yet presented to the present session of the state legislature, would completely revise local tax methods.

It is designed primarily to effect many of the reform measures sponsored by the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, and the 80 county taxpayers' units throut the state, by altering the methods of making levies, and, as its sponsors state, it would "save millions of dollars every year to Minnesota taxpayers."

Proposals covered deal with those outlined in a questionnaire issued to legislative candidates before the November election by the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, which the majority of the legislators in both houses answered and endorsed, according to tabulations published at the time.

The bill, with 10 sections, is far-reaching in its effects, since it would:

(1) Establish a County Board of Tax Adjustment of seven members in each county, to which taxpayers are required to present arguments for or against any tax measures;

(2) Require all municipalities, counties, townships and schools to submit prescribed financial reports to the state, thus assembling complete financial data for all units, this being fundamental to intelligent tax revision;

(3) Require the Public Examiner to audit the books of any local board, upon request of citizens;

(4) Establish standardized accounting methods in all branches of local government;

(5) Make mandatory proposed annual budgets, and notice thereof, to be followed by budget hearings participated in by both citizens and officials;

(6) Prevent the issuance of anticipation warrants exceeding levies, except by authority from the County Board of Tax Adjustment;

(7) Place all units on a "pay-as-you-go" basis;

(8) Require that all monies be used only for the purposes levied;

(9) Restrain administrative boards from making outlays in excess of the amount of tax collections in any given year;

(10) Permit electors to be final authority to adjudicate all tax levy appeals from the decision of the Tax Adjustment board;

(11) Provides penalties for violations of all provisions of the bill.

Senator Stiening stated today that every effort will be made to get early action on the bill and to speed it through to passage.

"This bill embraces the reform that thousands of taxpayers have been demanding, and has the central features that will bring down and keep down, local tax levies," the Senator stated.

"Local government has always taken by far the largest slice of our tax dollar, and its growing demands have been exceeding its tax-producing wealth. A bill of this kind is deemed by all who are familiar with the problem as of primary importance if we are to get any sane tax legislation at the present session," he stated.

TIME FOR PAYING STATE INCOME TAX TO BE EXTENDED

Additional Period Granted on Tax Payments Due March 15

Time for payment of the state income taxes, of which half is due under the law by March 15, was extended indefinitely Friday by announcement of George E. Wallace, chairman of the state tax commission.

The delay is necessary, he said, because the legislature has not provided for payment of the expenses of the income tax division. The income tax law of 1933 provided for payment of salaries and expenses out of the taxes until February 15 of this year.

E. J. Pearlove, state controller, holds that no further payments can be made and employees are not able to draw salaries. Bills are before the legislature to care for the situation, but no action has been taken.

The division has not been able to attend to printing and distributing of tax blanks. The time for payment of the tax may be moved ahead as far as June 1, he said.

LEGISLATIVE LETTER
By R. W. Hitchcock

LEGISLATIVE LETTER .. ..

Sittings of the Senate and House investigating committees have aroused intense interest. The Senate chamber and its galleries are packed at every session of the committee.

Details of the revelations have appeared in the papers from day to day. Almost as interesting is the scene of the investigation. It is held in the Senate chamber, a beautiful room, the most garish in Minnesota's capitol. Beautiful marble columns and marble trimmings adorn the chamber. Famous paintings are displayed on the upper walls. Around the frieze are those noble words of Daniel Webster: "Let us develop the resources of our land, call forth its powers, build up its institutions, promote all its great interests and see whether we also, in our day and generation, may not accomplish something worthy to be remembered."

Down at the left of the President's dais at a small table sits Chairman James A. Carley of Wabasha, Tom Mouer, attorney for the committee, two court reporters who take down every bit of testimony offered to later transcribe it for the use of the members of the committee, and at one end of the table a chair for the witness.

Closely gathered around are the members of the committee, eleven Senators and nine House members. Immediately behind the committee is a table for the newshawks and their number crowds that entire corner of the chamber.

Every seat in the chamber is taken, many additional chairs have been brought in, Senators, Representatives and citizens sit on the pages' bench, perch on the steps of the President's dais and even sit in the President's chair high above the scene of the inquiry; the walls of the room are lined with standing spectators, the galleries are jammed.

For the most part the crowded chamber listens in silence as the questions of Chief Inquisitor Tom Mouer boom throughout the chamber or the ringing voice of Chairman Carley breaks in on some witness. The chamber is tense and strains its ears for the low voiced answers of witnesses, but occasionally some sharp retort or unexpected bit of humor results in laughter and applause from the galleries.

Somebody, besides those whose cries of fear and protest rend the air, seems to be interested.

Governor Floyd B. Olson, who from the first has exhibited considerable nervousness concerning investigations proposed and authorized by the Legislature, roundly scolded the investigating committee in a communication to it last week.

From the beginning of democracy the Legislative branch of the government has been a thorn in the flesh of all executives. It is most annoying to the President to have Congress on his hands, and Governors always heave a great sigh of relief when the Legislature adjourns. Legislatures cramp their style. It would be so much more satisfying to them if they could do just exactly as they jolly well pleased. Caesar thrice refused the crown, but the people suspected that he wanted it just the same, and they slew him for it.

Governor Olson seems to think that ruling Minnesota is a sort of divine right to which he should have unrestricted monopoly. It annoys him to be investigated. But the people of Minnesota are an independent people rendering servile obedience to no man, and it is quite likely that their Legislature will continue to be an independent body no matter how much or how rudely the Governor chafes at its determination to find out what is going on in Minnesota.

It is the desire in these Legislative letters to be as accurate with facts as possible. Occasionally errors will creep in. When errors are discovered, however, they will be corrected as speedily as possible.

A statement was made in the letter of February 7th that the Department of Education had sent out to the public schools of the state examination questions in which sentences of a strongly political nature were submitted to the children of the schools to pore over and to ponder, with the requirement to parse certain indicated words in the sentences.

This statement was made on what seemed to be excellent authority backed by the printed list of examination questions. Further investigation, however, reveals the fact that the printed questions were not sent out by the Department of Education and were not intended for examinations in the public schools, but for a different purpose.

The mistake is deeply regretted and a sincere apology is tendered to the Commissioner of Education of Education, Dr. John G. Rockwell and to the Department of Education.

Representative S. A. Stockwell of Hennepin, was a member of the House 41 years ago, back in 1891. He's there today. In the interim he has been a member of the Senate, a private citizen, and a member of the House for many terms. All together, when his present term is ended, he will have served in the Legislature for 21 years. Mr. Stockwell is an astute student of social and political science, holds advanced views and upholds them with great vigor. No man in the Legislature is more thoroughly informed on these subjects than he; no man in the Legislature is more esteemed for his sincerity; few men are so seldom agreed with.

Not even a Kansas squash grows as fast as a governmental department. The Department of Agriculture wants 10 new inspectors—or perhaps it is 20—to help make life interesting for the folks out in the sticks, and the enthusiasts who are intent upon crime prevention think that 21 new state agents of the Department of Criminal Apprehension will do the trick.

"Population" shrinks and the sources of revenue dry up, but taxes and public officials are crops that never fail to reveal a bountiful increase.

Governor Olson's ghost writer appears to have spoken out of turn in the Governor's personal column of Wednesday, February 27th. The Governor, who had been out of the state for several days, was made to say in regard to the Waldal-Day election contest: "The conservative group of the Minnesota House of Representatives yesterday reversed the district court of Minnesota . . . The judge declared Day elected. The conservative bloc in the House overruled the judge in favor of the conservative candidate."

The decision of the court referred to was made when the Legislature was in session and when the court had no jurisdiction. This is the recognized rule of action in all Legislative election disputes. The district court of Ramsey county so ruled two years ago in the Hilton-La Blssoniere contest. In that case the recount had been completed by the court showing that Hilton had received more votes than La Blssoniere, but before the court could certify its findings the Legislature was in session, whereupon the court refused to certify its findings on the ground that the Legislature was in session and that the Legislature, not the court, had jurisdiction.

The House, in seating Waldal, Chairman Walter H. Campbell of the House Elections committee says, took no cognizance of the court's action, but decided the issue solely upon the question of 14 ballots which admittedly had been tampered with. These ballots were thrown out, with the result that the official count gave the election to Waldal by nine votes.

The court had no authority to act. The Legislature had complete jurisdiction. Whether the court was right or wrong in its findings, whether the Legislature made a just decision or an unjust one, the fact remains that it was the House, and the House alone, which had authority to act.

BYE NAMED TO HEAD SCHOOLS FOR 10TH TERM

CLAFFY RE-ELECTED PRINCIPAL 6TH TERM

Relief Workers Paid $1,132 for Knox Painting Project Labor

The board of education at its March meeting Monday evening re-elected Morris Bye to serve his tenth term as superintendent of the local schools, and Mr. Bye indicated his acceptance of the contract offered him. At the same time W. G. Claffy was re-elected to serve his sixth year as high school principal.

Election of members of the teaching staff was discussed at length, following which final approval of contracts was deferred until the April meeting. The board, however, agreed on salary increases averaging slightly less than $5 a month, a study of cities of comparable size revealing that this city ranks well down toward the bottom of the list in respect to salaries paid at the present time.

Action was taken to approve a contract with the Northwest Nursery company of Valley City, N. D., for landscaping the Northrop and Knox school grounds at a cost of $70.

Mr. Bye informed the board he had learned from County Auditor Harry Fowler that the March state apportionment will be on the basis of $2.75 a pupil, compared to $2.50 last year and $3 the year before. A total of $4,180 will be received for the 1,530 pupils entitled to apportionment.

The board voted to make application for a teacher training department for the coming year, but action on the application depends on whether or not the present session of the legislature makes the necessary appropriation.

The board was informed that following an interruption from February 21 to March 6, work was resumed on the Knox school painting project under the ERA with a crew of 14 men at work, the painting to be completed within a week. The cost to date for material was reported at $632.30, and for labor $1,132.45.

BANGS' DISEASE TESTING NEARING FINISH IN COUNTY

Total of 481 Herds Have Been Tested up to Present Time

Testing of Pennington county dairy herds for Bangs' disease (contagious abortion) is now getting into the final stage, a total of 481 herds having been tested up to Wednesday out of 665 signed up previous to December 31. Forty additional herds have been signed for the test since the first of the year.

Minnesota state and federal government agencies cooperating in the control of the disease, set a new state record for numbers of cattle tested in a single month by testing 84,070 head in February. The best previous record, made in January, was 70,893 head.

Since last August, when the Bang's disease eradication program was started in this state, a total of 294,474 head of cattle, in 17,357 herds, have been tested. Of these, about 40,000 head, or 13.6 per cent of all cattle tested, have reacted to the test, indicating they were infected with his disease.

The majority of the diseased animals have been marketed (Bang's disease does not affect the food value of the beef carcass) in an effort to keep the disease from spreading to healthy cattle. Indemnities totaling $450,000 have been paid to owners who have disposed of cattle in compliance with their Bang's disease eradication contracts.

PROWLERS ARE ELIMINATED IN SECOND ROUND

Large Crowds Witness Tournament, Receipts Totaling $870.50

Predictions as to the outcome of the District 31 high school basketball tournament at the Auditorium last week, in which the Lincoln high school Prowlers ruled a strong favorite, suffered an unexpected upset Thursday evening when, in the semi-finals the local team, not playing up to its usual standard, lost to Crookston by a score of 28 to 24.

Kielty was the only Prowler player who found the basket with any regularity, accounting for five of the nine field goals and four of the six free throws. In the second semi-final game East Grand Forks won from a speedy Plummer team by a score of 46 to 28.

Battling in the championship tilt Friday evening the Crookston Central team went down to defeat at the hands of East Grand Forks by the close score of 16 to 13, Crookston lagging behind thruout the game except for a few minutes in the first period. In the consolation game Thief River Falls had its hands full defeating an inspired Plummer team 40 to 33, the score being tied twice during the second period.

The silver championship trophy was presented to the East Grand Forks team following the two games by Morris Bye, member of the district high school athletic committee. The runner-up award was presented to Crookston and a basketball each to Thief River Falls and Plummer.

Large crowds witnessed the tournament each night, the total receipts amounting to $870.50, approximately $300 more than was taken in during the district tournament in 1934. The surplus will amount to about $400, which will be divided among the participating schools.

In the regional tournament to be held in Crookston tonight and Friday the first game will be played this evening between Waubun and Kennedy at 8 o'clock, while Bemidji will battle East Grand Forks at 9 o'clock. The consolation and championship games are scheduled for Friday evening.

Nelson, representing the St. Lukes Hospital association, asked the council to recommend to the county board and the state tax commission that the hospital be placed on the tax exempt list. Action on the request was deferred until an adjourned meeting tonight.

In return, the council was informed, the institution is prepared to make substantial concessions to the city and county for hospital care of persons on relief. It was further indicated that if present plans materialize the ownership of the hospital will eventually revert to the city.

Mrs. James Caldis was granted a permit to make repairs at an estimated cost of $1,100 to the Caldis block which was damaged by fire Monday of last week. At the same time Fireman H. L. Schuster cited the advisability of installing fire escapes on that building as well as the adjoining Dudley building, the matter being disposed of by referring it to the fire department.

Mr. Schuster also pointed out the need of acquiring three smoke masks for the department for use in future emergencies, and the proposal was referred to the building committee with authority to buy the equipment.

A resolution was adopted requesting permission of the state highway department for the local Boy Scout organization to erect a building at the west end of the new bridge on the north side of the street. An amendment to an existing city ordinance was given its first reading, providing for only one meeting of the council each month instead of two. The meeting would be held the second Tuesday of the month.

Attorney H. O. Chommie appeared in behalf of two Twin City owners of four lots between the Auditorium and court house acquired by the city thru condemnation proceedings. He stated that the appeals from the awards now pending in district court could be disposed of if the council would volunteer a more favorable settlement than the $420 a lot agreed on by the appraisers. The council asked him to ascertain if his clients would accept $500 a lot, the same price as was paid a few years ago by the city for the lot south of the Auditorium.

F. J. Dudley appeared again to protest against motors in certain downtown establishments that are causing radio interference, and he offered to swear out warrants to proceed under the radio ordinance against the parties involved. The matter was referred to City Attorney Theodore Quale for action.

$80,000 Bond Issue is Three-Fourths Sold at End of the First Week

That residents of Thief River Falls and the surrounding community have ample funds available for safe investments is indicated by the fact that following the announcement last Thursday by the county board of its offer of $80,000 in funding bonds to retire outstanding warrants, subscriptions for $50,000 of the issue were filed up to Wednesday afternoon, many buyers being holders of the warrants to be retired. The issue is dated April 1 and draws interest at the rate of four and one-fourth per cent. The bonds remaining unsold mature from 1946 to 1954.

Stockholders to Vote Again on Question of Selling Building

A special meeting of the Thief River Falls Co-operative Creamery association will be held in the Sons of Norway hall Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock for the purpose of voting again on the question of whether or not to sell or trade the present creamery building to Land O'Lakes Creameries or any other party. Attendance at the meeting will be confined to stockholders, it was announced.

The meeting was called by officers of the association at the request of a group of stockholders opposing the sale. A hearing on their application for a court order restraining the deal had been tentatively scheduled for this week, but was deferred owing to the attorneys involved in the action being engaged in other cases.

The hearing, when held, will be conducted by Judge J. E. Montague of Crookston, an affidavit of prejudice having been filed against Judge M. A. Brattland.

Red Lake County Opens Drive to Force Paying of Delinquent Taxes

Red Lake county governmental units have taken steps to decrease tax delinquency by employing labor and doing business only with persons and firms who have paid their taxes.

The board of county commissioners, the Red Lake Falls city council, and the school board of this city have passed resolutions stating that they will not buy supplies from any firm, individual or corporation whose real estate or personal property taxes are delinquent, unless such firm arranges in advance that warrants for the merchandise be turned into the county as payment on the delinquent taxes.

They have also stipulated that they will not employ any person whose taxes are delinquent and "continued payment of taxes will be a condition precedent to the continued employment of any employe."

McALLISTER IS ACQUITTED IN DISTRICT COURT

Jury Finds Him Not Guilty of 3d Degree Assault on Third Ballot

EDWARD HOLMGREN FOUND NOT GUILTY

Condemnation Award Case up for Consideration Wednesday

A jury in district court in this city Tuesday evening at 9:45 returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Rush McAllister who had been tried on a second degree assault charge in connection with the death March 18, 1934, following an injury, of Mrs. McAllister.

The case went to the jury at 6:30, following which the members ate their evening meal and after beginning their deliberations, reached an agreement on the third ballot. The jury, of which Harry Hawkinson of Bray township was foreman, had been instructed by Judge M. A. Brattland, who presided, to disregard the second degree assault charge and to decide the case on the basis of a charge of third degree assault, which carries a penalty of $100 fine or 90 days in jail.

County Attorney H. O. Berve conducted the prosecution of the case, which got under way Saturday, while the defendant was represented by Frank W. Murphy of Wheaton, Oscar R. Knutson of Warren and R. M. Nelson of Breckenridge.

A coroner's jury which met following Mrs. McAllister's death had held that she had died from a blood clot resulting from an injury sustained in an undetermined manner. The grand jury meeting October 8 indicted Mr. McAllister on a criminal assault charge in connection with her death, he entering a plea of not guilty.

Most of last week in district court was devoted to the trial of Edward Holmgren on a second degree grand larceny charge in connection with the alleged theft of parts of an automobile. The case went to the jury Friday morning at 9:30 and at 7:30 in the evening a verdict of not guilty was returned.

Court Wednesday was occupied with the appeal of Gertrude Holstein in condemnation proceedings instituted by the state of Minnesota to acquire property at the west approach of the new bridge in the city.

The case of Gunnuf Gunstelorus vs. Sever L. Holm, involving a note, is scheduled for trial today.

Melby had a weight advantage of 14 pounds over the loser, and, with more training, gives much promise for future success as a grappler.

In a rough-and-tumble match Mark Olson threw Bob Christie of Angus in 17 minutes, this bout being the fastest one of the show and Olson's better condition giving him the advantage. Favored by greater experience Ted Bergren threw Dale Johnson in seven minutes.

Wildcat Freed and Battling Battleson wrestled to a draw in the ten-minute time limit, and Iverson threw Vergil Voutman in one minute.

HITCH-HIKING BANDIT THUMBS WAY TO JAIL

Mantorville.—One hitch-hiker will receive a longer "ride" than he expected and will probably return from the ride sadder but wiser, as a result of being picked up by the wrong man near Mantorville recently. While coming from Kasson to Mantorville, Deputy Sheriff Walter Andrist picked up a hitch-hiker along the road, only to find that his fellow passenger was the man who robbed the Andrist store at Berne on Feb. 10. Later, the hitch hiker, whose name is Zumbo, admitted his guilt, and stated that he had hid in the store until after it was closed, to rob the till at his leisure. In addition to the money stolen, some merchandise was also taken.

"Eat and Grow Thin" is False Doctrine, States Minnesota Medical Assn.

Over-weights who are looking for some formula that will permit them to "eat and grow thin" will derive small comfort from a recent study made of various treatments for obesity.

In this study, cited in today's bulletin from the Public Health Education Committee of the Minnesota State Medical Association, it was found that the most satisfactory and universally effective method of treatment still consists in cutting down on calories.

It was found, furthermore, that most of the obese who declared that they really ate very little, actually ate more than they thought and promptly began to lose weight on a carefully weighed and restricted diet.

"To reduce over-weight of the body", says the bulletin, "there must be a discrepancy between the amount of food taken in and the amount needed daily to keep the body going. The discrepancy must be great enough so that excess fat stored in the body will be consumed".

Increasing body exercise to increase fuel needs and so assist in burning up the excess helps, according to the bulletin. Also there are a few instances where drugs can be used to hasten the process. But use of drugs is dangerous and even fatal to some people. They cannot be used except with careful tests and under close supervision.

Sometimes over-weight is caused by abnormal functioning of the glands such as the pituitary or thyroid. Even in these cases the study showed that cutting down on the food intake was necessary to reduction in weight.

Reducing diets were planned in each case so that necessary vitamins and mineral salts were not sacrificed and proper nutrition was maintained.

DESERTED CHILDREN START HITCH-HIKE TO RELATIVES

Fergus Falls.—Two forlorn children, deserted by their parents in Duluth and on a long hitch-hike to Moorhead, where they hoped to find their mother or father among relatives, were visitors at Fergus Falls recently. Left in rented rooms in Duluth, the children continued going to school until provisions ran short. After several days they struck out, penniless, for Moorhead. A Good Samaritan picked them up near Brainerd, took them into Fergus Falls where he purchased food for them and bought tickets for the pair on to Moorhead. The girl gave her name as Adele O'Connor, age 16 years, and said her brother Alvin was 12 years old. The children were fairly well clad and each carried a package of clothing.

"FRIENDLY GHOST" WALKS COOK ROAD

Cook.—A ghost walks the streets of Cook, Minnesota. Several residents claim to have met this visitor from the shadows. The ghost is reported as being a little old woman dressed in black. A very friendly ghost she must be, for those who meet her say that she always extends her hand, but before they can take it, she disappears. As she only appears to women and children, the men of Cook have been mean enough to say that the disappearing act comes when she steps in one of the ditches that line the road along which the ghost always appears. They also hint that if one or two lights were placed along this dark street, the ghost would cease to walk.

DETROIT LAKES CHARGES LESS

A few weeks ago we published the light and power rates of the Otter Tail Power Company for cities of this size in an attempt to show that immediate rate reduction is necessary locally. The Otter Tail Power Company is one of the large private companies operating in the state and undoubtedly is making a satisfactory profit on the low rates it has put into effect in recent years. For further comparison we now offer the rate schedule of Detroit Lakes, a city of about the same size as Thief River Falls which, like Thief River Falls, operates its own light and power system. This is the rate adopted by Detroit Lakes in 1933.

Light Rate

	Per K.W.H.
First 500 K. W. H.	5c
All over 500 K. W. H.	4c

Minimum $1.00 per month

Power Rate

First 2,000 K. W. H.	3½c
All over 2,000 K. W. H.	2½c

Minimum—First 3 H. P. $1.00 per H. P. per month
Over 3 H. P. 50c per H. P. per month

Cooking Rate

On separate meter from the light 2½c per K. W. H. Minimum $1.00 per month.

Range and electric refrigerators may be placed on same meter with rate of 3½c per K. W. H. for first 50 K. W. H. and 2½c per K. W. H. for all over 50 K. W. H. Minimum $1.00 per month.

Rates Outside of City Limits

Light 10c
Power or Cooking on separate meter 4c
Minimum on Summer Cottages $10.00 per season
Minimum charge on all year customers $2.00 per month.
Connection charge, $25.00 plus cost of meter.

The Detroit Lakes schedule provides further proof that local rates are too high and should be revised immediately. Up until a few years ago our rates were pretty well in line with the rates charged in other cities of this size but in recent years there has been a general downward revision that has left us far behind the procession with what is probably one of the most unreasonable rate structures in the country; we cannot afford to let such a condition continue to exist.

There is another thing about the Detroit Lakes schedule that might have local application when rates are revised. A higher rate is maintained for service beyond the city limits. And there would be some justification for such a provision in the local rate structure when the charges are reduced. In view of the fact that it will be necessary for the city to make a further substantial investment in generating equipment when rates are reduced, which will mean a further debt burden on city property, there is some merit to the idea that those residents who live beyond the city limits should pay a somewhat higher rate for service which city residents make available for them.

Taxpayers of Pennington County will be saved in the neighborhood of seven thousand dollars a year when the refinancing program now under way is completed. Reduction by more than one per cent in the interest on a half a million dollar debt means a substantial saving. This saving alone, on a regular amortization plan, would retire the entire debt in something like thirty years.

In another week Spring will be here officially, and then at the outside we shouldn't have more than another two months of winter.

There are no "weasel words" in the Johnson-Long-Coughlin argument. With three so able phrase makers hatching out new word combinations to hurl at each other it is quite certain that the English language is going to take on a lot of color during the next few months.

Another check forger visited town last week and walked away with a comfortable sum of money and some merchandise to show for his few hours work. Reports indicate that he had visited other towns in this territory before coming here. A police system that would have broadcast the information as soon as the first bad check came in for clearance might have made possible his arrest.

Because state lawmakers have wisely prohibited boxing exhibitions in the rural sections of the state, it is necessary for local athletic show promoters to confine their entertainment to wrestling. Compared to boxing, wrestling is such a gentle art. In boxing the contestants occasionaly strike each other hard enough with the gloves to cause an eye to turn black. In wrestling, however, they merely gouge and bite and kick and throw each other out of the ring and things like that. Only in the big cities is boxing permitted, that is unless you pay a fancy fee to the state officials who regulate such things. Another thing that causes us to wonder occasionally if we wouldn't have better government if we selected our law makers by lot is the line in liquor advertising which assures us that "This advertisement is not intended to solicit the sale of intoxicating liquor in municipalities or counties wherein the sale thereof is prohibited". Surely not any one legislator alone was smart enough to figure out so effective a way of limiting the appeal of liquor advertising to wet communities. It must have taken several mighty minds, working together, to find such a simple solution to so difficult a problem.

Did you ever notice that in a crowd of boys the smallest boy generally makes the most noise.

THE FALLACY OF "FREE MONEY"

(Industrial News Review)

The American public has come to look on the Federal government as a financial Santa Claus, which goes on forever distributing the bounty of "free money" for one purpose or another. One of the proudest boasts of many elected officials is that they have been able to get this appropriation or that for their state.

Current plans call for an expenditure of some $5,000,000,000 for public works by the Federal government. Much of this great sum will be distributed to the states, to spend for roads, relief, dams, public buildings or some other public purpose. When the money has been spent, citizens will look at the imposing courthouse or superhighway or whatever it created and think happily that it cost them nothing—that magical forces at play in Washington produced the money out of the air and kindly passed it on.

Well, that $5,000,000,000 will be raised through the sale of Federal bonds. These bonds amount to a mortgage on every piece of property in the nation—every home, farm, factory or investment. If the $5,000,000,000 is divided by the number of Congressional districts in the country, the share for each district amounts to about $12,000,000. Every nickel of that money must be paid back by the American people through taxation—and they must pay, in addition, many hundreds of millions more in interest on the government bonds. Probably few Congressional districts would burden themselves with a $12,000,000 bond issue if it were proposed to vote such a debt against the district.

Unhappily, there is no such thing as a financial Santa Claus—the tax money put in our stockings is taken out of our pocketbooks—plus interest.

WHAT IS GOING TO HAPPEN?

(Eveleth Clarion)

Over in Beltrami county there is much ado about the big ditch bond debt still unpaid in that area; fear is expressed as to the disposal of the lands that will eventually be taken over by the state after being tax delinquent for some years. Here in St. Louis county there is another grave question: what is going to happen to mining property on which delinquent taxes are piling up? As pointed out by the Bemidji Sentinel, as soon as the air can be cleared, it might be well to start consideration of these important topics.

BUT IN SPITE OF THIS

(Waseca Herald)

Statistics show that the death rate in the city of Washington is by far the highest of any large American city. But this news will have no effect on the millions of Americans who are ready and willing to live in Washington at the expense of the government. That rule holds good all the way from the President in the White House to the janitors in public buildings. There is probably no other important position in our nation which demands the responsibility and worry that goes with the presidency, but in spite of this, there is hardly a prominent man in the nation that would not jump at the opportunity to take the office.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINNESOTA

In the State Senate

By Sen. E. L. Tungseth

It is the opinion of the average citizen that the legislative mill grinds slowly which is no doubt true, but which is also as fortunate as it is true. If the legislative body of the State of Minnesota should act too hastily, too much legislation would likely pass for which we would be sorry, and too much legislation would fall by the way side which should be provided for. Any important legislation requires thorough consideration in order that the merits of any proposed measure may at least to some degree exceed the demerits. There is, in fact, no legislation which has no demerits. There are no problems that can be solved, except that as they are solved new problems are created.

The investigations by the Senate Committee into activities of the various State departments including the relief department is attracting a great deal of attention. It is to be expected that such investigations are subjected to criticism, and perhaps some criticism may find justification. Such investigations cannot very well function to everybody's satisfaction. Neither has the committee sufficient time to enter as thoroughly as it really should into the various particulars which merit investigation. That there have been unnecessary overhead expenditures, and that at times material has been purchased at unnecessary high prices cannot be denied. We should remember, however, that the relief organization is a new organization and can hardly be expected to function fully satisfactory from the very dawn of its inception. I do not believe that it is the purpose of the Federal Government to waste any of the public funds for unnecessary overhead expenditures, or that there shall be any racketeering in any of its departments, and I do believe that when discrepancies are discovered that the proper corrections will be made. It is true that our investigations into Federal relief activities is to some extent none of our business as a State. On the other hand the State relief funds are put into the same hopper and distributed by the same organizations, and we are very directly concerned about the money which we appropriated and which, in fact, is appropriated out of the taxpayers pocket-book, and we should have a reasonable assurance that these funds are properly administered, in order that they may serve the purpose for which they are intended.

No person and no department who has been honest and above board in its activities has anything to fear from public investigations. On the other hand it is apparent that the departments which have nothing to fear welcome such investigations in order that they might be delivered from any reasonable suspicion. Any charge that these investigations are merely political are usually made by politicians who can see nothing but politics, no matter when or where.

On the twenty-eighth day of February the Senate and House passed the so-called Mortgage Moratorium bill. This bill merely continues former legislation of similar nature as the same circumstances which made such emergency legislation of this nature necessary still exists. Some attempt was made to tighten up this act in favor of the mortgagee, but when the bill came to the floor of the Senate an amendment which remedied this favoritism carried by a large majority. It is interesting to note how party lines vanish in the Senate on measures of this kind, and how the liberal minded Senators, regardless of party affiliation, rally to the support of such measures. The purpose of this act is to safeguard home owners during the period of this depression against foreclosures due to no fault of the debtor. This bill no doubt contains valuable potentialities in the way of relief.

On Wednesday, February 27, the Senate passed its first relief appropriation which consisted of $500,000 especially for drouth relief. The sorry situation has existed in these drouth stricken areas in our State that the Federal relief funds have not been anywhere near sufficient to provide for the necessary fodder and feed for livestock. The Senate has been very active in its effort to secure more liberal appropriations for this purpose from the Federal Government. We sent two men to Washington together with two representatives from the House for the purpose of loosening up Federal appropriations for these drouth stricken farmers. This committee of four men did effective work in Washington, but yet additional funds were slow in coming and livestock was suffering. It was because we felt that the farmers could wait no longer for these additional Federal funds and because livestock cannot be fed on promises that we passed this special bill of $500,000 which could be of temporary value. It has been said that a demonstration of starving cattle from these areas was necessary in order to provide such relief. No one familiar with the activities of the Senate would offer such a suggestion. The demonstration was rather here in time for celebration of victories won by the Senate for special relief. Now the Senate has passed the two year relief bill of [illegible] per year as demanded by the Federal administrator of relief Mr. Hopkins. This relief bill would have been passed much sooner if only the Federal administrator had given definite facts to them at an earlier date. Even since this bill was passed revisions of demands have been made, and I believe it is time for Federal officials to get both feet on the ground and know where they are at, and take a position and keep it. The 1935 Legislature does not hesitate to provide necessary relief funds, but we do want a definite understanding with the Federal government with whom we cooperate in the administration of such funds. We may also raise the question why more funds should be required from the State of Minnesota for relief purposes then from our neighboring States. We cannot be criticised for requesting and insisting as much as possible that Minnesota as a State be given the same treatment by Federal relief officials as any other neighboring State.

A few years from now it might become apparent that our country is going too far into Federal Government. It has become popular to talk in terms of Federal funds and to drift toward centralization of governmental activities in Washington. This has become so popular today that some people actually believe that Uncle Sam is a Santa Claus, and that Federal funds come from elsewhere. The fact is that Uncle Sam is only handing us back our own money and wants to dictate the terms upon which we may be privileged the use of such funds as he has collected from us. I am inclined to believe if the State took care of itself both as regarding relief and any other important features of government, our country would be better off, and there would be fewer opportunities for racketeering.

We had one interesting bill in the Senate today which aimed at a reduction of the number of Senators and Representatives, bringing such numbers back to conform very closely to the number previous to 1913. At that time rural sections of Minnesota complained about not having proportionate representation. I believe that careful consideration should be given to such matters now, less we go back and repeat former mistakes. The first State apportionment was made in 1857 and provided for a Senate of 37 members and a House of 80 members, this membership was increased slowly from time to time until in 1913 when it reached the present membership of 67 Senators and 131 representatives.

A project in which all of Minnesota is vitally interested is that of the conservation project, known as the Mud Lake project. The Federal government has set aside one-half million dollars to purchase the land to be condemned for this purpose, and is willing to spend a hundred thousand dollars for the construction of dams and dikes for the restoration of the lake and then establish it as a Federal Migratory Wild Fowl refuge. An enabling Act by the State legislation is necessary to put this plan into operation. This act in the form of a bill was introduced last week by Senators Rice, of Marshall, Solstad, of Polk and myself. We hope that the people up home will do their part in supporting us in the effort to put this bill across.

Today the Capitol has been host to a large number of farmers from different portions of the State, and we trust that this visit of farm folks here will be profitable for all concerned.

Judging by the way the weather man acted during the past week, no one would suspect that spring is due to arrive next Thursday.

We read that the fact that the world was created in six days proves definitely that it wasn't a government relief job.

With Huey Long, Father Coughlan, James Farley and Hugh Johnson hurling brickbats at each other, Mr. Average Citizen can be glad he is on the sidelines.

Oh well, Thief River Falls basketball fans will be spared the expense of a trip to the regional tournament in Crookston.

TANK OF GAS WASHED DOWN SEWER, FEAR FIRE

Rochester.—There was almost a "hot time" in Rochester recently when 1500 gallons of gasoline flooded a large area and needed only a spark from clanging metal or a lighted match to be touched off. The gasoline had been consigned to a local station but drained from a tank car when pressure on the safety valve in the sediment tank proved too great and the cap underneath was broken. Police and firemen, fearing a bad situation if the gas were ever ignited, kept spectators at a distance while the fire laddies diluted the fluid with water and then flushed it down the sewer. Automobiles were not allowed to pass within a block. The sewer system would have been destroyed by a blazing inferno if the gas became ignited after being washed down the pipes, but it was deemed better to take that chance than to leave the liquid exposed on the surface.

DR. HELEN HIELSCHER WARNS OF DISEASE LURKING IN RAW MILK

"The anxiety of members of the board of health," said Dr. Hielscher, "because of delay in the program for destruction of and voicing fear of disease arising from use of "raw" milk.

The anxiety of members of the board of health," said Dr. Hielscher because of delay in the program for destruction of diseased cattle, caused by differences of public opinion on the question of recompense to the owner for cattle destroyed.

"In the meantime," Dr. Hielscher said, "people are using milk as one of their chief items of diet and to forbid such practice would seriously upset our whole domestic economy.

Liable to Cause Disease

"It is a matter of general information that milk from diseased cows, especially those suffering from tuberculosis or undulent fever, is liable to cause disease. It is also known that, without scientific test, this disease cannot be detected in cows until it is well advanced.

"With this new scourge of undulent fever breaking out among herds of the state we may expect to see a change for the worse in our vital statistics unless the people are on the alert for their own preservation. Pasteurizing the milk, cooling it quickly, keeping it cool and clean will prevent trouble," Dr. Hielscher declared.

FATHER COUGHLIN AND GEN. JOHNSON IN VERBAL BATTLE

Detroit Priest Flays General in Radio Address Monday Night

Declaring the effect of the new deal are directly attributed to Bernard M. Baruch and his Wall Street associates, the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin lashed back at Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, whom he characterized as Baruch's puppet who "strutted upon the stage of this depression like a comic opera cream puff general," in a 45-minute speech over a national radio network, Monday night.

General Johnson Tuesday called for a national campaign to exterminate the political influence of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin and Sen. Huey P. Long—"this pair of political termites."

"Public political enemies No. 1 and 2," Johnson described them. He awaits a popular call to lead a national drive against their political and economic theories.

It was announced that Sen. Johnson will answer Father Coughlin in another radio speech, probably within a week.

Johnson launched his program in reply to Father Coughlin's radio speech Monday night in which the priest assailed the general. Father Coughlin said the choice was his plan or collapse. The general said Father Coughlin's way led to anarchy.

Northwest Experiment Station at Crookston Makes Big Seed Sales

Shipments of pure seed grain to Soviet Russia, Mexico and to twelve Western states, in addition to scores of orders from pure seed growers scattered throughout the Red River Valley, have practically exhausted the supply of pedigreed seed at the Northwest Station, according to E. R. Clark, pure seed specialist. This brings to a close the largest distribution of pure seed made by the station in recent years, over three thousand bushels having been shipped in small lots prior to March 1.

Thatcher and Mindum wheat, Anthony and Gopher oats, Velvet and Wisconsin 38 barley, Redwing Flax, and Crookston strain Northwestern Dent corn were the chief varieties included in the distribution. There has been an especially strong demand for Thatcher wheat, the rust resistant variety of hard red spring wheat first distributed last season.

The Mindum is a pure strain of amber durum carefully selected on the station farm to insure freedom of admixtures from spring wheat and barley. Velvet and Wisconsin 38 are smooth awned barley varieties, both being recommended for malting. Wisconsin 38 yields somewhat more than Velvet at the Northwest Station, matures a few days earlier, but has weaker straw.

NINTH DISTRICT FARMING CENSUS SOON COMPLETE

Large Increase in Number of Farms During Past Five Years

An increase of from 20 to 25 per cent in the number of farms in the Ninth Minnesota congressional district since 1930, is indicated in early returns from the farm census enumerators, census officials at the Ninth district headquarters in Crookston announced Tuesday.

A total of 31,633 farms were recorded in the district in 1930 when the last farm census was taken, and to date schedules have been returned for 36,824 farms in this district in the 1935 enumeration.

Census supervisors believe this district will show the largest increase in the number of farms of any district in the nation.

Two reasons are cited for the large increase in the number of farms, the shifting of farmers from the North and South Dakota drouth areas to the more favored Red River Valley section, and the return to farms of many young people, who, before the depression, had been seeking employment in cities. The latter cause, census supervisors say, has resulted in the sub-dividing of many large farms, fathers sharing their land with sons in many instances.

Red Lake county enumerators have completed their schedules and the first complete county figures will be announced within a few days, or as soon as workers in the census office here complete a check of the schedules. Red Lake is the first county to complete its enumeration, although many other counties are now nearly complete.

Game Feeding Major Activity of Wardens

A major activity of state game wardens during February, according to a report by Erling Swenson, game and fish director, was the feeding of upland game birds and deer. Through these efforts, "thousands of game birds and animals were saved," he said.

"We have had wonderful cooperation from sportsmen's organizations and interested individuals throughout the state in our effort to provide food and cover for our wild life", Director Swenson stated.

A total of 129 arrests were made by wardens during the month with $1,475 assessed as fines because of game and fish law infractions.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL

Coffman Says Appropriations Are Lower Than 14 Years Ago

Members of the legislature saw students at play in the new athletic building, saw them at home, in the nurses dormitory and saw them at work in the clinic of the school of dentistry when they made their biennial visit to the campus of the University of Minnesota Tuesday. In the evening the visitors were guests of the University in the Minnesota Union, at which time some of the institution's problems were explained to them by Dr. L. D. Coffman and members of his staff.

In presenting its case to the legislature this year the university has stressed chiefly the fact that appropriations from the state are lower than those made in 1921, fourteen years ago, while student attendance is 58.3 per cent greater than it was at that time. These are the actual figures. Meanwhile building appropriations from the state have also been discontinued.

The Legislators took busses at the state capitol and went first to University Farm, home of the department of agriculture, then proceeded to the main campus in Minneapolis. A program of entertainment by students was furnished under the direction of Professor Carlyle Scott of the department of music and E. B. Pierce, alumni secretary.

Last week university hearings at the capitol were completed when the case was stated before the appropriations committee of the house. Besides its regular work the institution is seeking support for two special projects that are new. It is asking some money to continue the institute of child welfare, which hitherto has been financed by gifts, and funds to create a division to train social workers. It is pointed out that present relief conditions are finding the state and the nation with far fewer trained social workers than the existing conditions require.

Re-registering Trucks Under Code Starts Soon

More than 6000 operators of 8200 trucks in Minnesota are preparing to re-register their vehicles under the trucking code in the new Code year, which has just begun.

The second period officially dawned February 11, but the state code authority will not begin the real drive on registrations until March 18. By that date, registration forms and other materials will be in the hands of every known for-hire operator in Minnesota.

For the entire country, approximately 100,000 operators of about 300,000 vehicles pooled their efforts under the code during the initial period.

CUSTOM HATCHING AT LAND O'LAKES STARTS MARCH 20

Local Plant Now Has Total Capacity to Handle 104,000 Eggs

The hatchery department operated in connection with the Land O'Lakes poultry plant in this city will begin custom hatching next Wednesday, Carl Binks, manager, announced. Starting last year with one hatching unit of 52,000 egg capacity, business has grown to the point where it was recently necessary to add a second unit, giving a total capacity of 104,000 eggs. The hatching units are of the latest all-electric type. Instruments of the most precise type automatically regulate temperature and humidity correctly at all times. The eggs are turned and handled throughout the entire incubation period; in fact, in a manner closely resembling that of the hen. The latest attachments for fumigating and purification of air to make possible the utmost degree of sanitation are used.

In selecting eggs for the units, each and every flock that furnishes eggs to produce Land O' Lakes quality chicks is carefully culled for egg production and bloodtested for B. W. D. (white diarrhea) under the department supervision.

Information on poultry management, feeding, housing, culling, and sanitation programs are available through the practical poultry service men in charge of the department.

STATE AUTOISTS CONSUME AVERAGE OF 491 GALS. GAS

Consumption Heaviest Where Gas Tax Is Highest, Figures Show

The theory that high gas taxes discourage use of gasoline is not borne out by official figures according to the Portland Cement association. In 17 states which had a tax of 5, 6, or 7 cents, the average consumption per vehicle in 1933 was 611 gallons, while in the 31 states which had 2, 3, or 4 cent tax the average used was 597 gallons. The 6 and 7 cent states averaged higher than the 2 and 3 cent states.

One might infer that high gas taxes, by building more good roads, promote travel and thereby sell more gasoline. It is true that other factors enter in. Southern states generally use more gas per car than northern states, and industrial states with large urban population use more than agricultural states, regardless of tax. But the figures show that high gas taxes do not prevent or discourage use of motor vehicles for travel and transport.

Minnesota and Iowa with a 3 cent tax used 491 and 496 gallons per vehicle, respectively, while Wisconsin with a 4 cent tax used 566 gallons. North Dakota, 3 cent tax, used 417 gallons; South Dakota, 4 cent tax, 465 gallons; Montana, 5 cent tax, 600 gallons. Florida, with a 7 cent tax, used 729 gallons per car, more than any other state.

The figures are obtained by using the "Net gallons of gasoline taxed and used by motor vehicles", as tabulated by states in "American Highways", official publication of the American Association of State Highway Officials, and dividing by the number of cars and trucks registered in each state, omitting trailers.

LEGISLATIVE LETTER

By R. W. Hitchcock

Public opinion [illegible] precipitates itself and hardens into concrete sentiment very slowly. After mulling over Minnesota's confusing tax problems for half of the allotted period of its existence, the Legislature of 1935, begins to sense among its membership some definite crystallization of sentiment. There will be no sweeping tax reform, but a new set-up may result which will, in the end—some years hence,—bring about sweeping tax reform.

Tax limitation, if it comes, at this session, will be moderate, not extreme. A dollar turnover tax, if enacted, will not ambitiously attempt to displace all other taxes, but will be content to make a beginning at replacement. All property, real and personal, will not be relieved of taxation at one stroke; perhaps as a start, the tax on property for purely state purposes may be lifted.

The precipitation of sentiment in the Legislature is that trial balloons should be sent up; that new ventures should be cautiously experimental; that old taxes should not be too completely abandoned or new taxes too implicitly trusted in; that a two year period of testing new tax potions may teach us better how to mix our tax drinks.

There will be opposition all along the line, but an indicated drift of sentiment is for a moderate tax limitation, abolition of the tax on property for purely state purposes, a dollar turnover tax to yield together with increased income and utility tax rate enough to replace the $16,000,000 state property tax.

Two years of experience with such a minimum program of tax reform would give definite information upon many points that are now hotly disputed.

If the Legislature accomplishes something of this kind it will be doing as much for tax reform as can reasonably be expected of it at this time; if it does not do something of this sort it will have failed the people in their hour of need.

When is a junket?

Apparently the proper definition of a junket is a trip taken at public expense by the other fellow.

Some Farmer-Labor politicians, as well as the Minnesota (Farmer-Labor) Leader are still yammering about the Legislative committee of two Senators and two Representatives which was sent to Washington to secure drouth relief. Although the committee secured results which will give the farmers of Western Minnesota that measure of federal relief which they have been so justly demanding, and heretofore demanding in vain, nevertheless the mission is denounced as a junket.

None of these same Farmer-Labor politicians found any fault with Governor Olson when he asked from the Legislature $25,000 [illegible] cover expenses,—largely incurred by reason of numerous trips to that same Washington in order to secure federal funds for relief. The Minnesota Leader never peeped a single peep about junkets then.

Junkets are fully justified if you take them yourself, but when the other fellow takes them they are wickedly wasteful.

Is the farmers trek on the state capitol petering out?

In 1931 it began. The Farm Holiday movement was then just working into a white heat. Some of the most excited of its leaders and followers moved on the capitol. Communists of the cities seized upon the opportunity. They not only joined the farmers but took them over and leading the van burst open the doors of the House and took forcible possession of the chamber. For three hours or more they ranted and raved until they were pretty well talked out. The House called it a day and adjourned.

In 1933 the farm leaders resolved to be more orderly. They marched up to the capitol steps armed with a formal invitation, and had a good deal to say about making a peaceful presentation of their demands. Some of the speakers now and then got emphatic, and along toward the end of the afternoon a couple of outbreaks from marchers parked on the floor of the chamber enlivened the proceedings. A great crowd gathered on the capitol steps and Governor Olson addressed them in his best radical manner.

This year the marchers were fewer in number. The House chamber was comfortably filled. Milo Reno, national president of the Farm Holiday Association made a mild talk. John Bosch, state Farm Holiday president, made a mild talk. There was some craning of necks to see the man who had done the Jecyl and Hyde act with mortgage foreclosures. Richard Bosch made a mild talk. A labor leader from Austin put in a little pep into the occasion, but by that time Governor Olson was shooting special privilege alive to the great delight of a crowd in the rotunda, and the farm hearing in the House chamber began to lose its hearers. Soon the chamber was half empty, and presently the meeting came to a tame and innocuous close.

The right of petition had been upheld but not with the tumult of 1931 or the shouting of 1933. Maybe times are really getting better.

In the rotunda of the capitol the Governor harangued the crowd. "They call it Socialism, they call it Communism, but I call it Americanism," he shouted. You said it, Governor. Your Americanism, is Socialism, is Communism.

Speaking to the people usually the Governor suavely denies that his social and political philosophy is Communism, but in an unguarded moment, surrounded by radical friends, he not only confesses it but boasts of it.

The Minnesota (Farmer-Labor) Leader is nibbling again—as usual. In an editorial in its issue of Mar. 2nd it says that the iron ore industry some time ago in an advertisement admitted that it is "clearing 10 per cent on millions". The Leader, some weeks ago attempted a broadcast based on this statement, but was refused the services of the station until it had eliminated this false statement. Yet now the Leader, pursuing its policy of deception, deliberately repeats what it knows to be untrue. The advertisement in question plainly states that iron ore operators get 10 per cent of the sale price of the ore out of which they must pay their expenses of operation and many other expenses.

Mistakes may occur but the Leader has been repeatedly deliberate in this misrepresentation.

The Legislative investigation has disclosed the fact that the Department of Education through its emergency educational activities, financed by federal funds, distributed a number of Socialistic pamphlets including one "For the Revolution", to transient camps. Nothing very harmful about this, the Department protests, but it is peculiar that so much of the Department's activities smacks of this character.

Consistency is a jewel, a rare jewel. Solons are supposed to have it, but they are often taunted with not having it. The fact is that it is more difficult to be consistent than to walk a tight rope.

A well known radical was well warmed up in debate the other day on Wabasha Hill. "They say that business pays the tax", he cried. "They accuse us of trying to soak the rich. What folly! Why even the simplest intelligence ought to know that the poor man, the ultimate consumer pays the tax. Nothing in all the world is more certain than this."

For about five minutes the orator rang the changes on this idea. Suddenly he switched to a denunciation of the sales tax.

"With the iniquitous sales tax you load the tax burden on to the back of the poor man," he thundered. "It's unfair, it exacts taxes from those least able to pay. Nothing could be more rotten."

Almost in the same breath he had argued that the poor man now pays the tax and that he does not now pay the tax.

3 GAMES PLAYED IN INTERCLASS

Three Junior Teams Are Victorious This Week

Because of the district tournament, interclass basket ball was limited to three games.

In the first game of the week, the Junior D. overpowered the Soph C 31-9. Houfek was high for Juniors while Shumway completed the task for Sophs. In this game the least fouling was done with the Sophs, only committing 4 and the Juniors 6.

The second game was another victory for the Juniors. This time their C played Frosh B. When the final whistle sounded, the score was 37-24. Lorentson and Larson tied for high scores for the Juniors but for the Frosh only one was high, Dicken. This time 16 fouls were committed, each team with eight.

Again the Juniors were victorious in their game. The Junior B and Soph B fought it out to a 22-19 score with Bredeson high man for the Juniors and Erickson and Kelly for Sophs. For a second time 16 fouls were committed with each team claiming half.

It was, indeed, a week for the Juniors, having won all the games they played.

PROGRESS POKES ITS NOSE AROUND

Let's spend this week touring the European countries. Our liner leaves New York in a flurry of excitement. New York has given its most enthusiastic send-off to Mira Flora Schroeder, world-renowned singer from Berlin, Germany. We are extended a special invitation to be present at Miss Schroeder's opening feature at a Berlin opera house.

Our stewardess on the ocean liner puzzles us greatly. She is an exact replica of Derva Strang but does not seem to remember us. However, after we have been at sea for a few days, she breaks down and confesses that she is just as eager to gossip about old classmates as we are.

Our ship first docks at Valentia, Irish Free State. Here Miss Jean Gustafson is a private secretary to President De Valera of the Irish Free State.

When the ship comes to Liverpool, England, the entire party leaves the ship to attend a lecture. Miss Helen Rice, around-the-world-traveler, is to talk on her travels in the Far East.

We then go on to the Netherlands. In Amsterdam, Miss Marjorie Thronson, until recently of Thief River Falls, is a commercial teacher in the public schools.

And so across the country to Paris. While eating one evening in a Paris cafe, we are accosted by Miss Celeste Crown. She explains that she obtained a position as pianist in a group of leading cafes. When Bing Crosby was touring Europe, Miss Crown won praise as his accompanist.

Here our party separates. The more serious-minded intend to leave for Russia. News has reached us that Martin Jorde is to lecture on communism problems in Moscow. After this he will teach his viewpoints in the University at Petrograd.

The other group travels to Spain. In Madrid, Earl Severson is a famous toreador. At the present time, he is in a hospital recovering from wounds inflicted in his last fight. Jesse DuChamp owns a bowling alley in the same city. Irregardless of his size he has finally succeeded in making himself a great bowler.

We now make full haste for we must reach Naples, Italy in a few days. Europe's leading traveling band, conducted by Stanley Mortenson, is scheduled to appear at a concert before Mussolini. In Florence, Italy, Jack Booren, a gigolo, is said to be escorting a famous Countess to all well-known places. Mr. Booren has announced that he and the Countess will marry, as soon as the Countess inherits her fortune.

After this we travel leisurely along until we come to Bombay, India. We then go inside of a large lumber company to greet an old classmate, Philip Prichard.

Our journey ends at Peking, China, where Carl Lee is a basket ball coach. His team has remained undefeated for two seasons. It seems almost like old times back in T. R. F.

—Alice Ann Severson.

E. G. F. WINS DISTRICT 31 TITLE, FRIDAY

Crookston Is Runner up: Prowlers Place Third: Plummer, Fourth

The Little Green Wave of East Grand Forks emerged the victors of the district tournament last Friday by virtue of their 16-13 victory over the Crookston Pirates. The game was fast and closely contested at all times but the East Siders playing marvelous defensive ball and keeping cool under fire led all the way. The two Raymond brothers never gave the Crookston sharpshooters, Hovde and Jenkins, a chance to get a set shot. This broke up the Pirates game a lot. They have been depending a lot on their two guards being able to sink shots from any part of the floor. Because of the close guarding no player on either team made over four points. For the Green Wave the Raymond brothers and Kimblin stood out and Panzer was Crookston's biggest threat.

The Prowlers won third place by defeating Plummer 40-33. The locals led at the end of the first quarter 13 to 9 and at the half 26 to 18.

In the semi-finals both games were fast and thrilling. The Prowlers lost a hard-fought game to the Crookston Pirates 28 to 24. The Pirates led all the way and the Prowlers could not seem to get enough drive to overcome the four point lead. The Prowlers were not guarding as close as was necessary and only one of them, Kielty, after being held scoreless by Hovde in the first half, came back after the intermission and scored 14 points. At the end of the first period, Crookston led 6 to 1, at the half, 12 to 6, at the third quarter, 26 to 17, and the game ended in the Pirate's favor 28 to 24. In the last period the Prowlers came back strong and held the Pirates down to two points and got seven themselves.

In the other semi-final game, East Grand Forks beat Plummer, 46-28. Plummer led all through the first half which ended in their favor 17 to 14, but the Wave came back strong and scored 21 points in the third quarter to Plummer's three. Karlstad and Hanson were Plummer's outstanding men while George Raymond led the East Siders.

In the preliminary games, East Grand Forks defeated Fisher, Crookston after being held to an 8 to 5 score in the first quarter romped over Oslo 67 to 19, and the Prowlers set some kind of a scoring record for this district with an 84-3 victory over Climax. In this game Kielty scored 26 points and Lee scored 22. Both of Climax's points came on free throws, one by Hanson and one by Vraa. In the other preliminary game Plummer defeated Warren in a hard-fought battle 30 to 19. This is the first time in several years that a class B team has gone as far as Plummer went this year.

Girls' Basketball Teams to Play for Championship

Tonight after school all the "after school" girls basket ball teams are going to challenge each other. Next Tuesday they will write the test on basket ball rules and choose their teams. The Tuesday and Thursday following the girls will play the championship games of the season.

For school work next week, the girls are going to take the test on basket ball technique over again, so that they can check up on their improvements during the season. This will end the basket ball season for both recreational playing and playing during the gym period. The girls have enjoyed playing basket ball a great deal this year and are working hard for their "L's" and numerals.

JOSIE'S NOTES

DROPPED into the r. play practice to-ther nite, and I do most solemnly affirm, that the play even in this early stage, looks absolutely hunky-dory. Talk about, "Giving 'Em Love and Holding Your Man," well there's a good example of it in "Growing Pains", (that's the name of the play). Vivian Ward flashes two mean blinkers at her boy friends (in the play) thereby holding her man. Audrey Anderson does justice to her part as a shy, backward sort of gal. There's a limit to everything including shyness and so Audrey doesn't capture the men as well as V. W. (this is in the play, remember.) And I did stifle a chuckle as I watched that dear, motherly soul (Annette Simonson) try to keep a "stiff upper lip."

It is said that a dumb wagon maker, who had been dumb for years, picked up a hub and spoke; a blind carpenter reached for his plane and saw; a deaf sheep rancher went out with his dog and herd, and a noseless fisherman caught a netful of herring and smelt (coincidence.)

THE QUAINT method of speaking, in assembly, was hailed with gusto by all and one. (Perhaps yes and more perhaps no.) But, when in a pensive mood, we wonder: Did the machinery back of this movement do it for our own good? Some will of course say yes and others no, but we'll have to admit that it does break up a goodly bit of gossiping, which is all that went on when the old method of speaking was prevalent. (We'll get used to it and like it.)

AN Ode to "Woman"

Woman—She's an angel in truth,
a demon in fiction—
A woman's the greatest of all contradiction;
She's afraid of cockroaches, she'll scream at a mouse,
But she'll tackle a husband as big as a house,
She'll take him for better, she'll take him for worse;
She'll split his head open and then be his nurse;
And when he is well and can get out of bed,
She'll pick up a teapot and throw at his head.
She's faithful, deceitful, keen sighted and blind;
She's crafty, she's simple, she's cruel and kind.
She'll lift a man up, she'll cast a man down,
She'll make him her hero, ruler, clown.
You fancy she's this but you find that she's that,
For she'll play like a kitten and fight like a cat.
In the morning she will, in the evening she won't,
And you're always expecting she will but she won't.

PEP FEST HELD WED. AFTERNOON IN ASSEMBLY

"Famous People" Number, With School Song, Yells Pep Talk Make up Program

The final pep fest before the district tournament was held Wednesday afternoon at 3:30. Victor Jung acted as master of ceremonies.

Mr. Chalmers directed the school song with Helen Granum at the piano, after which Kathleen Monsebroten and Phyllis Norbeck led the students in several yells.

Tom Fuller, one of the outstanding basket ball players of the '34 team, spoke a word of encouragement to "our boys", wishing them luck in behalf of last year's team.

Famous people impersonated by local Lincoln High students were: ZaZu Pitts, attending one of the tournament games—Ruth Knauf.

George Burns and Gracie Allen—Vernon Williams and Ardith Jansen.

Joseph "Peter Piper" Penner—Bud Kelly.

Gertie Glump of Klutenmyer's Kindergarden —Lorraine Amundson.

Eddie Cantor—Jesse DuChamp.

Mrs. Vanderbilt—Brunell Erickson.

Shirley Temple—Florence Hanson.

Clark Gable—Lloyd Bradley.

Wayne Kielty was called on for a speech, and upon reaching the platform he called for his "stooge" (Hienne Wang). After drinking of the water brought by the faithful "stooge", Wayne urged us to attend all the games of the district tournament, assuring us they were worth attending. Following the impersonations, we saw our future coach of Lincoln High—little Donald Dooley.

The pep fest continued with yells led by Martha Storholm and then a number sung by the chorus.

Victor Jung presented the basket ball players to us, one by one—Lawrence Nicholson, Gilbert Mickleson, Carl Lee, Art Nelson, Don Hermanson, James Van Pelt and Wayne Kielty (followed by his "stooge"). These were asked their opinions about winning the games and all thought they were capable of putting up a good fight and perhaps winning. Hienne Wang also expressed himself as thinking the same way as Wayne.

After yells led by Kathleen Monsbroten and Martha Storholm, school was dismissed.

Lois Morell.

VOX MAGISTRI

If I were to ask an ordinary group of High School students the question "Why are you going to high school?" I'd receive various answers. Some would glibly say "To get an education," some come because their friends are here, and some because they really want to go.

Many years ago a graduate of the eighth grade was sufficiently educated, but today our high schools are but intermediate steps in the field of education. If you expect any sort of a job, competing as you must with a large field, you must be a high school graduate.

The state law requires that you be in school until you reach the age of sixteen; as long as you are here what are you getting out of your four years?

The instructors in a high school are specially trained in the subject or subjects they teach, through their classes you are given a glimpse of the fields open to you in the respective lines. Should you be interested you may study farther in college or Universities. With the help of instructors it may be possible for you to choose your future life work, with enjoyment the prime factor and renumeration secondary. Remember there's always room at the top no matter how crowded the field of your choice may be.

Here you are privileged to mix with many types of girls and boys. The friendships made and they should be many, may last a life time. There is nothing so valuable as a true friend. In your classes you hear others opinions, and the discussions should open up new lines of thought for you. Make it your business to know the subject matter and then with an understanding of the subject matter, take part in the discussions.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, do your school work in the time designated and then find time for at least one outside activity. Don't wait for people to ask you, volunteer your services and do any little tasks assigned as well, you'll be asked again.

Your band experience may be the means you've been seeking to help put you through higher institutions of learning, and even if you never make the varsity the contact with others in sports of all kinds will make you a better sport and the world has much need of good sports.

Get your lessons, find time for play and do them both the best you can and no one can ever criticise you for not getting the most out of your four years in high school.

Miss Fletcher.

5TH ASSEMBLY PROGRAM HELD MONDAY NIGHT

E. Stanley Brooks Impersonates Dicken' Characters—Scrooge, Heep, Et. Al

On Monday evening the 5th assembly program was held in the Auditorium. In spite of certain distributing elements in the audience, the performer, E. Stanley Brooks, gave an excellent program, consisting of imitations of Dickens' characters.

After a brief introduction he gave a short lecture on the life of Dickens, pointing out that Dickens was primarily a social reformer, and all his books were written with this purpose in mind.

The first of four imitations was that of a schoolmaster from the book "Nicholas Nickleby". It was by far the most humorous selection presented and was a reflection on every school teacher who ever presided over a pack of young savages.

The next character presented was "Sam Weather" from the "Pickwick Papers". This was another humorous selection given in the Cockney accent which was a novelty to the audience.

The next character study was of "Uriah Heep" from the novel "David Copperfield", an able presentation of dual personality, characterized by the play of emotions from humble respect, at one moment, to unreasoning hatred, the next.

The last imitation was of "Scrooge", the old miser from "A Christmas Carol",—in which (through the timely intervention of certain benevolent ghosts!) the old miser is changed into a lavish philanthropist.

The acting may have been a little exaggerated, but as a whole, the program was a success, and will probably create an interest in Dickens' works among the students.

E. G. F. PLAYS BEMIDJI IN REGIONAL TILT

District Thirty-one Champs Oppose LumberJacks Tonight at Crookston

This week Crookston is the host to the Tournament that decides which team shall represent Region 8 in the State meet next week. District 31 is represented by East Grand Forks. Will they fare as well in these contests as in last week's meet?

This evening East Grand Forks will vie with the Bemidji quintet, the 29th District winner over Cass Lake, regional champs last year. East Grand Forks has beaten Bemidji on its own floor and Bemidji has won a decision over the Little Green Wave on its own floor. But with the contest held on a neutral floor, East Grand Forks has a better than ever chance to win this first round game and enter the finals.

Waubun plays the winner of District 32, Kennedy, and will have little difficulty handing them a defeat. Waubon has a lanky team that promises to "do things" if they go to the State Tournament.

The teams will be struggling desperately tonight to get a second chance tomorrow evening in the classic. All four teams are "in the pink" of condition and none will give in or concede an inch.

This cage meet has four of the best teams in this section of the state, but, of the group, Waubon has the best chance to be Region 8's member of the State Tournament.

East Grand Forks and Waubon will probably meet in the climax of the tournament. The outcome of the battle is still anybody's guess, but Waubon has the edge. If you enjoy good basket ball, don't miss any of these exhibitions.

ETIQUETTE CORNER

Ever since we were "knee high to a grasshopper" we have been taught the correct things to do. Many times the phrase "Johnnie, use your knife and fork" or "take your cap off when you come in" has passed your mother's lips. Have you outgrown the stage where you have to be reminded? Be honest with yourself, have you? Of course we all know the correct thing for a gentleman to do is to remove his hat when entering a building and we all know the correct use of the knife and fork.

In my estimation, there is nothing that looks nicer than to see a boy aiding his mother in any way. Here is a way to show all that muscular strength and excess energy the boys seem to claim. Just a few of the many things you boys can do:

1 Put on and take off her overshoes. 2. Help her into a car. 3. Take her arm in crossing the street. 4. In meeting her on the street greet her by raising your hat as you would to any other lady.

Just because you're a boy doesn't mean you can't help her around the house. Your Mom gets tired and likes to rest as well as you, so why not suggest helping with supper dishes, and other similar tasks. All these things will be appreciated I know, and will lead to better understanding between mother and son.

Capital of Tibet

Extremely remote, so far as Europeans are concerned, is Lhasa, capital of Tibet. In the year 1904 an armed force from India reached Lhasa for the purpose of arranging a commercial treaty.

EDITORIAL

Three-fourths of the basket ball wise men predicted that Thief River Falls, Crookston, and East Grand Forks would finish first, second, and third, respectively, in the District 31 basket ball tournament. Their predictions were based on the season's records of the teams and they should have been sound. But they weren't. Anything can happen in a basket ball tournament, and everything happened in the one staged last week. East Grand Forks was presented with the championship trophy, Crookston with the award that goes to the runner-up, and Thief River Falls with the consolation trophy.

It was a dismal, doleful, lodorous group of Prowler basket ball fans that made their exit from the auditorium last Thursday evening. An inspired, jocund Crookston quint had beaten the team that they had hoped to see participate in the state tournament. The Prowlers had been the pre-game favorites, but Fate had seen fit to serve them a pungent defeat.

But Fate reserved his greatest piece of irony for the final night of the tourney. Crookston, after having overcome the highly rated Thief River basketeers, and having beaten East Side by twenty-one points only two weeks ago, expected a victory. The final gun barked a 16-13 victory for the Little Green Wave, and the Pirate ship had been completely inundated.

The Progress editor has searched the works of Emily Post and the columns of the Progress authority on etiquette, but he has not found anything that would excuse the action of the Crookson band in marching down the center of the auditorium floor and playing as loudly as their lungs would permit while the Thief River band was playing a selection. We appreciated the music of the Pirate band, but their director wasn't very discreet in ordering them to play when they shouldn't have been playing.

Compliments are well deserved by these persons: the Crookston team and coach for their performance Thursday night; the East Side team and coach for capturing the coveted title of District 31 champions; the Crookston cheering section for the splendid support of their team; and Mr. Dooley, because we think that he is a good coach, regardless of the fact that the Prowlers didn't clinch the title. The splendid record of his team throughout the season positively proves this. The defeat of the Prowlers Thursday was something that could not be prevented by Mr. Dooley or any other coach, and so, we salute and congratulate the Prowler mentor.

Can Bud Satsuma Orange

The Satsuma orange can be budded on other oranges, lemons and grapefruit. In ordinary practice, however, the hardy orange, citrus trifoliata, is the plant which is used. This is not an edible orange, but it is ideal for the purpose because of its resistance to frost.

Pearls

Pearls of culture generally possess a finer structure than those of accidental growth. This is due to the smaller amount of organic matter which is consumed and secreted by the oysters, which live in well cleaned cages. "Natural" pearls contain on an average 2 per cent of water, but those of "culture" contain less than this, an important factor after the pearl has dried out.

Wolves...Bears...Indians

NOT so very long ago, this Northwest section of which we are now so proud, had little in it except wolves, bears and Indians. What has made it into the fine, rich country that it now is?

The answer is PEOPLE—men, women, boys and girls at work.

Every country on earth today is asking its people to buy and sell at home, in the nearby markets and stores. Why? Because that means more people, more money at home, more employment. Less taxes.

The Northern Packing Company at Grand Forks employs 125 people. A greater marketing of livestock here at home means greater business activity in northwestern Minnesota and North Dakota. More customers for our stores—more buyers for farm products—more tourists.

Help us develop your and our section by marketing your hogs and cattle with us.

A Kitchen-Midden

A kitchen-midden is a prehistoric mound composed of sea shells, bones, kitchen refuse, rude stone implements and other relics of early man. They were first found on the coast of Denmark, but later in the British Isles, North America and elsewhere.

W. C. T. U. News Notes

Upside down is right side up for a trapeze performer hanging by his toes at the top of a circus tent, for a fly which wants to rest on the ceiling, and for a man hunting his collar button under the dresser.

Most important of all, however, upside down is right side up for the whisky glass, a beer stein, a wine goblet.

Upside down is right side up for the liquor glass in the hands of automobile drivers. It is general knowledge that auto accidents have increased alarmingly by leaps and bounds. All sorts of reasons are given—faster cars, roads too narrow, lack of traffic lights, lax enforcement of traffic laws. Newspapers and public officials do not suggest the one big reason for unprecedented traffic deaths—automobile drivers who are liquor drinkers!

We do not need to argue against the drunken driver. Everyone, even the liquor manufacturer and seller, admits drunkenness to be a menace. But America has not learned the terrific danger of the mild drinker. A driver, normal and sober, requires one-fifth of a second to put on the brakes when he sees a red light or finds himself in danger. This means that, when driving thirty-five miles an hour, a sober driver covers ten feet before braking. After one highball, or an ordinary pint bottle of beer, a man's actions slow down, so that upon seeing a stop light or unexpected danger he requires two or three times longer to put on the brake. That means that he travels twenty or thirty feet before putting on the brake. In crowded traffic that extra twenty or thirty feet covered before a car is stopped causes havoc and results in the slaughter of innocent victims.

U. S. EXPERTS ASK $22,000,000 STATE HIGHWAY BUDGET

Amount Held Necessary to Provide Reasonably Adequate Service

If Minnesota is to provide "reasonably adequate" highway service for the public on the expanded state system, an annual expenditure of approximately $22,000,000 should be made on trunk highways.

This is the conclusion of experts of the United States Bureau of Public Roads who spent the past year in making an exhaustive study of Minnesota's highway problems at the request of the Citizens' Interim Highway committee authorized by the 1933 Legislature.

A summary of the study has been presented to the Interim committee and N. W. Elsberg, highway commissioner, by Dr. Henry Trumbower and H. R. Briggs, who supervised the work. Dr. Trumbower is economist for the Bureau of Public Roads and head of the economics department of the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Briggs is statistician for the Bureau of Public Roads at Washington.

The $22,000,000 annual expenditure which is recommended by Dr. Trumbower and Mr. Briggs for the present 11,300 mile trunk system is about the amount which was spent yearly on the old 6,700 mile system. If expenditures on the enlarged system were made on the same scale as on the old system, the yearly amount would be more than $[illegible],000,000, their report states.

On the basis of state revenues existing in 1933 and 1934, without federal aid, the highway department would have only slightly more than $10,000,000 a year income for the trunk system, Commissioner Elsberg estimates. If the Legislature provides sufficient additional revenues to match federal aid, this amount will be brought up to about $20,000,000 a year, including the old allowance of $7,400,000.

Regarding the general costs of the Minnesota highway system, the report says: "Judged by similar states where studies have been made, the Minnesota highway expenditures in general are not abnormal, and those made by the local units of government—especially the towns—seem low. The imposts against motor vehicles in Minnesota are less than those in adjoining states and in the country as a whole."

As to the [illegible] of trunk highway costs between the large cities and the rural districts, the report states that in 1932 rural residents paid [illegible] per cent of the motor vehicle license fees and gas tax, while they accounted for 60 per cent of the traffic on the trunk system. The report concludes that the city areas contribute slightly less to trunk highway revenues than their proportion of travel would call for.

Former Oklee Farmer Takes Life at Fisher Following Argument

John L. Milligan, 52, of Fisher committed suicide Saturday, Mar. 2 at the home of Mrs. Rosanna Cloutier, in Fisher, by shooting himself through the head with a small calibre rifle, Dr. H. E. Nelson, Polk county coroner, said following an examination.

Milligan came to Fisher last Christmas after having been in Canada for some time.

He is reported to have lived three years on a farm near Oklee. One daughter, Mrs. Ed Halverson, lives on a farm near Plummer and there is believed to be another daughter living near Grand Forks, and a son still at Oklee.

41 Carloads of Fords Come in One Trainload to Dealer in Montana

A solid train of 41 freight cars, loaded with new 1935 Ford V-8 automobiles and trucks from the big assembly plant of the Ford Motor Company in Chicago, and bound for Great Falls, Montana, passed through Fargo today.

The shipment represented the largest single delivery from the Chicago Plant to any one dealer since 1929, and included 101 cars, trucks and commercial cars for the Kinkald Motor Company, Ford dealers in Great Falls.

On board a special car on the train were C. O. Ruud, branch manager of the Ford Motor Company at Fargo, N. D., Herbert H. Kincaid, president of the Kincaid Motor Company; officials of the Great Northern Railway, and other representatives of the Ford organization.

Mr. Ruud and Mr. Kincaid were in Chicago for several days last week arranging details at the factory. They accompanied the train through to its destination. [illegible]

Red River Valley History

By Win V. Working

Our study of Red river carts lead us naturally to the trails over which the cart trains traveled. Because many of these old routes are coterminous in places with present highways, some knowledge of them is worth while. We can do no better on this topic than quote our authority of last week:

"After due deliberation Kittson procured six of the rude carts which have been referred to, loaded his furs, and in the spring of 1844, set out for Mendota, which he reached after a toilsome and expensive journey. Presumably he had six or eight men with him. The route he followed was that which had been taken by the Red River refugees when they had left the Selkirk Settlement for Fort Snelling; it ran along the west side of the Red River to Lake Traverse, then crossed into what is now Minnesota, thence ran to Traverse des Sioux, near St. Peter, and on down the Minnesota valley to Mendota, or what was then commonly called the St. Peter's.

"Mr. Kittson's first ventures in cart transportation were failures. On the first trip he lost $500; and on his journeys the two following years he lacked over $1,000 in coming out even. But he was of stubborn Scotch courage and believed in his scheme and followed it up and in time a great success crowned his efforts. He soon realized that he had made mistakes and he corrected them. First, he changed his route. He crossed the Red river near Pembina and went down the east side of the river to near the mouth of the Otter Tail; then he struck across by way of Otter Tail Lake to Sauk Rapids, on the Mississippi, near St. Cloud, and then it was an easy march down to Fort Snelling and Mendota. His carts, too, brought back goods and supplies for the use of his patrons and for the people of Pembina generally. The trail from Pembina down to the Otter Tail was always a few miles east of the river.

"The new route crossed the Red Lake River near the west of Fisher. This passage way was long known as "the Old Crossing of the Red Lake River." It crossed Sand Hill River near Beltrami. It passed through the western part of Polk County from north to south a distance of about 60 miles. This was called the 'western route', to distinguish it from others. It was also called the Kittson Trail, the Half Breed Trail, and the Crow Wing Trail. One reason for its selection by Mr. Kittson, in addition to the fact that it was most direct, was that it avoided the route by Big Stone Lake and Traverse des Sioux, the country of the Sioux Indians, who were in a chronic state of deadly hostility against the Chippewas, including Kittson's mixed-blood cart drivers. The latter were wholesomely in fear of their old enemies and struck against being employed among them. In time the upper Red River traders, who did business with the Sioux sent their trains down the Minnesota Valley and brought back goods and supplies.

"This route was selected by Wm. Hallett, a noted scout and trader of the region acting for Mr. Kittson. For a long time it served its purpose well. Maj. Woods and Lieut. Castor, with the dragoons of Capt. Pope's party, came over it in August and September, 1850. Capt. Pope shows it on his map accompanying his official report, and the map shows where Maj. Woods, and the dragoons encamped every night. It crossed the Red Lake river apparently seven miles from the mouth. The map also shows the Trail on the Dakota side which the party followed in going up, but lays down no other trails in the lower Red river than it and the one mentioned as on the east side. The latter is labeled by Capt. Pope as "The Half Breed Trail." In his report Major Woods says as to the route he and the dragoons followed on the return from Pembina:

'The route we followed is well known and traveled every summer by large "trains" of carts from the Red river settlements. We left Pembina on the afternoon of the 26th of August on our return and had for about 15 miles the same difficulties to contend with that we encountered going out; but at this point the prairie began to improve. There had evidently not been so much rain as at Pembina, and 25 or 30 miles farther on the roads became good and we traveled without any serious interruptions, averaging more than twenty miles a day until we reached Fort Snelling the 18th of September, 1849. We made the distance from Pembina to Fort Snelling coming down, 471 measured miles, in 23½ days. We were 57 days going up.'

"We have other evidence that the old Kittson Trail was identical with the 'western trail', the 'old Crow Wing Trail,' and the 'Half Breed Trail' mapped by Capt. Pope. In 1853 the late Capt. Russell Blakely and others, who were engaged in opening the Red River commerce, 'went from Georgetown by way of this trail to Pembina. In Vol. 8 of the Minn. Hist. Soc. Collections, p. 55, Capt. Blakely says.

"We resumed our journey by way of the old Kittson trail, the location of which can be found on the map of Capt. John Pope, in his report of the topographical survey of the Territory, in 149.'

"Other early and reliable authorities confirm the statement of Capt. Blakely that the line marked by Capt. Pope as the 'Half Breed Trail', and which ran only a few miles east of Red River, was identical with the old 'Kittson Trail', opened by Wm. Hallett in 1844. But this trail was at least partially abandoned in about 1858 (or perhaps in 1860) and wholly disused after the Civil war.'—Northwestern Feature Service.

STOCKHOLDERS VOTE AGAIN TO SELL BUILDING

Creamery Members Saturday Cast Favorable Vote 70 to 49

THIRD TIME VOTE IS IN THE AFFIRMATIVE

Secretary Theige States He Was First to Propose a Smaller Building

For the third time stockholders of the local co-operative creamery, in a special meeting Saturday at the Sons of Norway hall, approved the proposed transfer of the present creamery building to Land O'Lakes Creameries, in consideration of which the latter organization would erect for the creamery a new building specially adapted to its needs.

The vote on the question, which followed a lengthy discussion in which arguments for and against the deal were presented, was 70 in favor of the sale and 49 opposed. The meeting had been called at the request of a group of stockholders opposed to the deal, headed by L. O. Stenseth.

At the outset of the meeting Mr. Stenseth accused President Hans Anton of the creamery board of trying to sell the building for less than it was worth, to which Mr. Anton responded by denying that he had any improper motives and stating that he was willing to stand on his record as a supporter of co-operative enterprises.

S. O. Lee, former secretary of the creamery, made a plea for harmony, expressing the opinion that both parties to the argument had good intentions. He also stated that if the disagreement were not brought to an early conclusion, any building would be too big for the needs of the institution.

J. M. Theige, present secretary, spoke briefly, assuming responsibility for originating the idea of establishing the creamery in a smaller building. He declared that his sole objective was to reduce the present unreasonably high operating expenses, and he added that the proposed new building will be amply large, with a capacity of up to 1,600,000 pounds of butter a year.

Counting of the ballots was in charge of Frank Hardisty, C. E. Olen, Ernest Yonke and Gordon Olson as tellers.

BOTH LEGISLATIVE BRANCHES ENACT THE MUD LAKE BILL

Senate Approves Bill After Explanation by Sen. E. L. Tungseth

Final legislative approval was given by the state senate Friday to a bill to complete financing of the Mud Lake game refuge in northern Minnesota.

By motion of Senator E. L. Tungseth, Thief River Falls, the senate rules were suspended to pass by a unanimous vote a house measure authorizing diversion of $50,000 in the public shooting ground fund of the game and fish department to the Mud Lake project.

Senator Tungseth explained that the action would mean no special appropriation since the money already was available in the shooting grounds funds, adding that the federal government's share of the cost would be $469,880. The Mud lake plan is one of the largest undertaken by the federal government in cooperation with states to restore wild ducks.

The court entered a declaratory judgement authorizing Howard to harvest the crop and to deliver the land owner's share to Gustafson.

P. T. A. TO STAGE HEALTH ROUNDUP LATE IN SPRING

Bemidji Professor Speaker at March Meeting Held Monday Evening

In a business session preceding an enjoyable program at the meeting of the Parent-Teacher association Monday evening in the Lincoln high school assembly room, the organization took action to sponsor a summer health roundup for pre-school children in May. The association successfully staged a similar event a year ago with the co-operation of local physicians and dentists.

The meeting also sanctioned the formation of a hobby club to engage in nature study under the direction of Mrs. Blanche Korstad and Miss Harriet Helquist. It was also voted to provide a trophy for the winner of the inter-class skating contest. The chairman, Mrs. B. O. Norby, was instructed to appoint a nominating committee to prepare a slate of candidates for the annual election to be held at the next meeting in May.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. E. W. Beck of Bemidji State Teachers college, who urged that changes be made in the present courses of study in the schools to make them of more practical benefit to the pupils in their later life.

He cited typical cases of pupils in school together with their later careers, showing that those dull in book learning are not necessarily so in their life work. The speaker defended the so-called fads and frills of the educational system as being among the most valuable features.

Musical numbers included selections by two male quartets, one including R. J. Lund, Dr. A. E. Jacobson, S. P. Orwoll and Justus Larson, accompanied by Miss Violet Rhodegaard; and the other consisting of Clarence Sande, Carl Brahs, Douglas Booren and Clarence Veves, who sang unaccompanied. The musical portion of the program was completed by a violin duet by Gordon Overland and Justus Larson accompanied at the piano by Mrs. August Holmberg.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program by a committee of men under the chairmanship of O. C. Paulson.

WATER SUPPLY IS DISCUSSED HERE TUESDAY

Red Lake River Development Association Conducts Meeting

FRISBIE PREDICTS SHORTAGE OF WATER

Resolution Adopted Calling On State Planning Board To Take Action

Various plans for conserving and augmenting the water supply for communities in this section were discussed in this city Tuesday evening at a meeting of the Red Lake River Development association. The meeting was called at the request of H. I. Frisbie, third district ERA engineer, and communities represented included Red Lake Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Grand Forks, Maple Lake and Thief River Falls.

Mr. Frisbie expressed the opinion that the Red Lake and Clearwater rivers face a more acute water shortage this year than last, and that every effort should be made to conserve the available supply.

As a means of increasing the flow to communities along the rivers, he submitted two proposals that have been under consideration by his department.

The first plan, and the one which appeared to win most favor as a permanent solution from those present at the meeting calls for the diversion of the Big and Little Fork rivers on the other side of Red lake. Government engineers are now making a survey of the project, Mr. Frisbie said, and the undertaking would require an estimated two years for completion.

As an alternative it was suggested that, if the consent of the Indians can be secured, a new channel and a five-mile flume could be constructed from Red river westward thru the reservation. The cost of the project, depending on various alternative factors, would be from $75,000 to $150,000, it was estimated.

Following the discussion a resolution drawn by Mayor W. J. Kirkwood of Crookston and City Engineer E. L. Lium of Grand Forks was adopted calling on the state planning board to consider the needs of this section in respect to water supply, and to carry out whichever project it considers the most feasible.

Mr. Frisbie also discussed the condition of Maple lake, which has been gradually drying up in recent years, and he suggested that a suction dredge might be used to remove accumulated silt which has closed up the springs in the bottom of the lake.

LEGISLATURE IS GETTING TO FINAL STAGE OF SESSION

Many Controversial Matters Still Remain To Be Disposed Of

With only slight progress to date on major controversial issues before them, members of the State Legislature appear to be heading for the usual legislative jam of closing days as they swing into the final third of the 1935 session this week.

The legislators have only 33 more working days remaining in which to work out the huge tax reform and replacement program; settle the controversy over reduction of motor vehicle license fees, agree on a method of scaling down Rural Credit mortgages and act on old age pension and unemployment insurance bills.

During the first 56 legislative days of the 90-day session, the only major legislation passed was the ten million dollar relief bill, two million dollar seed loan bill, mortgage moratorium measures and the probate code.

The delay in action on old age pensions and unemployment insurance is due to failure of Congress to pass its social security program rather than to the State Legislature. The provisions of both bills depend considerably on the form the national legislation takes and there is little the Legislature can do but wait for Congress to act.

The House has passed a motor vehicle license fee reduction bill, restoring the base rate to 1932 levels while cutting the minimums to $5 and $7.50, as prevailed in 1933-34. The bill would increase fees approximately $1,300,000 over 1933-34 levels.

The Senate, however, is expected to amend the measure to provide the full 1933-34 cut, and it appears possible the controversy between the two houses may drag out two or three weeks. Meanwhile, the Legislature has twice extended the deadline for payment of 1935 fees, once from February 15 to March 15 and the last time from March 15 to April 15, to give it more time to act on the reduction bill.

Hours and days, possibly weeks, of floor debate and wrangling in committees are still ahead before any of the scores of bills to increase present taxes, levy new ones and limit property taxes ever come to a final vote in either house, with the possibility of a veto by Governor Olson sending several proposed bills back after they have once been passed.

SEEKING RELATIVES OF PORTLAND, OREGON, MAN

Clerk of Court Adolf Eklund this week received a communication from attorneys in Portland, Oregon, seeking to locate heirs of Antoine LeMay, former Minnesota resident, who died in that city February 26.

"The tax problem in Minnesota cannot be solved by hunting up something new to tax, but it can be solved only by attacking the cause of high taxes, namely, high spending," Norman A. Borgen, secretary of the Minnesota Taxpayers Association, said Monday in an address delivered under the auspices of the association.

He cited the prevailing tax delinquency in the state as proving that the total of tax levies is greater than the ability of the people to pay and warned that unless public spending is curtailed so that tax levies are reduced there will be a breakdown of government. Tax delinquency in the state, he pointed out, has increased from a general average of 7.74 per cent in 1931 to 19.60 per cent at the end of 1934.

Percentages of delinquency in northwest counties are reported as follows:

	Jan. '34	Jan. '35
Pennington	34.86	29.00
Marshall	45.09	41.73
Red Lake	41.36	37.00
Clearwater	54.41	52.00
Roseau	54.22	55.62
Lake of the Woods	78.46	78.00

Duck Shot 10 Years Ago Identified Locally As Extremely Rare Species

A rare bird shot by the late Leonard DuChamp near Neptune in 1925 and later mounted has been identified by C. B. Hovie, taxidermist and bird student of this community, as a Barrows golden eye duck.

William Kilgore, curator of the University of Minnesota Museum of Natural History, when told of the discovery, stated that there has heretofore been no positive record of the bird as a Minnesota species, and the specimen is being turned over to the museum.

The bird is the size of a bluebill with white underparts and neck, black tail with markings on wings, greenish black head with yellow eyes and with a white crescent between the eyes and the bill.

Mr. Hovie, on investigating the circumstances surrounding the shooting of the bird, learned that Julien Provencher was a member of the hunting party and from him obtained confirmation of various details.

POWER PLANT EARNS $32,918 IN PAST YEAR

All Records Broken Due to Increased Consumption of Current

RECEIPTS INCREASE NEARLY 15 PER CENT

Figures Revealed in Annual Report of City Clerk P. G. Pederson

The Thief River Falls municipal power plant shows a net profit for 1934 of $32,918.24 after all deductions including depreciation, it is revealed in the annual report of P. G. Pederson, city clerk, completed this week for submission to the city council.

The earnings are the largest in the history of the plant, and are due to an increase of nearly 15 per cent in current used by local consumers, with a corresponding rise in operating income from $76,431.78 in 1933 to $87,188.93 in 1934.

Compared to 1,980,750 kilowatts turned out in 1933, the local plant produced a total of 2,282,865 kilowatts last year, including 1,984,035 kilowatts from the McIntosh & Seymour unit, 236,730 from the Busch-Sulzer units and 62,100 from the hydro plant which was operated part of the time in April and May. The production cost for all plants per kilowatt was 1.84 cents, to which is added .37 cent for general expense, making a total cost for energy generated of 2.21 cents per kilowatt.

The operating income of the plant includes $57,982.31 from sale of lighting current; $21,295.25 from sale of power; and $7,261.93 from sale of current used for cooking. Another substantial source of income was meter rentals, which provided $4,435.25. Total assets of the plant are shown to be $310,444.06, against which there are outstanding bonds aggregating $115,000.

The waterworks department, with receipts of $14,818.33 and disbursements of $15,610.63, showed a loss of $792.30, owing principally to expenditures of $4,494.81 for repairs to the reservoir and $3,028.80 for water main and sewer extensions. In addition $2,200 in interest on bonds was charged to the department.

The report reveals that the total receipts for the city in 1934, including revenue from the water and light department, were $166,635.35. The year closed with a cash deficit of $14,711.03, which has since been wiped out. Bills paid during the year for construction and equipment of the Auditorium constituted a major item of expense, aggregating $26,129.83.

Growing With Your Child

Children and Privacy

(By the Institute of Child Welfare, University of Minnesota)

A good many children live lives as devoid of privacy as those of the gold-fish in Irvin Cobb's famous aquarium simile. Somehow or other, we forget that maybe children as well as older people enjoy having things that are their very own, affairs their very own; in other words, a sense of not being watched and speculated about from morning 'till night. Whether it's a youngster of seven or one of seventeen, the urge to live one's own life, to have moments of freedom from one's family's interest and observation is present, in big doses.

"Ted, telepho-o-ne! It's for you!" The whole family is aware whom the call is for, and unless the individual members stick cotton in their ears, you're pretty sure to hear some comments before long. "Okay! Okay!" mimics brother Bill with dripping sweetness, trying to show the rest of the family how "killing" it is that Ted's remarks are confined to this stand-by, or to monosyllables like yes and no.

Or perhaps Peggy is entertaining some girls at luncheon. Unless mother speaks to Janet specifically, won't she be hanging around all afternoon? It's not that the older girls are talking about anything that particularly demands secrecy, but just that the edge is taken off their spontaneity if they know some one outside "the crowd" is overhearing their chatter.

When it comes to personal belongings, some families are much more strict than others. If there are boys or girls of an age to trade off clothes, it's a great temptation to switch from your own some days, and try the effect of a different tie, or sweater, when your own all look limp and dingy. But such a habit can assume such annoying proportions as to cause a hot resentment in the strongly individualistic child.

When it comes to letters, there should be no need of mentioning the inviolable right to open one's own mail. Perhaps the habit some families have, of considering as common property letters that come addressed to the younger members, is a hangover from the days when the "kids" were too young to read their valentines and Christmas cards for themselves. But however it begins, it shows inexcusably poor taste. Even the very youngest recipient of a real letter brought by the postman should have a chance to open it for himself, and hold it, and gloat over the fact that it belongs to him.

When it comes to actual physical privacy, many a family has to sigh and admit that anything like really desirable conditions simply don't exist, for them. But especially when everyone hasn't a room of his own, it becomes important to set aside some place where each child can have his own things, where he can retreat for meditation. He needs a box where he can put his treasures without fear of tampering fingers, a locked drawer that no one but he ever opens, a corner under the table where he can snuggle away and read, his book propped up on a cushion.

The older boy or girl needs a desk of his own, or at least a table, with a drawer where needed utensils can be kept. If he doesn't have some such place, free from interruption, I don't know that we can blame him much if he falls down on his home work.

Hobbies, too, demand a home, whether it's a matter of a stamp album, that can be slipped into a very small drawer, or a boat-building hobby, that takes up a lot of space in the shed, or the barn, or the basement.

The country child has the priceless advantage over the city child of being able at will to lift up his eyes unto the hills. The serenity or grandeur of nature can make up for a lot of crowding and jangling in human lives.

Some day we'll all receive our call
And follow you one by one
The tears are shed and memory lingers,
You're always in our thoughts and prayers.
And as sure as after the night comes the morning,
When the sun will shine once more.
Comes a meeting on that good heavenly shore.

KING ANNOUNCES DETAILS OF STATE SEED LOAN PLANS

Details of Financing to be Arranged by Various County Boards

Preparations for financing seed loans under the $2,000,000 seed loan bill passed by the Minnesota Legislature last Saturday, are under way throughout the state this week. Copies of the act and regulations for administering the fund have been forwarded to all county auditors and county board chairmen by Stafford King, state auditor, who is designated by the law as administrator of the state seed loan fund. Application blanks will be distributed to the counties in a few days.

County boards are urged to meet immediately and arrange for financing. The act provides that the county boards must purchase and distribute the seed. They are authorized to issue and sell bonds or borrow upon county warrants to obtain funds.

"Every effort will be made to eliminate red tape and simplify the method of making loans, in an effort to speed up action so farmers who need seed grain can be supplied in time for spring planting," Mr. King said.

"Farmers who want seed must make application to their town boards, except in unorganized territory, where they may apply directly to the county board. If the town bord approves the application, the county bord will issue the seed, but if the town board denies the application, the farmer may appeal to the county board, whose decision shall be final. Not more than $300.00 worth of seed may be issued to any farmer, and only those who are 'destitute and needy' may be granted loans.

"Applications must be made before May 1. The loan will be a first lien on the crop grown from this seed, and must be repaid before Feb. 1, 1936. It may be repaid in cash or in kind, at the rate of a bushel and a half per bushel. It may also be repaid in labor. The $2,000,000 state seed loan fund will be used to reimburse the counties for any losses, and consequently acts as security for the bonds issued by the counties.'

Seed grain as referred to in the act includes barley, spring rye, wheat, buckwheat, flax, corn, oats, truck crop seeds and seed potatoes. Application blanks will be distributed as rapidly as the counties decide that they want to come under the act.

When the Peddler calls again what will he say?

REST ASSURED that he will be prepared with "Free Samples"—and all the clever phrases and sales arguments which Master Peddlers have been able to assemble---and some of this ammunition will be so effectively Disguised that it will seem reasonable when considered from the peddler's point of view.

YOU ASK THE PEDDLER

Do You or the firm you represent create any employment for my family or my neighbors?

How Much Money Do You or your firm pay toward the upkeep of our public schools---wherein my children obtain their education?

Would I have a place to worship IF I depended upon the subscriptions paid by YOU or Your Firm?

How Much are you as a Door Bell Ringer, or your firm, taxed towards the upkeep of our Police and Fire Departments which offer ample protection for my home?

How Much do you, Mr. Peddler, or your company pay towards the support of our general welfare work?

Remember Your Merchant is maintaining a business institution---hiring Local Help---which is a factor in your city. He is ready to serve you at ALL TIMES and He Pays His Share on all of the above requirements.

You Would NOT Be Guided in money matters---or in politics by this Wandering-Door-Bell-Ringer. WHY be influenced by him in making your decision between the RIGHT and Wrong thing to do in supplying your needs.

Be On Your Guard For This One "I am glad Mrs. Housewife to find you and your city are at last making a stand to keep out the canvasser and peddler. In fact, I dare say (he dares say most anything to get your attention) that my company is somewhat responsible for the movement to eliminate the irresponsible type—As you know I AM BONDED—and my product is Nationally Advertised, etc." He will endeavor to convince you that he is anything but a peddler—calling himself a "special-home-office-representative"—"mill man"—service man, etc.

NATIONAL LEGION HEAD TO SPEAK AT RALLY IN ST. PAUL

Legion and Auxiliary Representatives to Assemble March 29-30

When 3,000 representatives of the 408 American Legion posts and 411 Legion Auxiliary units of Minnesota hold their annual spring conference in St. Paul, on March 29-30, among their guests will be Frank N. Belgrano, Jr. of California, national commander of the American Legion, and Mrs. A. C. Carlson of Willmar, Minnesota, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary.

In making this announcement, C. A. Zwiener of St. Paul, state adjutant of the American Legion, and Miss Blanche W. Scallen of Minneapolis, state secretary of the American Legion Auxiliary, said that William R. Mitchell of Tracy and Mrs. M. E. Withrow of International Falls, department commander and state president of the two organizations, would preside over the business sessions of the conference.

"The American Legion's yearly spring meeting is devoted to studying the latest information on post and unit work, such as handling the claims of disabled veterans and their dependents," Adjutant Zwiener explained. "The chairmen of the various state committees outline the problems, call for discussion, and submit the solutions."

However, it is not all work and no play, for the two-day meeting will end on Saturday evening, March 30 with a banquet and dance in Hotel Saint Paul, with National Commander Belgrano and National President Mrs. Carlson as the honored guests. "Home-made" entertainment will be furnished by the Eveleth American Legion male chorus, the St. Paul East Side American Legion Auxiliary glee club and the Fourth District American Legion orchestra.

LOWER RATES WOULD HELP

A few days ago reports from Washington indicated that the administration is planning further subsidies for the shipping organizations that haul freight from coast to coast through the Panama canal. To which we are not objecting. There may be factors in the problem of maintaining an American merchant marine that make such subsidies necessary. But such subsidies are a direct benefit only to the coast states. In some respects the results of such subsidies are actually detrimental to the best interests of interior states.

But if it is to the best interests of the country as a whole that the government subsidize shipping for the benefit of coast states, why would not the interior states be justified in asking government aid for the benefit of the interior.

For instance more than half the wholesale value of a carload of dimension lumber in Thief River Falls is represented by freight charges. In other portions of the central states freight charges are probably an even greater factor in the cost of lumber.

In view of the fact that the government recognizes the need for greatly increased activity in the building line as essential to recovery, and is spending billions of dollars in other ways to overcome the depression, it would seem that a few million dollars to absorb transportation charges on building materials shipped to interior points would be a justifiable expenditure at this time.

Thief River Falls needs many new homes. A large number of local people are considering building or modernization this summer. The desire to build and to improve is very evident. But many of the improvements that are planned will not be made because of the cost. The result will be that much lumber that we need here will remain on the coast. The lumber mills will continue to operate only on a part time basis. And there will be little demand for the products of the factories that manufacture the many other items of building material that go into home construction.

In no other field of activity is the deterring influence of high prices so evident as in building. There can be no great volume of building until the people of moderate means start building. And to people of moderate means the question of cost is always an important factor.

HOW, WHEN AND WHERE TO PROTEST

In a contribution published in this issue J. H. Erlandson raises an interesting question. Agreeing with what we said a few weeks ago about the need for greater efficiency in the administration of relief, he asks us to suggest a few ways in which the public can effectively assert itself in such a matter and actually get results. While we can't quite overcome the suspicion that an old experienced protester like Mr. Erlandson is kidding us just a little when he asks us for suggestions in this field, yet the question really is an important one and deserves serious consideration.

From the standpoint of securing reform in the administration of relief there is some reason to hope that in the near future the relief agencies will come under more direct local supervision. At any rate the plan, as we understand it, will call for direct appropriations from each county to carry a portion of the relief cost in that county. If that happens then local taxpayers, realizing that it is their money that is being spent will interest themselves in the manner in which it is spent. And, as Mr. Erlandson knows, local taxpayers need no advice on how to make themselves heard by the county board. The fact that our county government is administered as efficiently as it is, is due in no small measure to the rumble of discontent that sweeps over the countryside whenever questionable items of expense are made public or even contemplated. And this alertness of the taxpayers to protect their interests is a splendid safeguard against local extravagance.

When it comes to voicing an effective protest against extravagance in the state and federal government the problem is a more difficult one. In the first place it is more difficult to arouse the interest of taxpayers in the affairs of state and national governments. The problem is always more remote. The cost of wasteful practices and inefficiency is not charged up to them so directly. Local taxpayers who would become indignant over an unnecessary hundred dollar expenditure by a local unit of government, merely smile indulgently when the state or federal government wastes a thousand dollars in the community. "Let them waste it," is the general attitude. "If they don't waste it here they will waste it somewhere else. We might as well get the benefit of it." Until taxpayers become conscious of the fact that state and federal expenditures are a very direct charge against them it is almost futile to suggest a protest of any kind.

And the difficulty of making an effective protest to state or federal authorities too often discourages the attempt. The protest of an individual is only a voice in the wilderness. The most effective protests are probably made through organizations. Which is one good reason why, no matter which political party is in power, it is well to have a strong minority party to safeguard the people's interests. A strong minority party is perhaps one of the most effective checks on extravagance and abuse of power that we can have. Minority parties always welcome complaints against the practices and policies of the party in power and, of course, make the most of such complaints. For this reason protests are perhaps most effectively made through the regular machinery of political party organization, providing the minority is well organized and is feared by the party in power.

There are other organizations, such as state taxpayers associations, through which reasonable protests can be effectively made. Preliminary steps to securing recognition of a problem by state organizations may be taken through local civic and social organizations. But action through organizations, those already established or new ones formed for the specific purposes to be accomplished, is generally necessary before a protest will receive serious consideration.

And of course before any organization action is taken there must be public sentiment. It is in the forming of public sentiment that newspapers sometimes serve a useful purpose, not alone through the blurpings of an opinionated editor but also thru the opportunity a newspaper provides for others to express themselves. A good newspaper encourages expressions of opinion by its readers for this reason. Through the exchange of ideas made possible in this way public sentiment is often moulded to support a right or oppose a wrong. It is sometimes difficult to distinguish the false from the true but freedom of discussion is always helpful.

And so we would suggest, in answer to Mr. Erlandson's question on possible procedure, that one of the most effective means of securing public support for any deserving program or protest is to write a short article on the subject for publication in the public opinion column of such good newspapers as the Times. The columns of this paper are always open to expressions of opinion on public questions by the readers, whether or not those opinions are in harmony with the opinions of the publishers. We encourage such contributions.

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS

(By R. M. Hofer in Industrial News Review)

Beginning December 15, 1931, an Oregon country editor kept track of the number of envelopes he received containing publicity on different subjects. On February 1, 1935, he had 102 stamped envelopes from private firms and 112 government franked envelopes.

Congressman Fish recently pointed out that the cost to the taxpayers for the franking privilege enjoyed by public officials, governmental departments, commissions, "authorities," etc., had jumped from $11,000,000 to $23,000,000 the past year.

The stamp-free messages from governmental sources, received by this editor in six weeks, exceeded all stamped publicity he received from all private firms.

Franked material drained the taxpayers—stamped material maintained the post office.

ACT AS A SAFETY VALVE

(Milan Standard)

Legislative investigations are somewhat in disrepute because they can never be wholly disinterested. Still, they serve a purpose. They act as a sort of safety valve for pent up partisan feelings. To some extent they are disappointing because the disclosures seldom come up to partisan expectations. They help, however, to clear up a lot of stuff that has been peddled from mouth to ear, sometimes without known and authenticated facts.

It seems likely that there will be no duck season this year. If some of the gloomier authorities are correct, the choice is between going without ducks this year and a future of very slim bags indeed. Minnesota hunters will want some assurance, however, that their sacrifice of sport will not mean sparing waterfowl for someone farther along the line of flight to kill. If there is to be a national closed season conscientious sportsmen have a right to demand strict enforcement everywhere. —Duluth Herald.

THE SOUL'S SPRING CLEANING

(Sam Walter Foss)

Yes, clean yer house, an' clean yer shed,
An' clean yer barn in ev'ry part;
But brush the cobwebs from yer head,
An' sweep the snow bank from yer heart.
Yes, w'en spring cleanin' comes aroun'
Bring forth the duster an' the broom,
But rake yer fogy notions down,
An' sweep yer dusty soul of gloom.
Sweep ol' ideas out with the dust;
An' dress yer soul in newer style;
Scrape from yer min' its wornout crust,
An' dump it in the rubbish pile.
Sweep out the hates that burn an' smart,
Bring in new loves serene an' pure;
Aroun' the hearthstone of the heart
Place modern styles of furniture.
Clean out yer mind cubby-holes,
Sweep out the dirt, scrape off the scum;
'Tis cleanin' time for healthy souls—
Get up an' dust! The spring has come!
Clean out the corners of the brain,
Bear down with scrubbin'-brush an' soap
An' dust a cozy chair for Hope.
Clean out the brain's deep rubbish-hole,
Soak ev'ry cranny, great an' small,
An' in the front room of the soul
Hang pootier pictures on the wall.
Scrub up the winders of the mind,
Clean up, an' let the spring begin;
Swing open wide the dusty blind,
An' let the April sunshine in.
Plant flowers in the soul's front yard,
Set out new shade an' blossom trees,
An' let the soul once froze an' hard
Sprout crocuses of new ideas.
Yes, clean yer house, an' clean yer shed,
An' clean yer barn in ev'ry part;
But brush the cobwebs from yer head,
An' sweep the [illegible] from yer heart.

March 18, 1935

Editor the Times:

On the editorial page of the Times for March 7th you published a very pertinent article under the heading, "Time to take our bearings".

You say that the relief costs in Pennington county for 1933 almost reached the $25,000 mark and the county spent $1000 in administering it with the result that several indignation meetings were held to protest against the big expense. Then you go on and say that the federal government spent over $50,000, $10,000 of which was administering costs, in 1934. This money you say all has to come out of the taxpayers' pockets just as well as the money spent direct by the county, and no one protested last year's poor relief expenses.

All this is very true. But how and where shall we protest? Talking this matter over with hundreds of farmers and others during the past year, there is just as much dissatisfaction with the federal poor relief as there was when the county paid this relief direct.

But when this wastefulness in poor relief could not be changed when the county was handling it direct, most people seem to feel that there is no use protesting any more.

Can the Times or any one else suggest any plan of protest against poor relief wastefulness that will bring results?

If you can tell us how, don't hide your light under the bushel but put it on the candlestick that all may see so that we can protest against poor relief wastefulness in a way that will bring results.

J. W. Erlandson.

By R. W. Hitchcock

The Legislature of 1935 will adjourn Thursday, April 25th. It has five weeks yet to live.

This is the time in the session when everybody despairs of anything being done. More than two-thirds of the session is gone and confusion still reigns supreme. So it seems.

'Twas ever thus. The truth is that the confusion is more seeming than real. One experienced in looking at Legislatures sees that out of the confusion decision is slowly making its appearance. Action will gather speed in the next five weeks, and decisions which have for weeks seemed hopeless, will suddenly be made and recorded.

Important legislation will be enacted in the last three weeks. More major laws will be written in the last two weeks than in all the previous weeks of the session. Some of the most vital measures, it is quite likely, will not pass until the last week.

The drivers' license act and its twin, the security act, hailed as major accomplishments of the session, were not enacted until the very eleventh hour of the last night of the session of 1933.

The time for shifting and weighing and puzzling is near its end; the hour of decision is close upon the Legislature.

Believe it or not, a very great deal has been accomplished. The two outstanding issues of the session are relief and tax reform. Relief is in the bag, that issue is behind the Legislature of 1935. Tax reform is in the making, decisions in respect to it will come rapidly in the next four weeks.

There never was any doubt whatever about relief. All minds, all factions, all parties have been agreed from the beginning upon the main fact that adequate relief must be provided. Such minor differences as existed looked to care in the protection of the taxpayer and to over-anxiety to jockey for political advantage. The time consumed has been distinctly to the advantage of those who need relief, for no relief has been shortened or withheld, but on the other hand a distinct advantage has been gained for the needy. Two outstanding triumphs have been won for the people of the state by the Independent-Progressive majority in the House and Senate—the enlargement of drouth relief to the measure so urgently demanded by the farmers of the state and the enactment of the $2,000,000 seed loan measure in addition to the $10,000,000 relief bill.

These are tremendous accomplishments for the people of the state. Both have been brought about by the vigorous and persistent action of the Independent-Progressive majority in the Legislature.

Despite the hue and cry, the tumult and the shouting and the confusion which has been staged by those who fear to be investigated, the various investigations instituted by the Legislature of 1935 are yielding results of value to the people of the state.

The opposition of the party in power to any probe into its actions in the discharge of its trust, is confession that more is wrong than appears on the surface. It is unthinkable that Theodore Christianson, Jake Preus, Adolph Eberhart, J. A. A. Burnquist, Winfield Scott Hammond or John A. Johnson would have objected to an inquiry, even if proposed by political opponents. They and their parties would have welcomed any and all investigations into their official acts.

The investigations of the Legislature of 1935 are only in mid-course. They still have long to run. They have not developed, thus far, any such remissness as the $100,000 road scandal of 1932, it is true, but they have established the fact that many irregularities and abuses exist in the administration of relief. The testimony so shows and Acting Relief Administrator L. P. Zimmerman declared under oath that "I am finding it out every day."

It is perhaps true that the attempt to administer millions of relief, undertaken in a hurry, will result in abuses no matter by what party administered, but it is a wholesome thing that these abuses should be brought to light. Perhaps we shall thereby be able to eliminate some or most of them, and devote relief money more completely to its intended purpose—the relief of the needy. It is just as well, for instance, for the people to know that the spending and administration of millions have been, and still are, in the hands of a student of theology and philosophy, with practically no business experience whatever, and that for his services he is being paid a large salary, and at the same time is being paid liberal compensation as a disabled veteran.

The solution of the problem of tax reform by the Legislature of 1935 is in the making. This problem is so confused and perplexing, and men so sincerely differ in opinion as to what ought to be done, that a solution would be difficult even if it were not complicated by human selfishness. The Constitution of Minnesota says that taxation should be "fair and equitable" and all men agree to that. But we have been working at it for 76 years and what a crazy quilt of unfairness and inequality our human selfishness has made of it!

We are not going to eliminate human selfishness and make taxation in Minnesota "fair and equitable" in the twinkling of the eye, in a day or in one Legislative session. The most that can reasonably be expected of the Legislature of 1935 in the matter of tax reform is that some substantial beginning be made.

It is quite possible that, in the closing weeks of the session, some such minimum beginning may be made as this—elimination of the state tax (tax for state revenue only) on property, increases in income and other taxes upon the principal of ability to pay, the addition of some such new source of revenue, applicable to every citizen, such as the dollar turnover tax. Any one of these alone will be inadequate, utterly inadequate; it will take a combination of all of them. Some such minimum beginning as this, to which all men and all parties must patriotically yield something, will score a distinct success for the Legislature of 1935 and will mark, it may well be hoped, the beginning of a better day in taxation in Minnesota.

Even such a minimum program of tax reform will not be entirely adequate, but it will be a strong stride toward adequacy. It will, with a two year's trial afford the Legislature of 1937, or perhaps a special session which may have to be called in 1936, a basis of experience upon which to extend and improve tax reform.

The crisis in Minnesota state finance is a serious one; it is working great hardships upon the people of Minnesota, and it threatens still greater inroads upon their welfare. It calls for wisdom and courage, patriotism and self-sacrifice on the part of the representatives of the people in the Legislature assembled.

SO. ST. PAUL LIVESTOCK

(By U. S. Department of Agriculture Economics and Minnesota Department of Agriculture)

South St. Paul, Minn., March 18, 1935 (U.S.D.A.) Cattle trade was extremely slow at this week's opening, many going into the afternoon unsold, with bids 50c or more lower. Receipts included about 36 cars of Canadians and 15 cars of western cattle. Good grain-fed steers were bid $9.50-10.50, medium grades down to $8.50. A few good heifers turned at $9.00-10.00, several loads unsold late. Common to medium butcher heifers brought $5.00-8.00, beef cows $4.50-7.00, low cutters and cutters $3.25-4.25, sausage bulls $5.25 down, a few $5.50. Medium to good vealers brought $5.00-8.00, choice around $8.50, plainer throwouts $3.50-5.00. Medium grade stock steers earned $6.00-7.00, with white-faces being held around $8.00.

Hogs were mostly 10c lower with underweights weak to 25c lower. Better 200-300 lb. butchers brought $9.10-9.15, a few $9.20, heavier weights down to $9.00 or below, good to choice 160-200 lb. $8.75-9.10, most 139-160 lb. $8.00-8.75, pigs mostly $7.00-8.00, good sows mostly $8.35-8.40.

Slaughter lamb trade opened 25-50c higher than last week's close, three loads good to choice 86-90 lb. fed lambs making $8.00 to packers and shippers, fairly good natives selling down to $7.50, with several loads still unsold late. Common and medium grades cleared at $5.00-6.75, slaughter ewes $3.50-5.00, with feet feeding lambs held up to $6.50 and above.

CALF SWINGS FIFTH LEG FROM ITS NECK

Bell Plaine.—A freak calf born on the Chris Weldon farm near Belle Plaine gives every indication of living to be a sturdy animal, in spite of being "handicapped" by a fifth leg. This extra leg is attached to the animal's neck, and is larger than the other four, being topped with a double hoof, or rather four toes. As the calf prances around, this extra leg dangles from its neck, and can be thrown to either side of the head. The extra appendage is apparently of no concern to the calf, and the animal is entirely normal in every other respect. To remove the fifth leg might cause the animal's death, as well as destroy its value as a possible commercial freak.

Pupils at Northwest School Registering for Summer Projects

Northwest School students are now registering for special home project work to be carried on at home during the summer months.

Boys' projects include dairy herd management, pork production, sheep raising, baby beef production, livestock judging, potato production, garden and truck crops, windbreak planting, plant identification, weed eradication, beekeeping, pure seed production, farm accounts, poultry production, building construction, tractor operation, and community service. Home projects available for girls include fruit, vegetable, and meat canning preserving, baking, meal preparation, room furnishing and dressmaking.

These projects are outlined by heads of the various departments at the school and carried on by the students under the direct supervision of Home Project Leaders E. R. Clark, R. J. Christgau and Retta Bede. The projects are so organized that the students put into practice the information they have gained during the six months school year. This work, therefore, results in the establishment of miniature demonstration and experimental farms throughout this region. BEMIDJI TACKLES ST. PAUL HIGH IN STATE HOOP RACE

Eliminates East Grand Forks in Regional Tourney Thursday

Eight colorful quints, none holdovers from last year, completed pairings for the 23rd annual Minnesota high school league basketball tournament at the Minneapolis auditorium today, Friday and Saturday by winning regional and championships Saturday night.

Included are the Minneapolis and St. Paul city champions, Edison and Humboldt, the former holder of the Twin Cities title. The pairings for first round games today are:

3 p. m.—Bemidji vs. St. Paul.
4 P. M. Glencoe vs. Buhl.
8 p. m. Austin vs Luverne.
9 p. m.—Edison vs. Crosby-Iron.

Bemidji high school will represent region 8 in the Minnesota state basketball tournament as a result of a convincing 23 to 15 victory over Waubun in the finals of the regional playoff in Crookston Friday night.

Third place went to East Grand Forks which trimmed Kennedy 37 to 16 in the consolation contest. The East Siders held a 4-2 lead after a ragged first period, then pulled away to a 12-5 advantage at the half. It was 28 to 12 at the close of the third period.

East Grand Forks' hopes of a trip to the state tournament were shattered Thursday night as Bemidji went on a second half scoring spree to trim the East Siders 32 to 22.

The strong Waubun team scored a convincing 34 to 18 victory over Kennedy in the other first round contest.

East Grand Forks took an early lead in its game with Bemidji, adding a 4-3 advantage at the close of the first quarter and leading 12 to 9 at the half. Bemidji started hitting in the third canto to take the lead, 22-10 as the period ended, then tossed in baskets from all angles as three East Siders incurred the maximum number of infractions.

Horses Need Better Feed for Spring Work, U Farm Man Reminds

Owing to scanty winter feeding, horses on most farms are thinner and more weakened this spring than usual, so farmers will find it harder to get them in shape for spring work, says A. L. Harvey, division of animal husbandry, University Farm. To give fullest service, horses will have to be well fed from now on and not overworked.

"To begin with," says Mr. Harvey, "less roughage should be fed and the quality increased. Low-grade winter roughages, such as straw, corn fodder and wild hay, should be cut down or replaced by better kinds, such as prairie, timothy, alfalfa or clover hay. A very good roughage ration would be half prairie or timothy and half alfalfa or clover, fed at the rate of one pound per day for each 100 pounds the animal weighs.

"Oats alone, or oats fed in combination with corn, in amounts sufficient to maintain the horse's weight, will be satisfactory and economical. From 1 to 1¼ pounds of grain per 100 pounds live weight per day will be ample for most farm horses at hard work. If the horses are quite thin, it would be well to add from 1 to 2 pounds of linseed oilmeal per day to their rations. It will stimulate their appetites, keep them in good physical condition and help in shedding.

"Most cases of colic are caused by sudden changes of feed or by over-feeding when horses are idle after continuous hard work. Any change in kind of feed should be made gradually. If a horse is allowed to remain idle even for a half day, cut the grain ration in half. Furthermore, horses should have exercise every day. If they are not working, turn them out in a lot."

Early Seeding Needed for High Grain Yield, "U" Farm Tests Reveal

When small grain seeding time arrives, "he who hesitates is lost", judging from crop trials carried on at the Minnesota Agricultural Experiment Station, University Farm, St. Paul. Getting the seeding done at the earliest practicable date in spring is much more important than preparing the seedbed extra well, says A. C. Arny.

Over a period of years, the experiment station crops men made tests with successive seedings of wheat, oats, barley and flax, beginning with the earliest practicable date in spring and making other plantings after 10 days, 20 days and 30 days. Results showed that both yield and quality are better from the earlier seedings.

A delay of 10 days in the sowing date decreased average yields of wheat 26.1 per cent, oats 11.4 per cent, and barley 17.8 per cent. When the seeding was delayed 20 days, the decreases in yield were 50.0 per cent for wheat, 28.2 per cent for oats and 24.5 per cent for barley. When the seedings were made 30 days late, the reductions were 76.3 per cent for wheat, 55.8 per cent for oats, and 50.8 per cent for barley. Delayed plantings cut flax yields slightly more than oats yields. Where all of these grains are planted on the same farm, the figures indicate that the order of planting should be wheat first, followed in order by oats and flax, with barley last, says Mr. Arny.

Six years of work on different methods of preparing seedbeds for grains and for grasses and legumes sown with them, showed that yields of grain on unplowed corn land were about as high as on fall plowed corn land harrowed before sowing in spring. Disking fall or spring plowed lands before seeding did not bring higher yields.

$10,000 Club House is Given St. Louis County for 4-H Achievements

St. Louis County, Minn., named outstanding in the United States for progress made in 4-H club work in 1934, is to receive a $10,000.00 completely equipped community club house from a large merchandising company as a contribution to the upbuilding of a better American rural life.

The club house is to be built this summer and presented to a non-profit corporation set up by the community, announces the national committee on boys and girls club work which conducted the contest. Awards were made by a committee of club leaders.

St. Louis County was chosen by state club leaders from 15 in the state to represent it in the national contest. The county had 3,434 members enrolled which completed 81 per cent of the projects begun. Fourteen leading adult groups and a half dozen towns and Duluth support the 4-H program generously. Club Agent H. J. Aase had the help of three full time assistants in 1934 in addition to aid from CWA and ERA workers and the two regular agricultural and two home demonstration agents required to serve the county. Also assisting the 4-H program were 173 adult local leaders and 115 junior assistants. About one-third of the adult leaders have served four or more years.

Pollens Causing Hay Fever Start in April, State Botanist Says

Advice to hay fever sufferers that it is possible for them to get into trouble with pollens as early as the first of April was the happy message sent them this week by Professor C. O. Rosendahl, head of the department of botany at the University of Minnesota.

Pollens that cause hay fever come from a number of groups of plants, in which the trees and the grasses are included as well as the sages, lambs quarters and ragweeds according to Dr. Rosendahl. His studies show that the first plant to shed pollens in this state is the soft maple tree, which sprays a considerable amount of it into the air beginning as early as March 20 and April 1. Inasmuch as each sufferer is sensitive to certain pollens and probably not to others, some of the "early spring colds" may be traceable to the friendly soft maples, the willows, elms, ashes and oaks that bloom in the spring, the oaks coming last.

The second invasion of pollens comes from various grasses according to Dr. Rosendahl. This reaches a peak in June and this group of plants includes the grains, such as rye, and the hay grasses, such as timothy. Fortunately he says, the pollen of corn is of such large size that its grains are not blown very far and so have very little to do with hay fever.

Notwithstanding these early threats, the great quantities of pollen that affect most hay fever sufferers come along in July and August. Technical methods developed by the botany department of the university show that at times in August there are from 900 to 1200 pollen grains in every cubic yard of air, which explains the prevalence of sneezing at that time of year.

Cattle Show Large Margins of Profit Over Feeder Costs

Livestock feeders who have marketed cattle at South St. Paul in recent weeks are doubling and tripling their original cost per cwt as feeders last fall, says the weekly market bulletin issued by the Central Co-Operative Association, Farmer-owned livestock selling agency at that market. In some cases the selling price has been four times the feeder cost. This condition in the market was looked for by most of the optimistic feeders last fall, and despite the mounting feed costs, they gambled on light future supplies of beef cattle and expected rise in prices. For the first time since the depression started, farmers are getting a "break", and some feeders who have been on the market this week have remarked that "not since war-time markets have I received such wide margins of profit."

A few actual examples of margins reported by feeders at Central's office follow: A load of yearling heifers that cost $2.75 per cwt last fall and sold at $10 per cwt recently; a cow that cost $15 for the animal and netted $80.00 on the market last week; a load of steers that cost $4.50 per cwt last fall and sold at $11.35 per cwt last week. Innumerable other sales show similar profitable margins over feeder costs, and farmers, for the first time in several years, are feeling exceedingly happy over the condition of the market.

FORTUNE AWAITS MAN 'LOST' FOR 30 YEARS

Battle Lake.—A fortune of over $40,000 awaits Eddie Hokanson, formerly of Battle Lake, if he is still living and comes to claim his inheritance. Hokanson is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Hokanson, livery barn operator several years ago. He left that town about 30 years ago, without leaving a trace since then. The elder Hokanson, after amassing a fortune, moved to Henning, dying a few years later. His widow married again, and her second husband, Charles Anderson, will be the sole heir to the estate if young Hokanson cannot be found. The law presumes a man to be dead when not heard of for seven years. Mrs. Hokanson left a will proving for about $4,000 in four separate bequests, but did not name any heir for the rest of the estate valued at over $40,000.

With Sweden's budget balanced and her workers 99 per cent employed, Uncle Sam might not object to being called a big Swede.

Highway Department to Employ Farmers

Farmers and teams will be hired by the state highway department to drag secondary roads which will not support motorized equipment during the spring break-up, says a department announcement.

District maintenance engineers throughout the state have been instructed to arrange with farmers in their territory for whatever help of this kind is needed. Included in the 4,500 miles of county roads taken into the trunk system last year are many miles not well enough constructed to hold up standard motorized maintenance equipment when the frost is coming out of the ground.

Load restrictions have already been placed on many secondary routes, and there must be obeyed to the letter if the roads are not to become impassable during the break-up, highway engineers assert.

SIGNING OF CORN, HOG CONTRACTS IS BEING COMPLETED

85 Signers Secured to Date in Pennington County; Deadline April 1

With the work of appraising corn yields and counting hogs almost completed by the Pennington County Corn-Hog Production Control Association, the county allotment committee is now assembling application data to submit to the state corn-hog review board at University Farms, St. Paul, announces R. M. Douglass, county agent.

The approval of this data by the state review board, Mr. Douglass says, will prepare the way for the final preparation and signing of contracts, which will then be started Washington-ward for final approval and payment of benefits to producers.

Other factors that will speed handling of the 1935 contracts, according to Mr. Douglass, are the continued use, by the majority of 1934 signers of corn and hog production bases established for them last year; the use of simplified contract forms, and the experience gained by local, state and national corn-hog officials in administering the 1934 program, which in general, is similar to that of 1935.

April 1 is the final date on which the county allotment committee may accept applications for contracts and farmers who have not already signed applications are urged to do so at once. To date, a total of 85 farmers have applied.

Baudette Man Awarded Prize for 44 lb. Trout

J. W. Collins of Baudette has just about cinched his title of being the world's champion fresh water fisherman when last week he was awarded the Field & Stream prize for catching the biggest trout on the American continent in 1934, says the Baudette Region. The competition was open to all fishermen in the United States and Canada, and Jack's trout, which weighed 44 pounds, and which he caught in Crow Lake, was far ahead of any other trout in the contest. Mr. Collins has had the trout mounted and it is displayed alongside the fifty-six pound muskie with which he won the national prize a few years ago.

Holt Community Farmer Continues to Use Oxen

Lars Hellerylt, pioneer farmer of the Holt community, celebrated his 76th birthday on Wednesday, says the Holt News. Mr. Hellerylt is still actively farming his half section of land in Holt township. He is the only farmer in the community who still farms with oxen. He has several head of them on his place and uses one yoke for making his trips to Holt.

CONFIDENCE GAME TAKES MERCHANT FOR $90 'RIDE'

Ortonville.—Playing the old "punch board racket", two confidence men took an Ortonville merchant for a ride to the tune of $90 last week. The game was the same as that which has been used in several parts of the state before, but which merchants often fall victim to. One man sold the proprietor of the store a punch board. Several hours later his partner appeared on the scene to "try his luck." The first punch brought out the lucky number, winning $20. Another punch and he won $10 more. A final punch with $3 at stake and he was the winner of a $60 sweepstake for a total of $90. Not having the entire amount in cash, the proprietor gave the man a check. Becoming suspicious, he called the bank to stop payment, but found the man had already cashed the check and was out of town.

THIS COMMUNITY REPRESENTED AT L.O'L. CONVENTION

Large Gathering Present at Annual Meeting in Minneapolis

More than 2,500 members from northwest states attended the annual meeting of Land O'Lakes Creameries in Minneapolis last Thursday and Friday and heard reports on the organization's successful operations during the past year.

Among those present from this community were Stuart McLeod, who was re-elected director from District 17; B. O. Norby, Wesley Wheeler, Douglas Booren and Fred Wengeler of the local Land O'Lakes plant; while the local creamery was represented by O. H. Gunderson as delegate, and by Carl Beiswenger, a director and Mrs. Beiswenger.

Land O'Lakes Creameries handled 109,600,000 pounds of butter and cheese in 1934 and did a gross business of $32,500,000, Emil G. Johnson, treasurer of the big cooperative, said in his report Friday.

Members moved for a halt in the policy of "trading the American home market for the chance to sell abroad," through the negotiation of reciprocal trade agreements, and instead urged further protection from foreign competition for the products of the farm.

John Brandt president of Land O'Lakes, outlined progress made in the past year and expressed his faith in the co-operative movement as the means of bringing the farmer a fair return on his products.

Every branch of the dairy industry has received aid through cooperative lending agencies set up by the farm credit administration, Gov. W. I. Myers of the FCA told members.

Mortgage Foreclosure Moratorium Extended for Another Two Years

Freedom from mortgage foreclosure sales in Minnesota was provided for another two years Friday when Governor Olson, despite his personal criticism, signed the renewal of the 1933 mortgage moratorium bill.

Minnesota's nationally known relief measure, upheld by the United States Supreme court, was turned into law with Governor Olson's signature written even as he termed the bill "far from satisfactory".

A product of legal technicians who took apparently every possible step to avoid unconstitutionality in drafting the measure, the moratorium act is an extension of the original 1933 law to March 1, 1937.

Governor Olson, in again attacking "conservative leaders" of the Legislature, criticized the moratorium measure because it does not permit a farmer to pay off a part of his debt "in kind", applying crops themselves to the mortgage credit.

LOSES VOICE AS THROAT IS BURNED

Princeton.—A peculiar accident occured to Lester Thompson, Glendorado, who had his mouth and throat burned so severely by ammonia fumes that he lost his voice. Thompson was draining pipes in the refrigerator plant of the creamery at Glendorado. It was thought that all the ammonia had drained out of the pipes, and Thompson used a piece of hose to blow into the pipes, and force out some of the oil that was draining slowly. Just after he had exhaled, he took a deep breath and the ammonia fumes came back from the pipe, burning his mouth and throat severely. He was immediately rushed to a hospital where he is improving, although unable to speak above a whisper.

Capitol News Review

Praising the program of the Minnesota safety advisory committee, President Roosevelt in a letter to A. V. Rohweder, chairman, said it could be used as a model for other states.

Considerable support has been given to the bills recommended by the Division of Women and Children of the Industrial Commission by organizations interested in extending greater protection of hours and wages to women workers in Minnesota.

A proposed amendment to the existing minimum wage law will extend the benefits of minimum wage legislation to all female employes under 21 years. This protection is terminated now at 18 years.

A proposed change in the present regulation of hours of women employes will reduce hours from 54 to 48 per week, and will in addition fix a daily limitation of 9 hours. As in a previous law, overtime in an emergency is permitted, and persons employed in any executive or professional capacity do not come within the scope of the proposed measure.

Minnesota would be thus extending a rather belated protection to thousands of industrial workers who are at present due to the fixing of a shorter working week under the NRA employed from 40 to 48 hours. Since the NRA may expire automatically this year, it would be a substantial gain to the working women of the state if the benefits derived by this temporary reduction of hours under the industrial codes might be made permanent.

In order to give Minnesota farmers a badly needed market for so-called surplus produce, Senator Charles Hausler of St. Paul has introduced a bill that would impose a tax of 8 cents on every gallon of gasoline not containing at least 10 per cent of alcohol manufactured from farm products. In Germany as much as 25 per cent alcohol has been successfully used in gasoline made chiefly from potatoes. This use of alcohol also recommends itself because of the approaching shortage of crude oil.

Working for the state must have its charms. In the office of the personnel commissioner some 50,000 applications for jobs are gathering dust. Or perhaps this situation can more accurately be blamed to the fact that thousands are walking the streets begging for jobs.

About this time of the year, when load restrictions began to bar heavy truck traffic from some of the non-hard surfaced state highways, there comes the complaint of the trucker who wants permission to take "just one load" over a restricted highway. Highway department officials explain that roads are restricted only when necessary and for the shortest possible time. If heavy trucks were not kept off, the taxpayers would lose hundreds of thousands of dollars in ruined highways. Furthermore the roads would be so cut up by the trucks that they soon would become impassable even for passenger cars.

Senator Bridgeman of Bemidji has introduced a bill that would facilitate the retirement of submarginal lands. It would set up land-zoning committees in all counties having a 25% tax delinquency. The committees would regulate the use of such lands, the location of roads, erection of buildings and the kind of industrial activity. If passed, the bill would eliminate to a great extent the present uneconomical use of forest land for agricultural purposes.

Some liberals see a "nigger in the woodpile" in a bill introduced by Representative Nissen of Winona, conservative. Under the pretense of cutting printing expenses of various state departments, the bill requires that reports of the departments be distributed only to the Governor and members of the Legislature.

The Department of Conservation, the Industrial commission, the Commerce Commission, and other branches of government publish annual or biennial reports containing much matter of public interest. The Conservation Department report is of sufficient import as to be used as texts for conservation studies in schools. Is it possible that economy is not in the back heads of the proponents of the bill at all, but rather an effort to prevent dissemination of news favorable to the departments?

Senator Rockne last week threatened the state department of education with some "whip-cracking" if it fails to "keep out of politics". In other words, if the department refuses to approve the educational fairy tales sponsored by republican reactionaries, Rockne, as chairman of the Senate finance committee, will do all he can to cripple its facilities by holding up the necessary appropriations. A bolder attempt to force school instruction to conform to the notions of moss-backed legislators cannot be imagined.

The Twin Cities had as a guest during the past week Miss Tony Sender, former member of the German Reichstag. Miss Sender who was forced to leave Germany to escape imprisonment for her political beliefs, warned against the danger of fascism, which she defined as the last resort of people who are "tired of thinking".

It is rumored that conservative members of the Legislature are to introduce a bill which would bar the color red in Minnesota. Women would not be allowed to use rouge on their lips, and persons with striking crimson lips would be compelled to discolor them. No red neck-ties. No red dresses. The growing of red roses or red carnations would constitute a gross misdemeanor. And women with red hair!—well, they would have to become either peroxide blondes or brunettes. And anybody caught reading "red" literature would ipso facto be declared an enemy of society and shot at sunrise. For the purposes of putting teeth into the law, capital punishment would thus be restored.

PROWLERS GO ON SALE FOR FIFTY CENTS

Times is Awarded Contract for Printing 1935 Senior Publication

At a meeting of the staff of the 1935 "Prowler" last Friday after school it was decided that the Thief River Falls Times would be awarded the contract for printing the senior book. It was also decided that the sales campaign would open the following Monday. Fifty cents was agreed upon as the per copy price of the forty-eight page publication. In view of the fact that the cost has been placed so low, the seniors expect to sell at least three hundred copies.

The taking of individual pictures of the members of the senior class has progressed smoothly, and the staff will soon begin the work of mounting the pictures preparatory to sending them in to the engravers. In the near future Mr. Waale will begin to take the group pictures of the Progress and Prowler staffs, the debate and the declamation team, etc.

Considerable work has already been completed. The activities lists have been compiled and the basket ball and football season recapitulations have been written. The resume of the debate season has been recorded and the declaimers and their records have been written in to the "copy" of the book. The feature staff have written the individual "quips" and have drawn several caricatures.

Don Hermanson, Walt Kinghorn, Kathleen Monsebroten, and Martha Storholm have started to sell copies of the '35 Prowler. See them and get your receipt for a copy now!!!

SIX INTERCLASS GAMES PLAYED

Interclass Tournament to be Played This Week

Last week six games were played, the last game starting the Interclass Basket Ball Tournament. The games between the Soph C and the Frosh D ended with the Sophomores victorious by a score of twenty-three to thirteen. Shumway was high point man for the sophomores and Carlson, for the Freshmen. This game was the first game of the tournament; the other five games were not played until later.

One other game was played between the Sophomores and the Freshmen, this one between the Soph B and Frosh A, but the Freshmen came out on the top side of a score of thirty to eighteen. Salveson was high man for the Freshmen and Kelly, for the Sophomores.

The Freshmen were again victorious when the Frosh B defeated the Junior D twenty-four to sixteen. This game was fairly evenly matched until Prots went out of the game on fouls in the fourth quarter. After that, Tupberg, Frosh high point man, just stood under the basket and put in the last eight points. Prots was high for the Juniors.

The game between the Frosh C and Junior B ended with the Juniors victors by thirty-three to seventeen. Prots was again outstanding for the Juniors when he chalked up eighteen points after his name. The Freshmen had three men who each made four points, none being high.

The Junior B's were defeated in a game with the Soph A's, the score being thirty-six to thirty. Olson and Nelson were high for the Sophs and Hess for the Juniors.

The Seniors were defeated in the only game they played last week by the Junior A's. Lorentson was high for the Juniors, and Thompson, for the Seniors. The final score was 35-22.

FROSH DOUBLE QUARTETTE TO REPRESENT BOYS

Girls Sextette Work on Their Number for Music Contest

The Freshman boys' double quartette will represent Thief River Falls High School in the boys' small group division this year. The members of this group are: First tenor—Wendell Olson, Vernon Wedul; Second Tenor—Robert Quale, Lynn Booren; First Bass—Robert Smith, Gordon Caldis; Second Bass—Jerome Salveson, Stanley Newland. This is the first year that small groups have been permitted to use more than one person in a part, and it is a much better arrangement for high school voices. The boys are working on three new numbers—Noble Cain's arrangement of "Come To Me In My Dreams," "By the Mississippi" and "Alexander", all of which are to be sung a capella.

The girls' sextette is working on "Moon Marketing" by Powell Weaver which they will do in the contest. The ensemble is very difficult because of the intricate accompaniment. The girls are also working on the other numbers in The Venetian Song Cycle by Nevin. CHEMISTRY CLUB MEETS MARCH 15

Barking Dogs and Chemical Gardens Are Made

The Charles Martin Hall Chemistry Club met Friday, March 15 instead of Monday, March 18, because of the postponed P. T. A. meeting which was held Monday. Only a few members were present.

The hour was spent in recreational stunts. First, "barking dogs" were prepared by soaking filter paper in a solution of white phosphorus. The wet paper was then placed on an empty bottle. Suddenly it "barked" with a loud explosion.

The second stunt was to grow a chemical garden. First, a dilute solution of water glass was prepared. Into this were dropped crystals of bright-hued salts. Almost immediately crystals began to "grow" into forms resembling plants and trees.

4 REGULARS ARE ON NEXT YEAR'S VARSITY SQUAD

Van Pelt, Mickelson, Jung, and Nelson on Next Year's Quint

Now, with basket ball season over for another school year, we are looking forward to next year's team. Although prospects are not as outstanding as they have been in the past few years, next year we will have four of the first eight players on this year's quint back.

Outstanding of the returning lettermen is Mickleson, a Junior. "Mick" is one of the four players who scored over 100 points in the regular season. With the added height and weight that he is almost certain to pick up, he should do even better next season. The other one of the five "starters" returning is Van Pelt, a Sophomore. Jim hit his stride late in the season this year but after that he was one of the outstanding players on the floor. If he can improve his shooting, he should give plenty of trouble to the opponents next year.

The other two of the first eight returning are two Juniors, Nelson and Jung. After starting the season on the second team, they worked themselves up to first stringers. Another player who saw some service on the "A" team as well as on the "B" is Helquist. Lenny, a sophomore, is noted for his deadly one hand shots and his smooth deceptive type of playing. He was the highest scorer on the "B" team this year, scoring over 63 points in nine games.

Among the others who will be fighting for the other places on the team are six Sophomores from this year's "B" team, Nesse, Alfred Nelson, Olson, Erickson, Holmgren and Adkins. Added to these is "Bones" Stadum who will be a freshman next year. Outstanding among these boys are Nesse, who is a strong defensive as well as offensive man and "Bones" Stadum who is 5 feet 11 inches tall now and still growing.

Don Olson.

The Shop II classes are studying the ignition systems of several popular makes of cars as a part of their second course. The Shop I classes are working on a wide variety of projects in woodworking. The eighth grade has finished the unit in woodwork and begun the electrical unit. The seventh grade is working on the metal unit in general mechanics.

REVIEW OF 1934-1935 BASKET BALL SEASON

Prowler Quint Wins All But One District Game; Loses In Final Clash

The late basket ball season, which ended in disaster for the Prowlers at the hands of the Crookston Pirates, was one of the most successful from the standpoint of games won and lost. The local team lost but four games (only two to Minnesota competitors.) Grand Forks Central took the Prowlers for two losses and East Grand Forks accounted for the other defeat. In the semi-finals of the district tournament, Crookston scored a 28-24 victory over the Prowlers, only to lose to East Grand Forks in the finals.

From the beginning of the season, the Prowlers were considered strong contenders for the state championship, but, as proven many times before, anything can happen in basket ball and the Lincoln quintet was no exception. The early season form shown in the Plummer game seemed to point to a new high in Lincoln High School basket ball, but just one off night rent the Prowlers out of the competition.

The Prowlers lost first to Grand Forks Central by a safe margin and then waded through strong teams until East Grand Forks' Little Green Wave eked out a 31-30 victory. In the last game before district tournament time, the locals dropped another decision to Grand Forks Central. Then, as a disastrous climax, the Pirates from Crookston won the most important game of the season from the Prowlers.

There is more than one side to the win-and-lose column and the victories count just as well as the defeats. Among the notable victories are the two decisive battles which the Prowlers took from Bemidji, the team representing Region 8 in the State Tournament this week. Also Cass Lake, last year's representative to the State meet, was defeated easily by the Lincoln cagers. Crookston dropped two pre-tournament games to the Prowlers and East Grand Forks also came out second best to the Prowlers.

In the last few years, it has been between Warren and Thief River to decide District 31's member of the Regional Tournament, but Warren's fast team lacked the height necessary to control the ball and was never considered as a possible winner of this district.

The material this year was the best since the state championship team of 1932. Mr. Dooley's coaching was well above the average. But although these were mixed in the proper proportion, the team, on an off night, lost the most important game of the season before its highest hope could be realized.

With the passing of this season the ardent basket ball fans are looking into next season's prospects and give the Lincoln "five" a good chance at the district tournament next year. However, the quintet next year probably will not be as good as the graduating team, but the competition decreases proportionately. The mainstays for next year are: Van Pelt, Mickleson, Jung, and Nelson. To this add the Helquist-Bud Nelson scoring combination, which did so well in the second team games, and the total is not "just another team."

PROGRESS POKES ITS NOSE AROUND

This visit in the year 1940 takes us to Hollywood, California, where a group of former Lincoln High School students have made their headquarters. Let's take a peek behind the scenes and see what we can discover. A studio page boy has pointed out the interesting places, so let's go.

A Jean Harlow picture is in the making, and naturally all are curious to see the dazzling Miss Harlow. But who can that dark-haired girl talking to Miss Harlow be? We learn that it is Miss Mona Mosleth, who is a secretary to the movie star.

Playing opposite Miss Harlow in this picture is Fred Astaire. In the picture Mr. Astaire has a singing role. James Nesse, a L. H. S. graduate, is off-stage singing the songs which are supposed to be sung by Mr. Astaire. Cleo Peterson and Carl Frederickson who have formed a partnership, are the much-acclaimed arrangers of the unusual dance scenes in the picture.

Many of us are beginning to wonder where Miss Ginger Rogers is. The page boy informs us that Miss Rogers is now retired. Miss Verna Sagmoen has assumed the role of performing the dances which Miss Rogers formerly did. The latest creation is said to be a combination of the "Carioca" and "The Continental".

In the same studio we see Douglas Hess, who is a screen technician. Mr. Hess has just returned from a trip abroad.

Clark Gable is passing by, and all the women begin to move about in a daze. We are further astonished when we see Theodore Quale and Robert Oden walking with Mr. Gable. They seem to be doing nothing, but investigation reveals that they are bodyguards.

Now we are passing by the studio's personality school. Do our eyes deceive us? Chester Ness, who we find is the manager, greets us at the door. In a far-off corner Miss Brunelle Erickson is sitting with the popular Shirley Temple. Miss Erickson is coaching the young actress in her lines for a forthcoming production. Miss Vivian Ward occupies the center of the floor in teaching dancing to a group of youthful aspirants. Miss Celia Halland is the head instructor of all the studios' grade schools. This is Miss Halland's first year at her present position.

Our trip is almost ended, but we still have three more friends to visit. Lorraine Amundson, a "stand in" for Cora Sue Collins is at home nursing a bad cold. Miss Amundson is said to be the best-versed "stand in" which Hollywood has ever had.

A voice which we have heard many times before greets us from one of the smaller studios. Upon investigation we find it to be that of Francis Engle. Mr. Engle is a narrator for many of the travelogues which are filmed.

Leaving Hollywood, we are horrified to see a man leaning over a cliff. The page boy tells us to be calm for it is only one of the stunt men doing a scene in a new production. When the man finally reaches earth, we find it is only Dayton Silk, minus a few ribs.

Next week our tour will take us to Radioland, where more of our friends are employed.

REHEARSALS FOR "GROWING PAINS" GO SMOOTHLY

Play Promises to be Complete Success According to "Progress" Reviewer

The Junior Class play "Growing Pains" has been progressing rapidly, with practices being held every day. If it continues to progress, as rapidly, it will be in excellent condition to be presented on March 29.

Each of the persons chosen to act in the play fits his part perfectly and is giving his best work toward making the performances a success.

The comments of various newspapers and magazines show their hearty approval of the play as given in other cities. The local performance will undoubtedly warrant as favorable comment.

"Growing Pains" is a play written especially for young people—treating of youth, as it hovers uncertainly on the wings of sixteen. George and Terry are the son and daughter of Professor and Mrs. McIntyre, who struggle valiantly to lead their children through the difficult phases of adolescense, so familiar to us all.

"Terry is shown outgrowing the tomboy stage, and unable to play with the boys on an equal status. She finds herself thrown back on her feminine resources; and how she tries her "resources" makes this play an illuminating study of feminine psychology.

"George McIntyre, the boy adolescent, goes through the customary symptoms of his age—begging his parents for a car—and falling victim of the wiles of Prudence, a successful "vamp" in the neighborhood.

"At a party the McIntyres give to reward George for having parted with his tonsils, George is sent out for some more ice cream. In his rush to get back for his dance with Prudence, he passes a traffic light, and is pursued home by an officer. In his endeavor to prove himself a man in the eyes of Prudence, he is not sufficiently respectful to the law, and is hauled off to jail, therefore ruining the party and causing an uproar in the McIntyre family. Next morning, George seeks consolation from Prudence." The outcome will be left to your imagination, but it will undoubtedly turn out as you did not expect.

The author of "Growing Pains" also wrote the play "Skidding," which was presented here last year and received with great enthusiasm.

The play will be attended by a large number students from Warren, where it will be presented by the senior class some time this year.

Prowlers

Last Friday the seniors started to sell the 1935 "Prowlers". They offer high school students a forty-eight page record of high school events for the school year 1934-1935. The book will include the pictures of the members of the graduating class, a picture of the football squad and "write-ups" of each game played by the Prowler eleven, a picture of the basket ball team and an account of each game, a picture of the track team and a resume of the track season, and pictures of the "Prowler" and "Progress" staffs, the debate and declamation teams, as well as records of the work of these various groups. Space will also be devoted to the senior one-act plays, the junior class play, the senior class play, the Honor Society, the Athletic Society, the Honor Students, the valedictorian and salutatorian, the operetta, the music contest, and features.

Price

Last year the senior class published a sixteen page annual which they sold for thirty-five cents. Now the graduating class is publishing a genuine "Prowler" of forty-eight pages which they offer for only fifty cents. The reason for this amazing offer is not that the book is inferior. The purchasers are guaranteed the same quality of paper, and the same clearness of prints as was characteristic of preceding "Prowlers". These books are being presented at this very reasonable price because the printer's bid was unusually low and because the senior class expects to sell an unusually large number of copies.

Track

Lincoln High School has three major sports, namely football, basketball and track. The first two have become a part of the recorded history of the 1934-35 school year and the third, a spring sport, has not, as yet been begun.

However, as soon as the sun definitely decides to demand the disappearance of the snow and ice, Coach Dooley will issue the call to aspiring track candidates. Only three of last year's letter men returned this year, but Prowler track coach expects to uncover new talent among the members of the lower class men, and retain the regional championship.

Drama

One week from tomorrow evening a number of junior boys and girls will make their debuts as actors and actresses in Aurania Rouverol's three-act comedy "Growing Pains". The Progress reporter who has "covered" the rehearsals predicts a complete success for the eighteen members of the cast and the director.

The dramatic production of this year's junior class may be compared to "Skidding", the play presented by last year's junior class. Both were directed by the very competent Miss Edberg, both were written by Miss Rouverol, whose "Skidding" was awarded the American Drama League prize last year, and both are three-act comedies.

SCHOOL NOTES — George Bainbridge is a new member of the senior class. He formerly attended school at St. Hilaire. His sisters, Barbara and Margaret, attend the eighth and fourth grades respectively. —The Seniors received copies of the class play to be given in the near future - watch for further announcements. —Miss Thoreson has been substitute teacher for Mr. Bisrud for the past two weeks. She is now teaching for Miss Binck, who is ill. —Mr. Bisrud returned to school after an absence of two weeks. The pupils were glad to see him as there are many things in which we need his advice or consent.

The seniors are nearing the end of the trial but the final verdict has not yet been given. Howard Froslid "[illegible]" feels very confident of the fact that he and his accomplices have proved beyond doubt, that "Raymond Peach "Navarro" should pay $500 damages. Vera Folkestad, "Dawes", the defense attorney, thinks that Mr. "Navarro" should pay $100 for damages done to the car. However, they can see no reason why Raymond should pay $5000 because Ernest Swanson "Swanson" lost his job as traveling salesman for the Crawford Real Estate Co., New York City. The final verdict will be given Tuesday or Wednesday. —There are now 27 pupils enrolled in the seventh and eighth grade room. —The Shakespeare Survivors will meet next Friday afternoon. At the last meeting, all inactive members were asked to resign and the result was that the roll call is now half as long as it was before. A program of songs was given and the program committee was appointed for the next meeting by the president. The committee consisted of Sena Folkedahl, chairman and Beth McLeod, Vernon Urdahl and Ernest Swanson as assistants.

GOV. OLSON SIGNS $10,000,000 BILL FOR STATE RELIEF

Funds Will be Provided by Proceeds of Liquor Tax Revenue

Minnesota's two big relief bills $10,000,000 and $2,000,000 propositions, representing weeks of effort in the legislature, Saturday were enacted into law by Governor Olson's signature.

The $10,000,000 bill, passage of which assures Minnesota of $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 in federal relief allotments for March, was signed by Governor Olson after he affixed his signature to the $2,000,000 seed loan measure.

The $10,000,000—money to be used through the SERA at $5,000,000 for each year of the 1935-37 biennium—will come from the Minnesota emergency relief fund, supplied by the revenue from liquor taxes.

Counties will contribute to a supplemental fund with the state executive council acting as advisor and judge as to the sums to come from the units. Instead of being required to match each dollar of state grants, the counties will pay into the supplemental funds as much as their treasuries permit.

It was upon passage of this $10,000,000 bill that final allotment of relief funds from Washington depended. The bill's history, marked by constitutionality troubles, had reached one of several climaxes in the federal ultimatum that, pending its passage, Washington would not grant any money to Minnesota.

Terms of the new seed loan bill provide that a farmer may obtain $300 worth of seed through proper application procedure as outlined in the measure.

VARNISH FUMES FATAL TO MONTGOMERY MAN

Montgomery—A victim of poisoning from varnish fumes, Alphonse Wals, Montgomery brewmaster, died last week. Employees at the brewery were busy varnishing the inside of the beer vats, but because of the lack of ventilation, were working only for short periods of time, going outside for air. Wals was making a tour of the building and stepped into one of the vats, where he accidently knocked over a can of varnish. Not wishing to waste the can, he began to brush it along the base of the vat. He was overcome by the fumes and found unconscious after several minutes. He was revived, and went home feeling unusually well, but was taken sick in the night and died the next afternoon.

'Going Wage' for Labor is Urged at Minnesota Farm Bureau Meeting

Unreasonably high prices for labor work a decided hardship on farmers, both as taxpayers and employers, and should not be condoned, county directors of the Minnesota Farm Bureau declared in resolutions adopted at a special meeting held in St. Paul on March 14. Meeting primarily to pass on the merits of tax legislation now in the hopper at the state capitol, they also acted on other matters affecting farm income. They urged passage of tax limitation legislation and the gross income tax. They opposed the sales tax.

Insisting that wages should be in conformity with farm income the delegates asserted that "the present wage scale paid by our state at 50 cents per hour is entirely out of line with the wages farmers are able to pay farm labor. We therefore disapprove of any price scale on labor in the state of Minnesota that is out of line with the going wages of the community."

Another resolution urged that federal highway funds be available to Minnesota without the requirement of accompanying state appropriations.

License Corrections Bring State $20,014

In the first two months of 1935 the state highway patrol was instrumental in collecting $20,014 in motor vehicle license corrections, according to a highway department bulletin. In addition, the patrol was instrumental in collecting $3,262 in fines, or a total of 23,276. License corrections were mostly on trucks. More than 24,000 motorists were warned for various traffic violations, and 255 were arrested. Patrolmen drove 555,022 miles in the two months.

TWO MOST DISTINGUISHED 'TRAFFIC COPS' CLAIMED

Northfield—A challenge to any town in Minnesota to present two more distinguished traffic cops than volunteered their services recently is made by Northfield residents. Scores of cars leaving the Manitou Heights hill following a concert, many of them bearing Lutheran students attending the Northfield convention, found themselves in somewhat of a jam. The icy roadway made traveling hazardous, but it was made less so because of the direction given traffic at this point by His Honor, the Mayor of Northfield, and His Excellency, the President of St. Olaf college! These two distinguished gentlemen alighted from their cars to personally direct traffic for the visitors.

BUREAU MEMBERS ASK LAW TO HALT TAX CONFISCATION

Urge Tax Limitation Law and Gross Income Levy; Hit Sales Tax

Seeking to save their homes from the tax gatherers, Minnesota farmers reiterated their demands for a tax limitation law and for a gross income tax at a special meeting of Farm Bureau county directors held in St. Paul on March 14. The delegates, representing 70 county Farm Bureaus, again voiced their disapproval of a sales tax.

The gross income tax was defined by speakers as an income tax without exemptions. As such it will bring all earners into the ranks of taxpayers, the delegates were told by members of the state legislature, who appeared at the invitation of the Farm Bureau.

The tax burden to date has borne most heavily on farms and homes, and unless tax limitation legislation is passed, the tax spenders will drive farmers from their land, delegates asserted. The $4,000 homestead exemption law has given them little relief, in fact has harmed many farmers, speakers asserted, and remedial legislation is imperative. To replace the taxes that will be lost to the state through tax limitation, the gross income tax was recommended. Tax limitation legislation is of primary importance, however, the speakers asserted.

A number of farmers urged adoption of a sales tax, but others urged a two-year trial period under the gross income tax system. Members of the tax committees of both house and senate said that higher inheritance taxes and higher net income tax rates would not be sufficient to meet the needs of the state.

THOUSANDS OF DUCKS IN STATE ON FLIGHT NORTH

The annual spring flight of wild ducks to northern climes is on and Minnesota now has thousands of these feathered travelers within its boundaries. Most of these birds are grouped in southern parts of the state at the present time. D. P. Brady, state game warden at Windom, reported thousands of wild ducks in lakes in his section with large numbers at Heron Lake.

They report a very enjoyable trip.

The annual town election was held last week at school district 52. Walter Lundeen was elected supervisor succeeding W. L. Rodman; O. M. Mandt, treasurer; Herbert Lundeen assessor, succeeding Ed Rustan. The issuing of beer permits in this town was voted out by a large majority. —Mrs. T. J. Hovet and son Melvin of Star were visitors at the O. T. Lunden home Friday. —M. Mathson and son Adolph of Grand Forks, visited over Sunday at the home of his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lundeen.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lundeen entertained at their home a group of friends and relatives Saturday evening. The occasion being the birthday anniversary of Mr. Lundeen and their daughter Joyce and Fern Lundeen. The evening was spent in a social way and at midnight a delicious lunch was served. Red River Valley History

By Win V. Working

Fur Trade Routes

The Red River cart for trade attained formidable proportions within a few years. The following paragraphs from the previously quoted account tells the story:

"As stated, in 1844, when the first cart train was composed of six carts, it carried $2,000 worth of furs. In 1950 the carts brought down to St. Paul $15,000 worth and carried back $10,000 worth of goods. In 1851 there came to St. Paul 102 carts, but in 1857 there came about 500. In 1858 there were 612 and nearly all were from the Red River valley. When St. Paul was laid out, in 1849, the destination of the carts and their loads was changed from Mendota to St. Paul, which had been made the capital of the new Minnesota Territory, and then had stores and shops and a big warehouse built by the Fur company, which then belonged to Pierre Chouteau, Jr., & Company, of St. Louis. In 1859 the steamer Anson Northup was running on the Red river between Georgetown and Fort Garry and it carried tons of furs for the Red river traders as far as to its southern terminus. Not all of the northwest traders patronized the cart lines, for some of them were in the Hudson's Bay company's service and were forced to ship their furs to the markets of the world by the way of Hudson Bay.

"In 1858 the value of furs received at St. Paul from all sources was $161,022, but in 1863, when the Sioux in Dakota were hostile, the value increased to $250,000 and a half of the amount received came from the Red river valley. The trade was of great advantage to St. Paul. Nearly all of the money paid for the furs on their arrival in St. Paul would be spent in the town, and the supply of circulating medium would be, at least for a time, abundant and of great value. And there was a valuable feature about this medium. The Red river men sold and bought for coin only, gold and silver, nearly all of American coinage, with occasionally English sovereigns which were in demand on Red river.

"It is much to be regretted that we cannot now present the names of the traders then living in northern Minnesota that were interested in the Red river cart trains. One fact may be derived from this circumstance—they did not grow rich from the trade or famous in any way. There is a great deal of misinformation extant concerning the profits made by the Minnesota fur traders from their transactions. It has been often asserted that they swindled the "poor Indians" shamefully out of their skins and pelts, and made enormous profits. And yet only three or four of the old Minnesota traders grew wealthy. We well know who these men were. Norman W. Kittson was one, Henry M. Rice, Gov. H. H. Sibley, and Louis Robert were the others that made respectable accumulations. Yet these men made but very little comparatively out of the fur business. By far the greater part of their holdings came from their profits in real estate transactions. They bought Minnesota lands when they were cheap and afterwards sold them at handsome profits."

In support of the statements made in the above paragraphs we have the following from the paper read at the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the visit of Verendrye at Warroad in 1932. The paper was prepared by Willoughby M. Babcock of the Minnesota Historical society:

"It was the traders, too, who located the famous Red River cart trails from the mouth of the Minnesota River to Pembina and the Red River of the North. These cart trails became stage roads, and today one of the heavily traveled trunk highways up the Minnesota valley substantially follows the earliest of the Red River trails, while the lines of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific for considerable distance closely follow the Sauk and Crow Wing River routes."

"The fur trader developed a keen sense for strategic points at which fur posts could be erected, and in innumerable instances these trading posts became nuclei for thriving cities such as Chicago, Green Bay, Fort Wayne, etc. In Minnesota the results were much the same, although the communities have not become as large. Each post of importance had a number of employees attached to it in various capacities, such as clerks, boatmen or voyageurs, interpreters, and hunters. Further, part time, discharged and superannuated employees gradually congregated about the trading post, took Indian wives, and became more or less permanent residents of the neighborhood. Thus a little settlement would develop. It was an ex-employee of the American Fur Company, for instance, Pierre Parrant by name, who located upon the site of Saint Paul, and his grog shop became the nucleus for the town."

Volumes could be written, of course, about fur trade routes, and the traders themselves, but space prohibits extensive treatment of the subject in this series. —Northwestern Feature Service.

NIGHT and DAY

you're safe on CONCRETE

AT night the superiority of concrete becomes most apparent because of its visibility. Its light gray surface with sharply defined edges reflects light but is not glossy.

Concrete conforms precisely to the formula for the ideal pavement set up by the International Illumination Congress of 1928 and by the Illuminating Engineering Society in 1934. The importance of this is emphasized by the fact that the rate of death per accident is 45% higher during hours of darkness. Concrete, smooth but non-skid, insures a quick, certain stop even in the rain. Blow-outs, spring breakage, steering gear failures, accidents of all kinds are less apt to happen on concrete.

Yet concrete is not only safe—it is more comfortable—it saves in driving costs—it costs less for upkeep—and cost of construction is less than that of any other pavement of equal load-carrying capacity.

Early spring months are hard on Minnesota roads. Frost going out of the ground leaves many of them dangerous or impassable.

Concrete roads are safe, spring and fall, summer and winter. There are no ruts, no chuck-holes, no frost boils, no load restrictions.

Tourists follow the concrete. They shun dark, unknown, unpaved or poorly paved roads. They know they will reach their destination safely on concrete.

Electric Device Used to Locate Gravel Deposits

An engineer of the State Highway department, Stanley W. Wilcox, has developed a method of locating buried gravel deposits by means of electricity, says a department bulletin.

With the aid of his "electrical prospector," Wilcox can find gravel and sand pits hidden beneath many feet of dirt. He can also tell the approximate size of the deposits.

His method has proved more economical and satisfactory than the old system of locating gravel by drilling test holes, highway department officials assert. Wilcox sends electric currents through the earth where he is prospecting. By measuring electrical resistance encountered, he determines what is beneath the surface.

Substantial Salads for Lenten Days

Now that meats are out of the picture for many of us throughout most of the Lenten season, it is rather difficult to plan luncheon or supper dishes that will be substantial and filling. Here are some salads that—with the addition of hot rolls and a simple dessert—will provide completely satisfying as well as well balanced meals.

Salmon Salad

1 can red salmon
1 medium bunch celery
6 or 8 small sweet pickles
1 cup stuffed olives
½ cup walnut meats
1 red or green pepper
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup cracker crumbs
Mayonnaise

Remove skin and bones from salmon, chop celery fine, also pickles, olives, pepper and nut meats. Roll crackers fine. Mix all together with mayonnaise and serve on lettuce leaves. Garnish with a few nut meats or stuffed olives.

Macaroni Shrimp Salad

Dressing

1 cup water
1 cup vinegar
(boil together)
2-3 cup sugar
2 teaspoons flour
2 teaspoons mustard
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs

Mix all dry ingredients together then add the eggs. Add boiled vinegar and water a little at a time. Remove to stove and cook until the mixture thickens. Take off the fire and add a large lump of butter.

Apple, Celery and Tuna Fish Salad

1 cup apples, pared and diced
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1½ cups celery diced
2 cups tuna fish flaked
¾ cup mayonnaise

Sprinkle the apples with the lemon juice and blend with the celery, tuna fish and mayonnaise. Serve on crisp lettuce and garnish with additional mayonnaise. uS&3-4

Coleslaw with Horse-Radish Dressing

Shave a firm head of cabbage very fine and cover with ice water for an hour, drain and dry well. For the dressing whip 1 cup sour cream with 1 tablespoon prepared horse radish, 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar, 4 tablespoons cider vinegar, 3 teaspoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon prepared mustard. Mix well and add paprika to color. Then mash well the yolks of 3 hard-cooked eggs and blend with dressing, pour over the cabbage, tossing lightly till well mixed. Cut the whites of the hard cooked eggs into matchlike shreads and add them as a garnish to the slaw.

Ohio's Marriage Laws

Ohio law states that a marriage license must be obtained in the county in which the bride resides. The marriage, however, may take place in any county in the state.

W. C. T. U. News Notes

The biting satire with which Mr. Westbrook Pegler writes in the Chicago Daily News, letting the shoe fit wherever it may, is one of the most readable features of the present day press. Even though Mr. Pegler has, on occasions, not seen eye to eye with the W. C. T. U., his retort to the recent report of the American Football Coaches Association attitude on the drinking question will delight the hearts of those who saw and HEARD the football crowds that filled the hotels in Cleveland last fall at the time of the National W. C. T. U. convention, and many other persons who enjoy the sport but not the modern methods of celebration. Mr. Pegler says, in part:

If you are interested in seeing a demonstration of American conduct at its grown-upest you may do so the next time that Army plays Notre Dame in New York just after the game is over. At that instant, there will be a crash of bottles on the concrete decks, a wild, whooping rush down the runways, in which women will be squashed against the walls and knocked flat the walked on, and a charge out upon the field by several hundred staggering adults bent upon uprooting and smashing the goal posts. Immature men and women, not yet grown up to indulgence in alcoholic beverages, will be struck on the head and knocked down by the descending timbers or jabbed in the abdomen by splintered fragments borne around the field like battering rams by squads of sportsmen considerably advanced in their development themselves.

It is a fine sight, also, to see among these groups a goodly sprinkling of grown-up ladies who have put aside the restraints and immunities of childhood and accepted the obligation to get reeling drunk as befits their years.

The Army-Notre Dame game is a good one to which to take the children so that they may notice, if they are bright, what is to be expected of them in the way of conduct when they are 21 or, say 19. To be sure, childhood's happy hours are fleeting enough and they should not be crowded too fast. But this is a practical world and it is only a day until they must find themselves called upon to take their places as men and women.

Very fair demonstrations of adult conduct may be witnessed at some of the Yale games, also, and I have been told that, on the whole, the conduct of the crowds at the southern games is distinctly mature.

But the most encouraging spectacle that I have seen in connection with the big games in the East is that of young girls of, say 19 or 20, disheveled, pale, sick and either babbling or stretched out unconscious with their boy friends of similar years on the trains bound back to town when the big games are over. Brave souls, they are not yet able to take it as their elders can, but they keep on trying and in a few seasons become qualified women and men, being replaced by other girls and boys a little younger.

Inventor of Radio

Although many inventors were at work on the theory of wireless, Mahlon Loomis, an American, successfully transmitted signals between two kites about 1865 and patented his system in 1872. He failed to develop it, however, and Guglielmo Marconi, who patented and put to practical use his system of wireless communication in 1896, is considered its inventor or discoverer. Dr. Lee De Forest is regarded as the father of the modern radio as he perfected the audion tube, in 1910, through which the voice was successfully transmitted. First regular radio broadcasts were made from KDKA, in Pittsburgh, in the fall of 1920.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Growing With Your Child

Children and Manners

"He is the best-mannered child!" exclaimed his mother's friend, enthusiastically, when the boy was out of hearing. "How in the world do you manage to teach him to be so polite and gracious? My children seem great rude louts when I compare them with him."

There are of course a great many ways in which the end result of beautifully correct manners may be achieved. But let's be careful not to assume that because a child has acquired a set of gestures and mannerisms, of "Thank you's", and "I beg your pardon's", he is, in reality, any more considerate of other people than the child who is more impulsive and lacks noticeable signs of social adaption.

Why do we try to teach manners? Is our underlying aim to make the child more observant of other people's desires, to help him him out of the self-interest of childhood into the broader field of love of others? Or it is merely to make socially acceptable, to pour him into a mold of fashion, so that observers won't look askance at us and put us down as crude and uncouth. If our efforts are based too much on what is or what isn't being "done", on "what other people will think", we can expect only very superficial results. But if we ourselves are sincerely interested in the comfort and happiness of others, if we pass along by our own courteous actions the ideals that we hope will sink in, we needn't be much afraid that this sincerity won't in the end bring genuinely attractive behavior.

However, there are many things the knowledge of which will make children's social life more comfortable and easy. How can a boy, without instruction, be expected to know whether to get off a street car before or after the girl on whom he is anxious to make a good impression? How can a girl be expected to know how to make it easy for the boy on her left to push in her chair, when they are sitting down at a dinner table, if she has been unaccustomed to this bit of attention?

Growing up is an awkward business in some ways, partly because children become adult in size more rapidly than they acquire the habits to go with their seeming grown-up-ness. We can make their absorption into the social life around them simpler and pleasanter if we take pains to help them with the rules of the game. A readable book that gives quantities of suggestions on everyday situations, for both boys and girls is "Etiquette, Jr.," by Quigley and Clark. "This Happened to Me" by Helen Ferris, tells how real girls have faced those problems that crop up as insistently as dandelions. "The Log Cabin Lady" is by an anonymous author whose experiences will be sympathized with by girls who feel that they would profit by more training in social graces. While most boys consider it beneath their dignity to read a book on polite usage, they are pretty glad to absorb a few details, if they are passed on casually and matter-of-factly, rather than as criticisms of mistakes.

Vitamin C Known 200 Years

Evidence that vitamin C exists was obtained nearly two centuries ago by the observation that juice of citrus fruits and apple cider would cure mariner's scurvy.

May Never Happen

"Most of us pass our lives," said Ill Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "in hope or fear, day by day, of what is going to happen tomorrow."

Norway's Capital

The ancient name of Norway's capital was Oslo, and according to Norwegian tradition was founded in 1048 by King Harald Haardraade. In 1624 the city was destroyed by fire and King Christian IV rebuilt it on the opposite side of the Aker river and named it Kristiania, or Christiania in English. After the World war a movement began in Norway to have the name of the capital changed back to Oslo. This was accomplished on July 11, 1924. After January 1, 1925, the official name of the capital was Oslo.

C.C.C. BOYS RAISE $100 TO HELP ELDERLY PAIR

Park Rapids—CCC boys in the Paul Bunyan state forest camp are not those to turn a deaf ear to those in need after they themselves have been recipients of help from the government. In spite of their income of only a few cents a week for themselves the boys dug down in their pockets for those coppers last week and laid down $100 on the line for an elderly couple who had the misfortune to lose their home in a fire. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blanchard, an elderly couple living a mile from the camp had their farm home completely destroyed by fire. Altho the fire detail of the C C C camp was dispatched and arrived in two minutes, it was too late to save anything. The elderly couple were cared for in the camp several days and the boys passed the hat to the tune of $100.

PROVISION MADE FOR INCREASE IN WHEAT ACREAGE

Restrictions Removed for Farmers Who Will Cut 1936 Acreage

Minnesota farmers who have signed wheat adjustment contracts will be relieved from the restrictions of this contract in 1935, providing they sign agreements, with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, to reduce their 1936 wheat acreage by the amount of the 1935 increase. The obligation with respect to 1936, however, will depend on whether or not a 1936 adjustment program is offered.

Notice of this change in wheat contract regulations was received last week by Andrew Boss, state AAA director, University Farm, St. Paul, from C. W. Warburton, director of extension work for the United States Department of Agriculture. A total of 137 contract signers in Pennington county are affected by this new regulation, County Agent, R. M. Douglass said.

Farmers who sign the agreement for 1936 will not only be allowed to plant as much wheat as they wish this spring, but will also be allowed to harvest winter wheat from any acreage they may have planted for pasture last fall, in excess of the acreage required to produce their allotted number of bushels.

An allotment payment of 29 cents per bushel will be paid this year, as in 1934, to farmers who agree to offset their 1935 increase with a corresponding decrease in 1936, or who make the required reduction under their 1935 contracts. This payment, for all Minnesota farmers, will total $1,947,000, or an average of $38.50 per farm.

The restriction on 1935 acreage, set at 10 per cent last August by the Secretary of Agriculture, was lifted to insure an adequate supply of wheat for domestic and export needs, recently made uncertain by continued drouth and windstorms in the western part of the winter and spring wheat belts.

A normal yield on the Minnesota acreage released for planting by the new ruling would amount to about 1,338,000 bushels. Even on the basis of last year's yields, reduced one-third by drouth, the new ruling would permit an increase of about 839,000 bushels in Minnesota wheat production. The average annual Minnesota wheat production for the five years, 1928 to 1932, was 20,946,000 bushels.

HOME PLANTER'S NOOK

Planning the Garden

Planning the garden is most intriguing. With pencil, paper and a good supply of catalogs, a real garden fan can have great enjoyment at little expense, scanning catalogs for new things and making plans for the future. One may decide that he really must have some of the seeds and plants that were omitted last year and he determines to get them by some means or other. After all, two packets of flower seeds, or one good perennial plant and a new variety at that, can be purchased at less than the price of a movie ticket. Garden work becomes more fascinating the longer we engage in it and we are going to have a lot of fun doing it.

First of all, try to remember what took place last year. Were the plants well placed as to height, did the colors clash, and were the results of your planning successful? Above all, was your garden restful to the eye? Consider all of these things, item by item, and jot down the improvements you promised yourself.

It will be impossible in these articles to discuss every plant in the garden but we will do our best in the space at our disposal. For instance, you will want some of the new colors in the Golden Gleam group of nasturtiums. Also we may choose some new varities of Cosmos, in particular one with the arresting name of Orange Flare. In Calenludas, Ageratums, Asters, Godetias, and many other annuals, seedsmen are offering new varieties. Some of these we must grow this summer, so seeds should be ordered early.

Plans for the perennial garden must be somewhat tentative until it is known how well plants have survived the winter. Many annual flowers do best when the seeds have been sown early under protection, such as that furnished by the moderately warm room near a sunny window, by a hotbed, or by a coldframe in a sheltered part of the garden. Later, perennials may be sown in the coldframe.

When starting seeds indoors use shallow boxes or flower pots. Half an inch of sand may be placed in the bottom of the box for drainage. Over this, use a light soil; that is, one containing perhaps one-fourth sand and one fourth leaf mould or peat. Have the soil firm and perfectly level. Do not sow the seed too thickly nor cover it too deeply. In a coldframe, spade the soil thoroughly with a fork, level it with a rake and firm it somewhat with a board.

After sowing, water the soil thoroughly but carefully, so as not to disturb the seeds. Until germination takes place, shade the frame from the bright sun. Occasionally, if seeds are sown thinly in the coldframe, it may not be necessary to transplant the seedlings before being set out in the garden, but for those which have been sown indoors, transplanting into either a flat (a shallow box), or coldframe will be necessary.

MANY PAROLED BUT STILL IN PRISON

Stillwater.—To have served part of a term in prison and be paroled with no job and no place to go is not the best of luck, but is the fate of over 100 men in the state penitentiary at Stillwater. Although not generally known, about that number of prisoners have been paroled in the last year or two, but cannot be released because they have no one who will be responsible for them. The policy of the parole board is that to get his freedom a prisoner must be able to show that he can get a job once outside the prison walls, that he will be able to take care of himself, and that someone will be responsible for him. The 100 men now held in the penitentiary in spite of being paroled have no relatives or friends willing to give them a home, and have no promise of a job or visible means of support, and must remain until such evidence is given of being able to take care of themselves. There are always a few such men, but during the past two years the number has grown considerably.

COFFEE ADS DEBUNKED

Prominent Attorney Makes Own Test

As the result of a six months test, carried out personally by me, I am going to tell you the truth about OLSON'S BEST coffee, and thus show to the coffee-using world a startling discovery.

Every Sunday, for so many Sundays that I cannot now count them, nor do I wish to do so if I could, I, together with that part of the radio-listening world that could, or still can be patient with noisy and nosey nonsense about— coffee, have been solemnly advised to avoid stale coffee by buying only coffee with the ——— upon the label of the can.

Un——— coffee, according to the air-wave solos, duets, choruses, monologues, dialogues and ensembles, had been, was, and might well continue to be the cause of bad temper, nervous itch, loss of sleep, loss of job, and even a potential ground of divorce. Now, since I like good coffee, what was I to do and not run the risk of becoming a bear, a neurotic, a sleep killer, a member of the unhappy army of unemployed, and, worst of all, a party to an action in divorce.

And now for the solution of my sad plight.

Six months ago I laid in a six months supply of OLSON'S BEST coffee in glass jars. In my home we used this supply of coffee as coffee drinkers usually use coffee, —once, twice or three times a day. The last pound of coffee, which is just being finished, is, naturally and logically enough, at least six months old, isn't it? Well, I merely wish to tell you that the ——— coffee yarn is a hoax, without rhyme or reason, and I further wish to tell you that OLSON'S BEST coffee in glass jars is truly "everlastingly fresh coffee," as you say. At least I have found it so after a personally conducted experiment lasting somewhat more than six months.

It would seem, then, that there is now actual proof beyond the shadow of a reasonable doubt that there is at least one brand of coffee in this world—I mean OLSON'S BEST COFFEE of course—that is, can and will be deliciously fresh in glass jars at least six months after it leaves the blender's warehouse—just as it happened in my case.

This letter came to us unsolicited. We have the original in our file for inspection by those who are interested.

FARM AND HOME TAXES REDUCED UNDER NEW BILL

Legislature Considering Tax Program to Raise 24 Million a Year

GROSS INCOME TAX IS HELD IMPRACTICABLE

Two Per Cent Retail Sales Levy is Feature of Proposed Law

Provisions of a tax replacement program which will raise $24,000,000 a year and cut about 25 per cent off the taxes on homes, farms and other general property here and in other communities throughout the state were outlined in a communication from the state capitol received today.

The program is the result of weeks of study of the tax situation by tax committees in the senate and house and probably will be the plan adopted by the Legislature, according to F. J. Miller, Little Falls, chairman of the senate committee on taxes, and R. T. Hart, Moose Lake, chairman of the house committee on taxes.

Mr. Hart and Mr. Miller made public an outline of the program which has been worked out by subcommittees of the two houses and asked that it be published to give residents of this community a chance to go over its general details. Only a little time remains of the present session, and the two chairmen decided that a report of this kind would be the only way to reach large numbers of people in the country communities.

"The $24,000,000 replacement fund provided under this program will be used for two purposes", the statement said. "Part of it will be used for state expenses, so that the state tax levy on general property can be eliminated. The balance will be distributed to school districts throughout the state, probably on the basis of school population, and should make possible an annual payment of about $10 per pupil yearly.

"The state tax levy was more than 11 mills last year. Elimination of this levy and the additional school aid that would be distributed by the state should make possible a reduction of close to 25 per cent in the taxes on homes and farms of the state.

"The replacement bill also will include a statutory tax limitation provision, which will hold expenditures down, and which will guarantee absolutely that any money obtained from the new taxes will be deducted from the amount of the general property tax levy. A bill to control public expenditures also is contemplated as part of the program.

"We have adopted a comprehensive, rounded program, which we believe will provide the relief needed without putting an unjust burden on any group of citizens.

"A feature of the plan is an increase in the net income rates, in-

SAVINGS AND LOAN GROUP HERE RANKS FOURTH IN STATE

M. J. Waldron of Federal Agency Confers With Sec'y. Dahlen

M. J. Waldron of the Federal Savings and Loan Division of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Washington, D. C., called on Stanton R. Dahlen, secretary of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association last Thursday. He was very much impressed with the progress being made by the local association and stated that of the twenty new federals organized in Minnesota to date the local association ranks fourth.

Federal savings and loan associations are organized under the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933, and as of February 28, 1935 there were 703 Federals in the United States having total assets of $190,512,869. Federals operate under strict government supervision and regulation. As a further safeguard, Congress has set up the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance corporation for the purpose of insuring savings and investments in these federals and for which the sum of $100,000,000, has been appropriated as capital stock for the organization.

Mr. Waldron stated that the growth of federal savings and loan associations in the United States has been phenomenal, and that they can be regarded as a community asset since they lend encouragement to community thrift and home ownership through long term low cost monthly payment mortgages.

Refunding of County Bonds and Warrants is Nearing Completion

The process of refunding county ditch bonds and warrants aggregating $330,000 continued last week when a special meeting of the county board was held to arrange for the retirement of a block of $112,000 worth of bonds with funds received Thursday by County Treasurer John Gullingsrud from State Auditor Stafford King. Bonds aggregating $72,000 had been called for payment a few weeks ago, and when refinancing is completed a total of $218,000 in ditch bonds will have been called for payment. Of the $330,000 total in bonds and warrants, $250,000 is being supplied by the state board of investment and the remaining $80,000 by buyers of the bond issue now being distributed locally.

WEATHER STATION TO BE LOCATED IN CITY THIS SUMMER

Neset Advised by Senator Shipstead of Government's Plans

Thief River Falls next July will again be the home of a federal weather bureau station, it was announced in a letter received Friday by Olaf Neset from United States Senator Henrik Shipstead. The service had been maintained in the city up to a few years ago.

Senator Shipstead inclosed a letter from W. R. Gregg, chief of the United States weather bureau in Washington, saying that the sectional director in Minneapolis had recommended the re-establishment of the station here, and that the delay in its opening is due to a shortage of instrumental equipment.

Mr. Gregg said that several applications from local people for the position of observer were on file in Minneapolis and that an investigation is now being conducted. He said that some of the applicants had offered to undertake the service without compensation.

UNEMPLOYMENT BILLS TOPIC AT W.P.A. MEETING

Workman's Group Requests Scale of Auto Licenses Urged in House

A large gathering attended the meeting of the Workman's Protective association Monday evening when the Lundeen unemployment insurance bill now pending in Congress was discussed. During the time the Lundeen bill is pending, the local association is supporting the Bennett bill covering the same subject now in the state legislature.

A resolution was adopted opposing the proposal to increase the personnel of the state bureau of criminal apprehension from 12 to 40 members on the ground that the plan would permit agents to enter any county without consulting the sheriff. Another resolution favored the house automobile license plan rather than the senate proposal for the reason that the house bill would provide more work for unemployed men.

President William J. Douville said today that interest in the affairs of the association is on the increase and that many new members are being received. The next meeting will be held in the court room at the court house Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

COUNTY SHARE IN RELIEF COST FIXED AT $8,565

Quotas for Each County for Year Are Decided in St. Paul

FOWLER REPRESENTS NORTHWEST COUNTIES

Federal and State Governments to Supply Greater Part of Funds

Pennington county's contribution to relief needs for the current year was fixed at $8,565 Saturday at a conference in which County Auditor Harry Fowler participated in the office of acting State ERA Administrator L. P. Zimmerman in St. Paul.

It was estimated that a total expenditure of $74,706 will be required to meet relief needs in the county this year, with all but the county's relatively small share being supplied from state and federal sources. In a survey recently completed it had been recommended that the Pennington county share be fixed at $22,170, but this sum was reduced Saturday on the basis of figures relative to the county's financial condition supplied by Mr. Fowler, who also supplied figures relative to 13 other counties in this section.

Corresponding reductions in county quotas from original proposals were also made in other Northwest counties, the total allotment for the 14 counties being cut from $469,123 to $190,550. It was estimated that the total requirements of these counties for relief purposes will be slightly in excess of $1,500,000.

Original estimates and final figures arrived at for contributions of adjoining counties follow:

	Orig	Final
Marshall	$38,068	$13,324
Red Lake	78,001	7,874
Roseau	25,390	7,614

INDEPENDENT BALL TEAM PROPOSED IN CITY THIS SUMMER

Meeting with Gary Promoter Scheduled for Friday Evening

That Thief River Falls will have an independent baseball team this summer after the lapse of several years was indicated following a preliminary meeting Monday evening after which solicitors secured pledges of most of the necessary funds.

Favorable action was tentatively taken on the proposal made last week by "Shorty" Dekko of Gary, widely known as a manager of baseball teams. He offered to put a first class team in the field and to stage a series of Sunday games for a period of three months beginning late in May.

Mr. Dekko asked that local businessmen contribute $100 a month to the support of the team and put the diamond on the fair grounds in proper condition, in addition to which the team would get the gate receipts.

Appointed to solicit contributions was a committee including W. H. Mann, A. W. Mickelson, Roy Lambert, Harold Olson and Alex Campbell. A second committee to arrange for the diamond is made up of Frank Rinkel, O. C. Paulson and Stanton Dahlen. Mr. Dekko has been asked to appear at a meeting in the Elks club rooms Friday evening when plans will be further developed.

DISCUSS NEW BILL DIVIDING GAS TAX WITH TOWNSHIPS

Veterans Administration Attorney Addresses Civic Group Thursday

A bill pending in the state legislature, under the terms of which one-half of the counties' share of gas tax funds would be divided among the townships was brought up for discussion at the Civic and Commerce association luncheon Thursday by J. A. Erickson, county highway engineer, following which the matter was referred jointly to the legislative and road committees for consideration.

In the discussion is was pointed out that the proposed plan would call for an investment in road-building machinery by the various townships, and that an effect of dividing up the money would be to discourage the development of a coordinated highway system.

Lyle Zumwinkle, chief attorney for the United States veterans administration in Minneapolis, was introduced by O. C. Paulson and spoke briefly in explanation of the efforts of his organization to meet the needs of the former service men. Referring to the bonus battle now being waged in Congress, he expressed the opinion that the opposition to the payment of the adjusted service compensation certificates has its origin in a small group of wealthy men in New York City.

COUNCIL ACTS ON VARIOUS MATTERS TUESDAY EVENING

Designate Main av. from 4th to Sixth St. as "No Parking" Area

A variety of matters of minor importance came up for consideration at the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday evening, some of them being referred to committees for disposal.

Bills remaining unpaid in connection with the construction of the CCC mess hall up Red Lake river last fall, amounting to approximately $1,000, were submitted to the council after having been rejected by state ERA headquarters. It was decided to discuss the matter with representatives of the four other cities down the river next Wednesday at a meeting of the Red Lake River Development association in Crookston.

Acting on a request from the state highway department, the council adopted a resolution designating as a "No parking" district the narrow section of Main av.N. from Fourth to Sixth sts. Another resolution was adopted at the request of the Workmen's Protective association, endorsing H. F. 120 in the legislature, a bill providing unemployment, old age and social insurance.

Bad walking conditions at present on the fills leading to the new bridge came up for discussion, and the matter was referred to the street commissioner. The building committee was instructed to have specifications prepared for repairing the roof of the library.

RADNIECKI WINS DECISION FROM OLSON TUESDAY

Loser Enters Ring Under Handicap Totaling 23 Pounds

In a surprise finish after being out-wrestled, Stanley Radniecki of Oklee won a two out of three fall decision over Marcus Olson of this city at the local athletic club rooms Tuesday evening.

Scaling 142, Olson entered the ring under a 23 pound handicap to take the first fall in twelve minutes by out smarting Radniecki, who weighed 165, in one of the finest main-go events seen under the auspices of the local club. Continuing a smooth and clever style of offense Olson held a nice edge towards the second fall until Radniecki caught him with a body lock after seven minutes of grappling. This hold the 'body lock' coupled with his wide weight margin gave Radniecki a deadly weapon that his lighter opponent could not evade. Making the same mistake in the third fall Olson again lost the fall when Radniecki pinned him with the body lock after eleven minutes of wild fighting that had a tense crowd in an uproar.

In the semi-final Bob Christie, 144, of Angus and Casimer Radniecki, 165, of Oklee, put on a whirlwind match for twenty minutes. Throwing each other out of the ring numerous times these boys showed a great deal of ability as they wrestled to a draw.

The last preliminary, with Dale Johnson, 160, and Gordon Sunders, 162, of Frazee, featured the senior events for sparkling speed and action. Following two minutes of hair-raising action the match came to a sudden finish with Sunders winning with a body slam.

Other preliminaries were John Foster winning a fall over Frank Freed in four minutes. Martin Wedul, 153, of Hazel, threw Norman Christofferson, 149, of this city, with a cross body lock after twelve minutes. Harvey Egness, 142, of this city, lost a one fall decision to Harold Strobble, 145, also of this city, in seven minutes. The winning holds were the cross body lock and the short-arm scissors.

Promoter Bill LaFave acted as announcer and referees were Harry Johnson and Joe Soderberg.

Lively Response to Ad Offering Farm for Rent

That there is a brisk demand by renters for farms in this section and an equally brisk response to classified ads in the Times was proved last week to the satisfaction of Dan Stonehouse of Oklee, who had advertised a small tract for rent. Immediately after the paper appeared he sent a note to the publishers saying, "Please don't publish my ad any more, as I rented the place the day the paper came out and have had many inquiries since."

BACKSTROM CASE FINALLY SETTLED AFTER FIVE YEARS

Supreme Court Holds Youth Was Accidentally Shot in October, 1929

A finding of accidental death in the shooting of Alfred Backstrom, Thief River Falls youth, was sustained Friday by the state supreme court in affirming a $4,960.28 insurance verdict for the lad's father, Nels G. Backstrom of Alvarado.

Young Backstrom was found dead from a gunshot wound October 7, 1929, a half year after he had taken out an insurance policy with the New York Life Insurance company on terms of added indemnity for death by violence or accident. Two previous trials in Pennington county district court resulted in verdicts of suicide.

The supreme court held that the alleged error of the lower court in granting a third trial could not be reviewed, and that the evidence justified the finding of the jury that death was accidental and not suicidal.

The Word "Sicker"

As the comparative of sick, the word sicker has been in use in English speech since 1450. It is to be found recorded in Lovelich's Grail, 1-1, folio 107. At that time it was spelled sykker. A century later we find, in Grafton's Chronicles, issued in 1568, Vol. II p. 493, the following: "In this meanwhile, King Henry waxed sicker and sicker." Shakespeare in his play Richard II (1591), act 2, sc. 1, l. 91, made use of the term. Sick, sicker, and sickest are the correct forms of the positive, comparative, and superlative of sick.—Literary Digest.

Aesop of Fables Fame

According to tradition, Aesop of the Aesop's fables was a Greek fabalist of the Sixth century B. C. represented as a dwarf and originally a slave. Samos and other places claimed the honor of being his birthplace. After obtaining his freedom he visited Lydia and Greece. Of the so-called fables of Aesop there have been several editions. Some of those attributed to him are drawn from Egyptian sources older by 800 years than Aesop.

Fish Do Not See Well

Both the sense of smell and the sense of touch are more highly developed in fishes than is their sense of sight, writes G. H. Turner in the Kansas City Times. In fact, their sense of sight is limited mainly to perception of changing lights and shadows, as evidenced by how quickly they snap at a moving object in comparison to an object not in motion. It is for this reason, reports the United States bureau of fisheries, that the sense of smell along with touch, plays a greater role in the life of a fish, so far as obtaining its food is concerned, than that of sight.

Trumpet Was Important Even in the Trojan War

The trumpet was widely known in ancient times, playing its part in the fall of Jericho, and even in the Trojan war. Trumpets were martial and royal instruments through the Middle ages, and the trumpeters' guild became important and influential.

The trumpet is a cylindrical tube about 8 feet long doubled back on itself for ease in handling. The trumpet has three valves or pistons, the use of which enables the player to produce all the tones in the chromatic scale within the compass of the instrument.

The trumpet, like the horn, is provided with a mute, a pear-shaped affair that can be held in the bell in the place of the performer's fist.

The cornet, sometimes mistaken for the trumpet, notes a writer in the Washington Post, is a tapering brass tube a little over four feet in length. Its natural key is B-flat, though crooks may be used to set it in A, A-flat or G. The cornetist can give rapid passages, trills, and other embellishments with great ease, but the tone color of the cornet is below that of the trumpet, which has a bold, martial tone that can be heard through the entire orchestra.

In the classical period of Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven, the trumpet was not very prominent. Wagner employed it extensively in some of his operas, and he used muted trumpets to imitate the tiny trumpets of the toymakers' guild in "The Meistersingers."

Irritation of Mantle Is Cause of Pearl's Growth

A pearl is a growth in a pearl oyster or other shellfish caused by a persistent irritation of its mantle. The persistent irritation which causes pearl formation is usually due to the presence of some foreign matter which has entered the shell—sometimes a grain of sand or a fragment of broken shell. Probably in most cases it is the larvae of a parasite worm or a minute crustacean. Whatever the nature of the cause, the mollusk endeavors to reduce the irritation by inclosing it in a layer of the same kind of motre of pearl nacre of which the inside of its shell is made. Once started, the covering of nacre continues to grow by the addition of layer over layer until after a lapse of years the minute seed pearl formed may have grown into a pearl of large size.

As a natural pearl is a consequence of the accidental introduction of an irritant, it would seem that pearls could be cultivated by merely introducing the irritant by artificial means. But the successful cultivation of pearls has proved to be a complicated process accomplished by the Japanese only after years of study and experiment. The nucleus of the culture pearl is a small seed pearl or it may be a minute ball of mother of pearl or other substance. This is first inclosed in a sack made from the mantle of a pearl oyster.

Changing Civilizations

Jerusalem and the Holy Land have been violent enough, from the days of Isaiah and Sennacherib to the present, but the marks of violence are overshadowed by the peaceful reverence that lies over the land. A crusader's tower reminds one of the Saracens and Richard the Lion-Hearted. The British cemetery recalls the World war. Jaffa was besieged by Napoleon. But the most important memories are those surrounding the many Christian, Jewish and Mohammedan shrines. Bethlehem, the Mount of Olives, the Garden of Gethsemane, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Mosque of Omar, the Wailing Wall, Rachel's tomb, Bethany, the Sea of Galilee, round out a picture of changing civilizations.—Chicago Daily News.

Cracking of Oil

The cracking of oil is said to have been discovered by a refinery workman who day-dreamed on the job and let the still get too hot and build up too much pressure. How this careless person escaped being blasted into the next world is not told by the legend. As a matter of fact, the first successful cracking process was patented by Doctor Burton of Standard Oil about 1912. Cracking consists of heating the heavier fractions of oil under high pressure.

In the State Senate

By Sen. E. L. Tungseth

I shall confine my review this week to two important matters which lately have been up for action in the Senate. One of these is that the so-called Mud Lake reservation project. I belive that all the State of Minnesota and at least the northern section of our state has been intensely interested in this project which will set aside some 62,000 acres of sub marginal lands in the Mud Lake and Thief Lake area for a federal migratory wild fowl refuge. The federal government has appropriated [illegible] for this project, but because of legal technicalities it was necessary for the State of Minnesota to acquire title to the lands by regular condemnation proceedings. This required an initial investment by the State of Minnesota, which investment eventually will be refunded back to the state from the federal government. No special appropriation was required because funds were available from the public shooting grounds fund out of which this temporary appropriation was made. The senators who sponsored in this project were [illegible], Rice, Tungseth. We passed this measure as it came back amended from the house as house file number 965. It has now been signed by the Governor and the necessary legal procedure is already under way and the project has become a certainty.

A second matter of importance is that of rural credit legislation. Just how far advanced such legislation is in the House, I do not know. In the Senate we have introduced a committee bill which contains major features of all proposed legislation relative to rural credit lands. This committee bill will be known as Senate File No. 1325. Anyone who wishes a copy of the bill may write in for such a copy. It is an attempt on part of the senate committee to present in compact form all the necessary and important features relative to this matter. Said bill includes some of the features of what has been known as the Rockne bill, but no one bill and no one author has been given preference in the preparation of the committee bill. Neither can any one member of this committee claim that all his proposals have been accepted. [illegible] the chairman [illegible] has been chairman of the [illegible] committee and [illegible] chairman of the committee and Senate File No. 1325 has been introduced by me on behalf of the committee. Compromise measures may be necessary in order to concur with final legislation from the house and we trust that any compromise that may become necessary will strengthen rather than weaken the bill.

Chinaman's Chance

"Chinaman's chance" is generally employed in the sense of "a very poor chance" or "no chance at all." It is thought that the phrase had its origin in the early mining days in the West, when the Chinese, who were in a hopeless minority, had no chance at all if caught in any infraction of the law.

Use of Tobacco Defended, Condemned for 450 Years

The use of tobacco has been condemned and defended for the entire span of the 450 years since its adoption by the European nations. But tobacco traces its ancestry back to 2000 B. C., when the Egyptians burned sweet herbs in their temples. The Romans and Greeks also followed this custom, and the former initiated the practice of burning medicinal herbs. In America, says a writer in the Washington Post, the Mexican Maya tribes, which flourished from the Fourth to the Seventh centuries A. D., also burned herbs in rituals—a practice so common among all the peoples of the New world that a thousand years later the popes of Rome issued bulls forbidding smoking in church on the grounds that it was a pagan rite.

The real red-letter day of tobacco history was that on which Columbus discovered the Antilles and saw the natives smoking. However, it was not until five years later—in 1497—that one Romano Pane brought the first account of smoking to Europe. In 1510 Oviedo brought specimens of the tobacco plant to Portugal, where, strangely enough, it was regarded as merely a kind of potted blossom of no practical value. In 1559 Jean Nicot, French ambassador to Portugal, discovered that the leaves had some curative qualities and introduced them into France.

Playing Cards European; Known in 14th Century

Cards were not introduced by the Saracens, or from the East, but were of indigenous European origin, and are first mentioned, although probably known previously, at the very end of the Fourteenth century, says the Boston Herald.

The earliest marks for the suits were cups, money, swords and clubs, supposed to represent faith, charity, justice and fortitude, or more probably meaning nothing at all, but taken accidentally from objects of common occurrence.

The Germans used hearts, bells, leaves and acorns. It was the French who introduced what we call spades, hearts, clubs and diamonds. The spade on cards owes its shape to one source and its name to another. It appears that it is the leaf of the German marks, to which the French gave the name of pique, from its resemblance to the head of a pike. In England the symbol survived, but the name is the Italian denomination for their corresponding suit of swords.

The English club is in shape nearly the German acorn, but retains the Italian name, which actually agrees with the symbol of a club upon their cards. Hearts descended from the old cups, and diamonds from the ancient pieces of money.

Million Men Cross Bridge

Abydos, an ancient city of Asia Minor, was the scene of the greatest military display of early history. It was there that Xerxes crossed the Hellespont in 480 B. C. Throwing a bridge of boats a mile long across the intervening water, Xerxes was prepared to march his army over when waves dashed his bridge apart during a heavy storm. Angered, the mighty leader had the waves subjected to 300 lashes, after which chains were cast into the waves. Then a second and stronger bridge was erected and wine was poured on the water in a peace offering. When all was ready, the army started on the march. For a week, soldiers from 40 nations, all attired in their own national costume or uniform, passed in ceaseless line across the bridge as Xerxes sat on a throne and watched. It is estimated that his army numbered a million warriors.

Primitive Beliefs Retained

Many primitive tribes still believe that white men are the ghosts of black men, that apes are a race of people, and that the only natural deaths are suicide, homicide and fatal accidents, all others being the work of evil spirits.—Collier's Weekly.

"Going West"

The expression "Going West," meaning death, is variously derived from the ancient Egyptians, the Greeks and the American Indians. It was a common term in the Boer war among the soldiers.

Rising Wolf Mountain

Rising Wolf mountain, which lifts its multicolored and cloud capped summit high above the shores of Two Medicine lake, gets its name from the sleeping peculiarities of a white man who "went native." He is also said to have been the first white man to have set foot in what is now Glacier National park. The man was Hugh Monroe, a Scotchman, who long ago set traps along the streams of the northwest plains and in the rugged mountain region which the Blackfeet called the "Land of the Shining Mountains."

Use of Manganese

"A 24-lb. sack of [illegible] Flour? Yes, madam... Yes, Rex Flour is accepted by the Committee on Foods of the American Medical Association. That's a guarantee of purity, and quality, and truthfulness of advertising claims."

PLUMMER

Basket Ball Banquet

Mrs. O. H. Langlie, assisted by Mrs. Margaret LaVoy and Mrs. Mary Johnson, entertained the Plummer High School basketball team at the annual banquet at the Langlie home Saturday evening. A delightful dinner was served by the ladies and enjoyed to the utmost by the boys and guests. The feature of the dinner was a large angel food cake decorated for the occasion. The boys found it necessary to save the cake until later in the evening because they had gorged themselves on the chicken and other niceties prepared.

Following the dinner, the team listened to the broadcast of the state high school tournament. At the conclusion of the games a social time was enjoyed, and then the boys attacked the cake. While the boys were getting their fill of the cake, they elected Edwin Langlie captain of the team for the next year. Captain-elect Langlie, Captain Leland LaVoy, Superintendent Ripple, Coach McCrady and the departing letter-men gave short talks before the session broke up. The letters will be given out before the assembly at some time in the near future. A fine evening was enjoyed by everyone.

The Plummer high school basket ball team, Supt. A. M. Ripple, Coach Harold M. McCrady and several local basketball fans went to Crookston by bus, Sunday afternoon, to see the basketball game between the Harlem Globe Trotters and the Crookston Gunners.

Rental Rates and Terms for Leasing State Trust Fund Lands Are Outlined

A large number of inquiries are being received by the Division of Lands and Minerals of the Department of Conservation relative to the renting and leasing of state-owned lands, according to F. A. Wildes, Director. Rates and terms were outlined by Mr. Wildes as follows:

"For farming purposes, $1 per acre for the first 20 acres, 50 cents per acre for the next 10 acres and 25 cents per acre for all over 30 acres.

"For hay or pasture purposes, $4 per forty acres; on government lots, 10 cents per acre.

"Use of buildings or use of one acre as building site, $12 per year."

"These rates apply for 1935", Mr. Wildes said. "Rates will be higher in 1936."

Leases are issued for one year only, and only cover the growing season in the case of hay or pasture leases. All leases terminate on September 30th. As a drouth relief measure, the state offers its lands for hay and pasture leasing at a low rental to those actually needing the same for their herds and in no case to speculators.

All leases are subject to the sale or redemption of the land at any time. Also in the case of interest delinquent lands, they are subject to whatever rights the holder of the state land sale certificate or his assigns may possess. If the land is sold, redeemed, or reclaimed by the contract holder before the lease has had the use of the land the rental will be refunded.

All rentals are payable in cash in advance. The state cannot issue leases on a share of the crop basis.

RATES MUST BE REVISED

In only one city of more than 2,500 pop- ation in Minnesota, operating municipal ght plants, is the consumer cost of elec- tricity higher than in Thief River Falls, ccording to a recent survey of rates in ities that have operated their own power lants for twenty years or more. The sur- y also reveals the fact that Thief River alls is one of the few cities that has not duced its light rate during the past twen- y years. The cost of electricity for light- g purposes is just as high now as it was 1914. Another interesting fact brought t by the survey is that, of ten cities nging from 2,500 to 5,000 population, ief River Falls is the only city that has t made a substantial reduction in its hting rate since 1930. Here is the table owing the cost of forty k.w.h. under the spective residence lighting schedules.

ame of City	Cost of 40 K.W.H. 1934	1930
troit Lakes	2.25	2.81
o Harbors	2.10	3.30
e Earth	2.71	1.10
xandria	2.72	3.60
epy Eye	2.80	4.00
chfield	2.80	3.60
orthington	2.75	3.85
rshall	3.10	3.83
ief River Falls	3.49	3.49
Verne	3.70	1.80

Among other things, the above table ves that while the lighting rate in this y was pretty well in line with rates arged in other cities four years ago, at present time the local rate is definitely of line. HAT WILL BE THE 1941 DEMAND?

The "News of Ten Years Ago" column inds us that back in 1925 local people e talking about the million kilowatt pro- tion at the power plant. If we knew within sonable limits what the demand for elec- ity would be ten years from now it ld simplify the problem of buying addi- al equipment. That demand will double in during the next ten years is of course ery remote possibility, although it is sonable to believe that rate reduction ld result in a more rapid upswing than have experienced. We do know for a tainty, however, that the increase of the ten years has been a steady one, each showing a substantial gain. This nat- increase will undoubtedly continue. sidering this, along with the probable t of lower rates, it may not be far of line to predict four million kilowatt uction by the end of another decade. be prepared for less than three million vatts when more equipment is added d be short sighted.

IS IT SIMPLY WISH-THINKING?
(Northfield News)

Thousands of letters and petitions are reported to be pouring in upon members of congress asking that the Townsend Old Age Pension Plan be modified, so as to reduce from sixty to fifty-five the age at which people will be eligible to receive a pension of $200 a month. Supporters of the plan claim that they have twenty million signatures petitioning congress for its enactment.

Under the Townsend plan, both men and women over sixty years of age, free from habitual criminality, would be eligible to receive the pension upon condition that they would take an oath to spend within the confines of the United States the entire amount of their pensions each month. It is estimated that from eight to ten million people would be eligible to receive the pension.

The money needed to make the plan operative would be raised by what is variously termed a sales tax, a transaction tax, or a turn-over tax. From twenty to twenty-four billion dollars a year would be required to operate the plan, which its supporters say would quickly rout the depression and restore prosperity.

Wesley Styles, a consulting actuary of Minneapolis, who has analyzed the plan, asserts that the debt which the government must be prepared to assume upon the adoption of the plan is $253,696,121,833,13. He bases his finding upon the mortality tables of the old-line life insurance companies. The sum indicated by Styles is roughly six billion dollars more than the estimated gross total of our national wealth, which is placed at 217 billion. The Townsend plan would call for pensions equal to one-tenth of this figure each year.

These vast figures, to the average person, are more or less incomprehensible, but, if true, would seem to indict the Townsend plan supporters of proposing a plan which, while raising glowing hopes in the hearts of millions of sincere people, will bring a tragic disillusionment by the simple fact that it cannot be made to work. Undoubtedly the widespread belief in the workability of the Townsend plan must be attributed to the fact that all of us easily believe that which we earnestly desire.

Whatever the economics of the Townsend plan may be, however, it appears to possess a possible social defect; namely, that it will discourage thrift and saving during a person's productive years. A contributory system of old-age insurance would avoid that weakness.

RESTORING THE RAILROADS
(Jesse H. Jones)

The railroads are not only necessary but they employ a great many people, directly and indirectly—more perhaps than any other industry, notwithstanding possible claims to the contrary by the automotive industry. Without arguing this point, nothing would stimulate business quite so much, and re-employ people to the same extent as an increase in railroad traffic sufficient to give them money to spend for equipment and maintenance and for improving their property generally.

It should be remembered, too, that railroads pay a very large amount of taxes necessary in the support of State, county and municipal governments, including our public schools, while exactly the contrary is true of highways, which are built and maintained with tax money.

SAVE A MILLION
(Waseca Herald)

Whatever may be the ultimate faults and shortcomings of the present legislature, it will have to its credit, according to present reports, the saving of a million dollars for Minnesota taxpayers. Four members of that body made a trip to Washington last week and explained the need of a million dollar federal appropriation for live stock feeding purposes in the drought stricken regions of the state. Not only has their request been granted but the state is given assurance that the federal government will take care of the entire situation, whatever the cost may be. As a result of the visit, the delegation was convinced that the farmer has a real friend in the White House at present. Of course this money, as well as all other federal appropriations, must come out of the taxpayers' pockets. But it will be much easier for Minnesota people if the load is divided among 48 states. So chalk up a million dollars to the credit of the conservative majority of the present legislature.

We political economists know as a truism that "inflation" leads to higher prices; or, that money is worth less. In human experience, however, the dollar bill is a dollar and the more of them there are in the pocket the easier it is to spend some of them. This is the law and the gospel of monetary depressions and expansions. The final outcome of "inflation" of uncontrolled character, such as that in Great Britain in the last century, and still more ludicrously and destructively reached by Germany after the World War, is the total wreck of values. Paper money printed by the government becomes practically worthless, even when offered in terms of millions. May the United States never "go off" its basis of gold and silver, is the fervent prayer of every informed and straight thinking person. The inevitable end of that course is financial creeping paralysis, with a slow and very painful recovery.—Fergus Falls Tribune.

Secretary Wallace says that the AAA has gone about as far as it can go in the way of raising farm prices, and now proposes that industrial prices be reduced by speeding up industrial production about 50 per cent. Such a program would indeed be pleasing to the farmer who has taken the short end of the deal for a number of years, but as a matter of economic planning, it runs counter to all the policies of the New Deal. The administration has used inflationary measures to boost prices, has imposed the NRA, shortened hours and raised wages to boost prices, and to now say that it will further regiment industry, and scare the liver out of what little recovery there is, borders on the absurd. With farm prosperity already here for some sections and in prospect for other sections, industry will look up and go after the business if freed from government meddling. When industry begins to hum, employment will resume, there will be a greater demand for farm products which will sustain and perhaps increase the present level of farm prices, and the ascending spiral of recovery will really get under way. The business and industrial machine can't run while it is being tinkered with.—Morris Tribune.

When one speaks of public opinion one speaks of a vague, intangible force, the operations of which sometimes seem to be based upon no fixed principle or upon no universal formula of expression. Yet once in operation, public opinion becomes the mightiest of all forces, which it requires no particular sensitiveness to apprehend. Public opinion has at last begun to express itself in the field of crime. It is not an opinion that impinges alone upon the federal government. If I mistake not the signs, it is beginning to affect all governmental authorities throut the nation, whether their jurisdiction be great or small. There is a demand for action in each particular jurisdiction, for the most expert co-ordination of which the authorities are capable. These large public expectations should find an unreserved welcome on the part of law-enforcement officials, for there is thus provided an encouragement and a stimulation to such an administration of justice as will meet the needs of modern American life.—Homer S. Cummings, Attorney General of the United States.

LEGISLATIVE LETTER
By R. W. Hitchcock

The House and Senate played battledore and shuttlecock with the motor vehicle license issue in 1933 for a good many weeks. There is a prospect that the two bodies will be deadlocked over the same issue for some time this session. The House has voted to keep the same minimum rates that have prevailed during the last two years but to tax other cars at the original 2.4 per cent rate, an estimated tapping of the motor vehicle owner's pocket-book to the extent of $1,200,000. The Senate has voted to continue the low rates of the last two years. The issue now goes to conference, where it was for so long two years ago.

The arguments advanced for higher motor vehicle license rates are that the highway department urgently needs the money, that money, that Minnesota will lose the federal grant of $3,500,000 unless it is able to match that amount with highway funds for construction purposes, and that the loss of this money and the inability to carry on construction will defeat the employment of several thousand persons. The arguments in favor of the low rates that have prevailed the last two years are that in any event Minnesota will lose, under the federal statute, only one-third of the $3,500,000 federal grant, that this tax reduction is the only tax reduction which the present Legislature will be able to grant to the people of the state, and finally that the people generally desire the rates of the last two years to continue. Added to these arguments is a reluctance to grant additional funds to a department whose activities are so tainted with politics.

Almost from the very beginning of the discussion of this matter back in 1933, it has been a political issue. Other factors, like road contractors, have a finger in the pie, but politics has both hands in.

Lest we forget, turn back the Legislative pages to the winter of 1933. The House that year was dominated by the Farmer-Labor party. The members of the Motor Vehicle committee, fresh from their constituents, met twenty-three strong to consider the reduction of he motor vehicle license tax, a reduction vociferously demanded by the people back home. The committee voted twenty-three strong to make a vigorous slash in the tax. Twenty-three members of the committee made twenty-three speeches. They were emphatic speeches, they were fervid and some of them were florid, they were all of one accord—the people were demanding and the people must have a reduction in their motor vehicle tax. Enthusiastically and unanimously they reported out a bill providing for a radical cut.

But when that bill came up for a vote on the floor of the House those committee members had heard the voice of the leader of the Farmer-Labor party and the vox populi was forgotten. Fifteen of the twenty-three who had so vociferously demanded a radical reduction in committee faced to the right about and voted, under the party lash, for a merely nominal reduction.

That same political cleavage divides the Legislature upon the motor vehicle license issue today. The Farmer-Labor party demands more money for the Farmer-Labor highway department, notoriously infested with politics, to spend; the opposition is exceedingly reluctant to vote to so politically minded a body additional public funds.

Here and there a rare Farmer-Labor Solon listens to the plea of the people and votes for a low license fee; here and there a highway enthusiast of the Independent-Progressive faction desperately takes a chance and votes more money to a department that he distrusts. But politics looms large and more or less colors the issue.

Two years ago Governor Olson surprised the then Civil Administration committee, dominated at that time by Farmer-Labor partisans, by crashing the gate of precedent, appearing before the committee and earnestly arguing for a transfer of the motor vehicle license department from Mike Holm, Secretary of State, to the highway department. Notable among the arguments advanced by the Governor before the committee were these: that the highway department had unused space where the motor vehicle division could be amply accommodated, that the highway department had, during the weeks of the winter when the rush for motor vehicle licenses is the greatest, employees whose time is not fully occupied and who could be used to do the work of the motor vehicle license division, and that (and this was the Governor's blue ribbon argument) $100,000 could be saved to the state by the transfer which he proposed.

The committee voted the change but the rather negligent, shiftless Farmer-Labor House of 1933 never got around to vote on the proposal. Perhaps even such a partisan body as the House of 1933 thought that it was a rather brash move to transfer the department from Mike Holm, who had made a national record for efficiency and economy in its administration, to a department which under its new partisan management was even then smelling to high heaven of politics.

It was Governor Olson's statement of unused room and idle help in the highway department which made the renting of additional quarters for the new drivers' license department at $12,240, and the setting up of a bureau thickly peopled with new employees costing the state all told about $8,000 per month, such a stunning surprise to the people of the state.

Assistant Director E. P. Lee of the drivers' license division appeared before the Civil Administration committee last week and explained the workings of the division.

Like his chief, Gil Carmichael, the canny Scot of the purring voice and the steely blue eye, Assistant Director Lee was very proud of the clover combination application and driver's license card which the division had evolved. They really have a right to be proud of it, for it ingeniously compels the applicant for a driver's license to do all the work. When he has filled out that application, the applicant has written a book, and all the 48 employees at the $12,240 rental building have to do is to tear off the little license card, stick a stamp on it and mail it back to the applicant.

To do him justice, Assistant Director Lee explained that the 48 employees of the division really have a lot to do. Over 900,000 drivers' licenses have been issued, and it would seem like everybody must have one. Nevertheless about 200 new ones are being issued each day. The 48 employees have something to do besides this, however. It is in the safety division of the drivers' license act that the 48 are principally employed. They must check against offenses and there is a heavy volume of correspondence. Assistant Director Lee made out an excellent case.

All of which simply illustrates the fact that once, in a democracy, you give birth to a bureau, you have started something over which you have no control. The little bureau burgeons quickly into a Frankenstein. If there is anything in all the world that grows like a green bay tree it is a government bureau. They started one in Washington a few years back with only a handful of employees. Today it is located in a building umpty-steen stories high and covering three entire city blocks, and even the denizens of the place have to hire a guide if they want to go anywhere in the building outside their own quarters.

It's no use to talk against the assistant director of a bureau, let alone the director. Either one of them can give you a thousand good reasons why every activity that the bureau undertakes is vital to the welfare of the people and without any urging whatever they will let loose on you a thousand other cogent reasons why the bureau should expand here, there and everywhere.

Nevertheless, the committee recommended Representative Hannah Kempfer's bill to transfer the drivers' license division to the department of the registrar of motor vehicles, presided over by Mike Holm, who does not have to argue about efficiency and economy, having proved it against every state in the Union.

If Mrs. Kempfer gets her bill passed, the Governor, of course, will veto it and keep the division safely in the Farmer-Labor family, but under the law as it is at present when you have paid your two-bits for your drivers' license you have paid it for all time in Minnesota, and unless the Legislature does something about it, the drivers' license division will shortly perish for lack of pap.

CAPITOL NEWS

At a recent meeting of liquor code authorities in Washington, Minnesota's administration of liquor control and methods of collecting liquor and beer taxes under David R. Arundel were cited as "examples other states could well follow."

The activities of the Division of Women and Children of the Industrial Commission although most conspicuous in the three larger cities in Minnesota are statewide. During the first three months of the calendar year, 1,212 investigations of complaints and general inspections relating to working conditions as they affect women and minors were made in 18 towns outside of the Twin Cities. By far the majority of complaints relate to long working hours of women, and unpaid wages. Lacking definite statutory jurisdiction in wage matters outside of cases relating to minors, the department is unable to assist in many cases even though an apparent injustice has occurred. Complaints relating to child labor are becoming increasingly negligible although the rise of night clubs has resulted in the growth of new types of illegal employment at night of minors. Thus far in 1935 7 prosecutions have been instituted by the Division of Women and Children. These prosecutions related to violations of the 54 hour law for women and the child labor law. Five prosecutions of violation of the statutes prohibiting the employment of minors under 16 years after 7 p. m. occurred either in or adjacent to the Twin Cities and related to commercialized places of amusement.

Professor S. E. Leland of the University of Chicago addressed the House last week on the subject of taxation. He dampened the ardor of sales tax enthusiasts. The speaker told the legislators that 50 per cent of Illinois sales tax is derived from taxation on the necessities of life.

Attorney General Harry H. Peterson, in an opinion given the chairman of the senate committee on taxes, held that a proposed bill providing for taxation of all college property not on the campus or used as a dormitory is unconstitutional.

The final repercussion of the stem to stern housecleaning given by Attorney General Harry H. Peterson when he took office in 1933 was heard recently when the supreme court held that Mr. Peterson had the right to discharge Thomas E. Caralli, an employee under the Republican regime. Caralli contended that he could not be discharged under the veterans preference act. The high court held that the job, a position in the inheritance division, was of a confidential nature and therefore the attorney general could hire and fire at his own discretion.

No breed of dog has yet been developed that can excel the Chesapeake Bay retriever's work in retrieving. Pointers, setters, spaniels were tried with some success, but were found to lose their steadiness in the field when returned to it. The poodle was sufficiently hardy but mauled his bird. The old English sheep dog and others, including various crosses of all of them, were attempted in an endeavor to produce the desired qualities of a good nose, soft mouth, an understanding brain and the waterproof coat, but in no instance did any approach the Chesapeake standard.

PUBLIC OPINION

Expressions of opinion on timely subjects are invited and welcomed to this department of The Times. Letters should be of reasonable length, and the name should be signed, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. Letters duplicated to other local newspapers are not desired.

Editor the Times:

With the spring season just coming on I would like to use space in your paper to make an appeal to farmers and others who may have meadows or brush thickets that they expect to burn this spring to do their burning early before our game birds start their nests. While early burning may not be quite so easy nor effective you avoid the danger of your fires getting out of control and doing damages to other property. That together with the advantage of not destroying nesting birds should be enough to compensate for the extra work of early burning.

We have spent considerable time and money to feed the birds during the winter in order to have ample breeding stock for the coming season and it is a shameful waste to destroy great numbers of these birds and their nests by careless spring fires. Give us your co-operation in this matter. Don't start any fires after the meadows and brush thickets have dried out, nor after the wild birds have started nesting.

More birds means less grasshoppers and other pests.

Respectfully submitted,
W. H. Quist,
State Game Warden

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER FINDS ANOTHER FRIEND

"DID you and your relatives come down from the Far North alone?" asked Peter of Dotty the Tree Sparrow.

"No," was Dotty's prompt reply. "Slaty the Junco and his relatives came along with us so that we had a very merry party."

Peter pricked up his ears. "Is Slaty here now?" he asked eagerly.

"Very much here," replied a voice right behind Peter's back. It was so unexpected that it made Peter jump. He turned to find Slaty himself chuckling as he picked up seeds. He was very nearly the same size as Dotty but trimmer looking. There was no mistaking

"Are You Here to Stay All Winter?" Cried Peter.

Slaty the Junco for any other bird. His head, throat, and breast were a clear slate color. Underneath he was white. His sides were grayish. His outer tail feathers were white. His bill was flesh color; it looked almost white.

"Are you here to stay all winter?" cried Peter.

"I certainly am," was Slaty's prompt response. "It will take pretty bad weather to drive me away from here. If the snow gets too deep I'll just go up to Farmer Brown's barnyard. I can always pick up a meal there, for Farmer Brown's boy is a very good friend of mine. I know he won't let me starve, no matter what the weather is. I think it is going to snow. You know I am sometimes called the Snowbird."

Peter nodded. "So I have heard," said he.

"By the way, Slaty, what do you make your nest of and where do you put it?" asked Peter.

"My nest is usually made of grass and moss and rootlets," replied Slaty. "Sometimes it is lined with fine grass. When I am especially lucky I line it with long hairs. Often I put my nest on the ground and never very far above it. I am like my friend Dotty the Tree Sparrow in this respect. It always seems to me easier to hide a nest on the ground than anywhere else. There is nothing like having a nest well hidden. It takes sharp eyes to find my nest, I can tell you that, Peter Rabbit."

Just then Dotty, who had been picking seeds out of the top of a weed, gave a cry of alarm and instantly there was a flit of many wings as the little feathered folk sought the shelter of the bushes along the edge of the field. Peter sat up very straight and looked this way and looked that way. Crouching flat among the weeds he saw Black Pussy the Cat. Peter stamped angrily, then with jumps he started for the dear Old Briar Patch, lipperty-lipperty-lip.

Cultivated; Cultured

A cultured person is the correct phrase, for the adjective indicates that the person possesses education and refinement. Cultivated may be used to describe the mind of a person, but is not used of the person. "A cultured person possesses a cultivated mind."—Literary Digest.

Birth Rate of Twins

In a study of 717,907 births of twins, it was found that—out of every 1,000 of these births—307 were twin girls, 327 were twin boys and 366 were a girl and boy. The analysis also revealed that the birth rate of twins is higher in cold countries than in the tropics.—Collier's Weekly.

Sort of Small

First Coins and Stamps

The first United States coins were the half-cent and cent minted at Philadelphia in 1793. Coins had been issued by the American colonies long before this, Massachusetts as early as 1652. The first coin issued under authority of the United States was the Continental dollars of 1776, in silver, pewter and brass, the design said to have been made by Benjamin Franklin. Postage stamps were first authorized in this country by act of congress of March 3, 1847, and they were placed on sale in New York on July 1 of that year. Provisional issues of stamps had been made by certain postmasters for some years before this.

Transparent Glass Fish Reveals Bony Structure

A curious fish of particular interest to advanced aquarists is the glass fish from India, once known as Ambassis lala and now called A. ranga, says the Detroit News.

The fish reaches a length of two inches and is so transparent that the bone structure and internal organs are clearly visible as it swims in a tank. There is a yellowish sheen to the body, but this does not interfere with the transparency.

It is seldom that glass fish are bred in captivity in this country, most of the specimens kept here having been imported from India or Germany. On rare occasions, however, they have been induced to spawn in aquaria, but even then, most of the young fish hatched die within a short period.

The young glass fish are very tiny. They will feed upon small infusoria and other microscopic organisms until they are big enough to take bigger food. The adult fish may be fed upon various kinds of live food, including Daphnia and white worms.

There are other kinds of glass fish brought into this country, but not in such large numbers as Ambassis lala. One of them is Ambassis commersoni, which is longer than the other and comes from Africa. Specimens of this species have been caught in salt water and experiments have shown that in captivity they will thrive equally well in salt or fresh water.

Large Liners Carry Less Cargo Than Small Ships

The larger and more modern liners carry far less actual cargo than freight and tramp steamers which are half their size. Transatlantic and transpacific express liners usually carry nothing except mail and a few automobiles.

Visitors are not allowed to enter the bridge or wheelhouse of a ship at sea during stormy weather. Some captains are very strict about this, rightly so, says a writer in the Chicago Tribune, and prohibit passengers in both fair and bad weather from visiting the bridge or wheelhouse. The helmsman (or quartermaster) has both hands on the wheel; both eyes on (1) one or the other of two compasses, (2) course indicator, (3) rudder indicator, all of which are actuated electrically. The first (or chief) officer is another name for the first mate. His duties usually are those of navigating officer. He gives the orders, direct or indirect, to the quartermaster, who always repeats the order and shifts the helm accordingly. Behind these orders are scores of intricate navigating and piloting jobs that take up 60 minutes out of every hour the vessel is at sea. Mathematics, skill, and judgment are the main elements. These involve the use of instruments like sextants, fathometers, radio compasses, barometers, anemometers, thermometers, charts, dividers, and binoculars.

Zulu-Britain Treaty Found

Discovery of the historic original treaty, dated June 21, 1837, between Dingaan, the king of the Zulus, and the king of England, which cedes in effect all of Natal to Great Britain, is considered one of the most important finds of the century. The king's representative who signed on his behalf was Capt. Alan Gardiner. Stowed away in his papers, the document has been almost around the world. It was found by Dr. C. J. Uys, of Maritzburg, in a bundle of papers belonging to the Gardiner family in Durban, Natal. Captain Gardiner, who was a missionary, found his way to Tierra del Fuego, in South America, where he was ultimately starved to death by the hostile inhabitants.

French Army Blue Passing

The time will not be far distant, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Sunday Observer, when "bleu horizon" will entirely have disappeared from the French army, and khaki will have taken its place. No skyblue cloth has been made since 1921, and the stock then replenished has been entirely exhausted. On the other hand, the clothing department of the army still possesses a considerable reserve of ready-made blue uniforms, and it is intended to use these up. This may take a considerable time, and, during this period, khaki will become more and more the color for parades and blue more and more the color for less ceremonial occasions.

Keeps Tab on Tongue

For those who insist on getting their full three minutes on long distance there is the Tele-Timer. Little lights are set around the rim of a clock face. Touching a button at the start of the conversation flashes a red light over the 12, then every 15 seconds a green light glows clockwise. Over the figure 11, a yellow light shows there's 15 seconds to go, then the red light shows when it's time to say goodby and switches off two seconds before the allotted three minutes is up.—Business Week.

NEW TAX BILL IS PENDING BEFORE THE STATE LEGISLATURE

heritance tax rates and the gross earnings tax on telephone companies, as the governor has suggested. The rate in the top bracket of the income tax would be increased from 6 to 8 per cent, making a boost of 60 per cent in taxes on the wealthiest group. The increases are graduated down the scale, with substantial increases on all the higher brackets.

"In addition, the committees agreed on a series of special sales taxes with high rates on luxuries and a two per cent retail sales tax on other items.

"The committees considered the gross income tax but had to give this up when careful study showed it would not raise sufficient funds. Indiana has found its gross income tax inadequate and now is preparing to pass a sales tax in addition. South Dakota gave up its gross income tax because it discriminated against local manufacturers and wholesalers and has passed a sales tax. Only one other state now has a gross income tax.

"The experience among the states that have been seeking new revenue to relieve real estate indicates that the sales tax is necessary to obtain any large replacement fund. Twenty states now have some form of it. Combining the sales tax with increases in the net income provides as satisfactory a program as possible for Minnesota, we believe."

Some objection has been raised to the program in the three large cities. More than 50 per cent of the retail sales of the state are in the three cities, and an even bigger percentage of the increase in net income taxes would come from the cities. Considerably more than two-thirds of the taxes proposed under the program would be collected in the three big cities, it is estimated, and two-thirds or more of the $24,000,000 relief fund distributed would go to the county communities.
